Roseau's Art in the Park Sunday

A free afternoon of entertainment for families and individuals is offered at Art in the Park Sunday, July 10, from 12 noon to 5 p.m. at Pioneer Farm and Village, 2.5 miles west of Roseau on highway 11.

Sponsoring Roseau Area Arts Association announces that 14 visual artists, including five first-time participants, will exhibit their creative work. Performing artists include three dancers, five vocalists and 11 instrumentalists.

Residents and visitors in northwestern Minnesota are invited by the association to view a wide variety of original paintings as well as photographs and prints in both realistic and abstract styles. Handwoven original weavings will also be displayed at the grassy, park-like site.

Most of the work will be for sale and a percentage of each sale will go to the sponsoring association to help fund various programs in the community.

Warroad musicians Michael Holberg-Smith, Matt Smith and Joe Olson will open the musical performances at 1 p.m. Other musical numbers will start at 3 and 4 p.m. A flutist, violinist and two guitarists will be strolling minstrels.

At the 2 p.m. stage performance, two lively clowns will serve as the association's traditional story tellers. Karla Rislov and Carmen Przekwas encourage children of all ages as well as older folks who are young at heart to come and hear their funny stories.

Before or after the stories youngsters may choose to visit the Discovery Tent to participate in a creative activity. For a fee of one dollar per child, instructors Debra Brummer and Paulette Christianson will guide children 11 years of age and older in decorating a T-shirt or painter's cap with leaf prints. Participants may bring their own white or light colored T-shirts or sweat shirts or purchase a shirt or cap at the tent.

Children ages eight to 10 may also participate if accompanied by a helpful adult. Adults without chil-

"An American Festival" rises and falls on weather

Look alike contest was no contest during An American Festival dog show Saturday afternoon at the Pennington County Fairgrounds. Alex Sumner of Thief River Falls and his dog "Oppia" were the winners. With the pair is Alex's mother Laurie.

Thief River Falls' first community Fourth of July weekend celebration in a number of years, titled "An American Festival," rose and fell with the weather Saturday through Monday.

A huge crowd was on hand for the 11 a.m. parade Saturday and applauded the more than 100 units which traversed the parade route. Results of the parade competition are published elsewhere in today's issue of The Times.

Much of the parade crowd transferred to the Pennington county fairgrounds following the parade for events and activities there, including three performances of a lumberjack show, a dog show, music and a saddle club play day in addition to craft show, beer garden and food concessions.

The Fisher Brothers Lumberjack Show from Stillwater was performed to large crowds at the first two performances and a smaller crowd for the third. Activities included basic chain saw carving, hand sawing, log chopping, chain saw cutting and log rolling, including audience participation and a log rolling dog.

Numbers far beyond expectations turned out for the dog show with prizes awarded for such areas as shortest tail, best dressed, most loveable, best trick, smallest and dog and owner look-alike. Pictures of winners are published in today's issue as well.

The Smokey Mountain Boys and Bob and the Beach Combers provided afternoon and evening music and the crowd faded as the evening turned cold.

A good crowd was also on hand at LaFave Park early Sunday afternoon but rain from about 3 p.m. until early evening curtailed a number of the planned activities. Youngsters took advantage of the chance to perform with the Karaoke music and that activity continued from about 3 p.m. until the evening fireworks show. The hoop shoot activity was also held.

Kite flying was canceled due to the weather (lightning was flickering and no one wanted a Benjamin Franklin kite flying re-run) but about 200 kites were given away to youngsters for use on their own in the future.

Rain ended in time for people to turn out in droves for the fireworks display at dusk and Highway 1 East across the Eighth street bridge and streets and roads leading to the highway were jammed with traffic from well before the first aerial shot was fired until nearly midnight.

The $6,000 fireworks display was coordinated by Dave Beito and included about half an hour of nearly non-stop aerial sound and color.

Monday was planned to have a memorial service and family picnic day at Hartz park near the National Guard Armory but a downpour in the morning caused cancelation of the service and apparently discouraged picnics as well.

But the skies cleared again and Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village was host to about 500 people who visited free as guests of the An American Festival committee. The Pennington County Historical Society had made suitable preparations for the large crowd and provided tours of most areas of the village. The Smokey Mountain Boys played old-time music for dancing in the machinery and motor vehicle building.

Results of running and bicycling events are also published in sepa-

City administrator discussed

Thief River Falls city council discussed the city administrator position Tuesday night during a regularly scheduled meeting of the city council.

Just how to go about advertising for a new city administrator and how to select one among the applicants for the job was the topic of conversation at the council meeting. The council also discussed several other issues such as joining the county in purchasing an optical scan voting system and purchasing a decibel meter for use by city departments and police.

City Administrator ad-hoc committee, composed of Jean Heinrichs and Frank Hamerlinck, presented a handout expressing their concerns, considerations and recommendations in the selection process for a city administrator. They recommended that the city council consider hiring a consultant to handle the selection process because of the importance of the position, and the amount of time this process will require.

After consideration and discussion, the council decided to combine efforts of the city council, staff, and possibly a consultant in defining the selection process. The council also decided to seek out advice from firms in the city and the local job service office.

■ Bids on the regional airport reservoir were opened.

More time will be taken to consider bids on the construction of a proposed reservoir and pumping station at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport. Moorhead Construction Co. came in with the lowest bid of five with a bid of $849,538. That bid, however, was considerably higher than the engineer's estimate.

Ron Lindberg, engineering services director, explained that the original concept had greatly expanded, which accounts for the significant difference. He is convinced, however, that there are many benefits to the 500,000 gallon reservoir.

■ The council voted to purchase a different voting system.

Thief River Falls and Pennington county are one of the few remaining places in the state that still utilize a punch card voting system. Because of this unique position, many fear the cost of obtaining those special ballots will increase significantly.

Tuesday night the city council accepted a recommendation to enter into an agreement with the county to purchase an AIS optical scan voting system. The county plans to contribute $15,000 to the purchase, and the city is being asked to contribute $10,000 to the cost of the system.

■ The council approved the purchase of equipment that measures level of noise.

City administrator position discussed

The city council approved purchase of a decibel meter for use by all city departments. Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, said the police department will be able to use the meter to enforce the city's noise ordinance. Officers will have to undergo some training in the use of the decibel meter before use. Other departments could use the meter for such things as helping to identify noise sources that could cause hearing loss.

■ Property owners have been notified about Dutch Elm Disease.

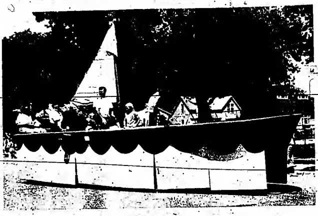
Some property owners within the city have received notices of the presence of trees with Dutch Elm disease. By city ordinance, diseased trees on private property must be removed within 20 days of notification. The property owners are responsible for all tree removal and disposal costs. Proper disposal includes chipping and debarking, burning or burying in a state certified landfill. If a property owner is unable to have the tree property disposed, the city will hire a contractor to remove the tree. That cost will be charged to the property owner. Ten property owners have or will receive the notice.

In other business, the council: approved transfer of $200,000 of general liability insurance reserves to the city's revolving capital fund to replace $140,000 that was an inter-fund loan from the electric department; approved the proposed 1995 budget calendar; charged off two uncollectible accounts to the TRF Credit Bureau; transferred the balance of the Ralph Engelstod donation for the renovation of old antique farm machinery to the historical society to continue the program in 1994; renewed membership in the Partnership for Greater Minnesota organization; increased the salary of deputy city clerk to compensate him for additional responsibilities during the city's organizational management study; accepted the city's 1993 comprehensive annual financial report; approved a request for beer in Oakland Park for Arctco on August 28; approved several dance permit requests; and received a franchise fee from Sjoberg's Cable TV in the amount of $18,110.36.



St. Hilaire Lions Club float was judged best in the non-commercial competition during the parade at An American Festival in Thief River Falls Saturday morning.

Recognizing that participation in the outdoor events is entirely dependent upon the weather, the committee arranging the festival was thrilled at the overall turnout for activities during the three-day event.

A meeting of the committee is planned for this Thursday and input will be sought from organizations and individuals involved with sponsoring or conducting activities to improve on the celebration next year.

Cookies and beverages will be available at the old parish hall, one of several historic buildings on the grounds, with Diana Schneider and Mary Dieter as co-chairs of the hospitality committee. A framed print of a horse drawn by Rock Bakken of Hallock will be raffled at the event with the drawing set for 4:55 p.m.

Persons attending are encouraged to bring their own lawn chairs to relax and visit after looking over the displays.

Elks lodge will provide camper scholarships

Thief River Falls Elks Lodge has given scholarships to six boys from our area to the Minnesota Elks Youth Camp, which serves campers who may not otherwise get the opportunity to attend a camp. All the campers' fees are paid.

The Elks Youth Camp is located north of Brainerd, on Pelican Lake and offers one of the finest waterfront areas in the state. The camp is about 300 acres and is accredited by the American Camping Association. The camp is beautiful, serves great food, and hires quality people to serve the campers.

Campers will be involved in learning new skills and practicing other skills that they may already know. Some of the program highlights include swimming, fishing, boating, archery, arts and crafts, overnight camping trip, game room, sports and hiking. They enjoy many special events including water carnival, camp carnival and gold rush.

For more information about the camp and the opportunities for youth please call Thief River Falls Elks Lodge 1308.

Lifeguards in 1930s built their own boat for $7.25 in material

Two lifeguards at the river swimming pool in about 1936 took it upon themselves to provide a rescue boat, according to a newspaper article recently submitted to The Times by Mrs. Ed (Lillian) Holmstrom of Thief River Falls.

Lillian points out that Kenneth Holmstrom, one of the lifeguards, was the first military fatality from Thief River Falls in World War II. He reportedly died from an airplane accident while in training in the United States and is one of the people for whom Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 of the American Legion is named.

The other lifeguard, Kenneth Pope, was the son of Clarence Pope, a long-time instructor in the Thief River Falls public schools.

Under the headline "Rowboat at Tindolph Park Built by Pope and Holmstrom Stirs Comment" was the following article:

The boat which was added to the lifesaving equipment of Tindolph park lately has been arousing considerable comment from visitors at the park who have noticed it and become acquainted with its history.

It appears that the City Council realized the need of a boat at the swimming pool in case of an emergency and steps were taken to acquire a boat. An old boat was available for five dollars but when lifeguards Kenneth Holmstrom and Kenneth Pope tried to handle the dilapidated, unwieldy scow, great was their disgust and they announced that they could build a better boat than that for not much more money.

They were permitted to go ahead and the present boat is the result. Even the unskilled boatman must admit that the craft which is 12 feet long and nicely proportioned looks neat and entirely seaworthy, if you can apply that term to river navigation.

But the expense account is even more to be appreciated by the inexperienced riverman. The lumber and two pounds of nails cost $4.65, and the white lead used came to $.60 and the paint to $2.00, a total of $7.25. This took care of the boat itself.

Oars and oar locks, more expensive items since they were bought ready made, came to about four dollars so that the entire cost of a new boat, neatly built and well suited for its purpose, came to a little over eleven dollars.

This includes nothing for the time of the two lifeguards who did the work in their spare time in two days. Both confess that this is the first boat either one has ever built but do admit that they have taken the shop classes at the high school and did know a little about designing and the use of some tools.

When asked how they succeeded in getting such an even curve to the side boards, Holmstrom replied that he had merely sat down, pushed his feet against one side, his back against the other and Pope had fastened a support between them.

Just a breeze for some fellows!

Incidentally, both lifeguards should be equally competent to act in any swimming emergency that might arise as both have had Boy Scout training and both have recently passed the Senior Red Cross lifesaving tests given by Red Cross examiner Alex Otton at Union Lake. Mr. Otton is assistant director of Camp Rotary.

Former student writes Knox school memories

Abby Nabben, a former student at Knox elementary school, wrote the following article for the end of the era celebration held at the school earlier this year. Much of the material came from a publication entitled "Where Two Rivers Meet" by Mary Croteau.

by Abby Nabben

In the early 1800's Thief River Falls was a thriving community with the sawmill being the leading industry. As settlers moved in and new businesses were started, a school was needed for the children. Miss Helen Wallin, the daughter of a fur trader and merchant, was hired to teach 10 children on the other side of the river. School was held in several buildings at first, but by 1891 there were two small school buildings, both still west of the river.

On July 24, 1893 a meeting was held in C. J. Knox's barn by the Red Lake Rapids District (a rival faction in many ways to the Thief River Falls district). They met for the selection of officers, selection of a school site, raising of funds for school purposes, and other business. At this meeting Mr. Knox and Mr. Tindolph donated land for a two-story building and $500 in taxes were levied with $400 of this for teachers' salaries. A bond issue of $1,800 was passed for the erection of the new school and O. T. Tanborg was hired as the teacher. In 1895 the school burned to the ground and school was temporarily held in other quarters until the new two-story structure could be rebuilt.

Incidentally, in 1896 the principal received $60 a month and teachers $45. Another interesting note is that while education flourished, so did romance. Mr. Herbert Fuller, who was hired as principal, taught on the second floor and Martha Brown taught on the first floor. They fell in love and were soon married.

In 1901 the two districts merged and much work and building was done to improve education. A new Knox was built in 1906 which had four rooms and four teachers. In 1915 the number of teachers had increased to eight.

Another interesting event in the history of Knox is what happened to the old school when the new brick structure was built in 1920. The building was purchased by St. Bernard's parish so they could start a parochial school. The building was cut into two parts and in January was moved across the river on the ice near the site of the Third Street Bridge. The first section was moved without any difficulty.

Many of the movers were from Red Lake Falls and commuted by passenger train between that town and Thief River Falls. It was a Saturday afternoon by the time they arrived at the middle of the river with the second section. It was time for the crew to catch the train home. They stopped their work and left the school standing on the ice. Imagine the surprise of the parishioners on Sunday when they saw half of their school at the bottom of the river. The movers rose to the occasion however, drove pilings along side the building, and jacked it up. They left it in midair for a few days to let the river freeze over again. I'm sure the whole town turned out to see the spectacle.

In the '30s the Normal Training School was held in Knox. Upon high school graduation students could study for a year and be certified to teach in a rural school. Miss Stapleton, and later Mrs. Mattherson, was the instructor. They studied a basic curriculum, methods, some psychology and music which was taught by Miss Springen. Many of these teachers went on to get their degree and then taught in the city schools. The rural areas were very grateful for this program which supplied them with teachers.

We remember the "New Knox" as an elegant building with broad stairways rising from the large open auditorium in the center of the building. A balcony circled this area, and while it would be used for programs and as a gym, at all times this was a very special place. Students were expected to walk close to the wall under the balcony. Never were you to cut across the open area. As one alumnus put it, "Only Miss Bloomsness could to that."

There were other strict rules about school property. When the land west of the buildings was purchased, a beautiful green park-like area was created, but only to look at. No one was permitted to set foot on the grass. Doing so would earn you a trip to the principal's office, and it seems some neighbor always kept an eye out and quickly called to report any wrong doer. I'm sure if the school could speak it would say how happy it is to see children running the grassless track between bases during a spirited game of kick ball, or playing four square and shooting baskets on the tarred mat that was once lush grass. School grounds should be for KIDS. A few years ago some great playground equipment for climbing and such was added to the other side of the building.

We remember the rivalry between the other schools during basketball games and track meets. Were the old school colors orange and black? Did we ever spawn an Olympic hopeful?

In 1954 a kitchen, gymnasium, and kindergarten was added. How thrilled Miss Fiskerback must have been with the new room which was one of the finest in Minnesota. There was SPACE, and a balcony playroom, its own bathroom, a carpeted area for listening to stories, and lots of room to spread the rugs for rest time. Hot lunch could now be served and physical fitness activities could now be monitored. Inclement weather no longer kept children from active playtime.

1983 was a sad time for Knox. The school was closed. No voices called on the playground, no footsteps sounded on the creaking stairs, no singing voices lilted from the open windows, no art work was displayed proudly on the windows; only silence echoed through the halls. If you listened you could almost hear Knox's heart break.

But wonder of wonders, the next year the school was reopened with two special education classes and one section each of kindergarten through fifth grade.

Today Knox is a [illegible] square foot facility that houses about 220 third, fourth and fifth graders. It has 15 general classrooms, a library and multi-purpose room with a stage and adjoining kitchen. The two-story facility is a brick construction supported by a concrete foundation. While the 1954 section is of much newer-type construction, there are many fire hazards, unsafe and deteriorating conditions. Over the years, improvements have been made; outside fire escapes, new heating system and energy efficient windows have all been added as have other things. Still Knox is found wanting. "You can't stop time or progress."

Now a large, modern, wonderful "newcomer" is arising south of the city, and it will take all the children from the school. It is an exciting time.

We don't know what will happen to you, Knox school, but we hope you will serve a useful and dignified purpose in the community. How important you have been to the city over the years! What an important part you and the dedicated, talented, compassionate teachers have played in the lives of the thousands of students who have begun their learning experiences here, and then moved on to areas of higher learning. Here they were taught, led, guided, encouraged, inspired and disciplined as a preparation for life. Friendships formed here are often as close as ever.

We can not begin to mention the names of all the teachers, past and present, who have been such an important part of this school. It is impossible to even remember them all, but we do remember the great job you have done with the children entrusted to your care. We can only say, "Thank you."

And to you, Knox school, once more your halls will be silent, your blank windows will look out like blind eyes. How many stories you could tell if you could only talk. You were important in our lives. Thank you. We will always hold you dear in our minds and hearts.

We will miss you.
Good-bye.
Good-bye.

Play It Safe in the Sun

You should be protecting yourself against the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays on a daily basis, as routinely as brushing your teeth and combing your hair. The threat of skin cancer is very real.

Half of an individual's total lifetime exposure to ultraviolet radiatioo occurs by age 18, so it is critical to protect your infants and children along with yourself.

One or more blistering sunburns in childhood or adolescence is enough to double the chance of developing malignant melanoma, the most rapidly spreading and therefore lethal form of skin cancer.

For young adults especially, the allure of the beach and the tanning parlor may seem all too great. In the last decade, melanoma rose from being the third most common type of cancer among women ages 25-29 to the first most common type of cancer among women.

On women, melanomas most often appear on the legs and terso — areas receiving most esposure to the sun. Almost all are pigmented moles that have grown asymmetrical (one half does not match the other), with notched, ragged, or blurred borders. Be on the lookout also for scaliness, oozing, bleeding, and the spread of pigment beyond the borders.

Other types of skin cancer, such as basal cell carcinoma and squamous cell carcinoma, are less deadly but far more common. Basal cell carcinoma causes shiny, pearly grey nodules to appear mostly on the face, neck and back of the hands, while the squamous cell variety forms scaly, slightly red lesions with a crusty or wart-like surface.

If you have had a lot of sun exposure in the past, examine your skin frequently for any new lesions, discolorations, or changes in moles and freckles. If you see anything suspicious, show your doctor. Even malignant melanoma is 90 per ecnt curable if detected early, before it spreads."

In addition, take the following precautions recommended by the American Academy of Dermatologists:

— Minimize sun exposure between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

— Wear appropriate clothing (a wide-brimmed hat and long-sleeved

Umbrella Tree Center is child's safe haven

Sometimes children just need a place where they are not caught in the middle.

It is a reality of life that some marriages not only go sour, but often turn violent. If this is not bad enough, if is worse when innocent children must witness that violence, choose sides, or just sit by in fear while witnessing the abuse of a parent, who is, in 95 per cent of the cases, their mother.

Domestic violence is not only a psychological nightmare for children, but it may also teach them to carry that violent behavior into their own lives.

While some parents may never get along, there is now a place where children can go to feel safe and to learn ways to cope with their bad situations.

It is called the Umbrella Tree Children's Safety Center, a program of the Violence Intervention Project. Central offices are in Thief River Falls.

The center provides a safe and neutral drop-off site where parents can be assured of a safe eschange of children or supervised visitation.

Project coordinator Kathie Johanneck said the ecnter makes life a lot easier for both children and parents.

"There are many situations where parents are separated, but both have custody or court-ordered access to the children," said Johanneck. "Even so, a lot of parents can't be in contact with each other for even a minute, so having a place where the children can be exchanged solves that problem."

The Umbrella Tree Center does more than solve logistical problems. It also keeps relationships between parents and child on steady ground, and teaches children how to cope with the trauma of witnessing the abuse of a parent.

The center conducts support and education classes for children who have witnessed domestic violence. Classes are designed for two age groups: children between tha ages of five and nine, and children 10 to 16 years of age.

Johanneck said the classes make a clear difference for those who attend.

"The children say they find it extremely helpful," she said. "They have a safe place to vent their feelings rather than holding it all in. Not talking about the pain of domestic abuse can really damage children for life. That's why this program is so important."

Classes are also offered to teach parents the appropriate way to raise children and esplain how witnessing domestic abuse affects them.

Any fomily who has experienced domestic abuse is eligible for Umbrella Tree classes, iecluding these situations.

What did you do over the summer?

What did you do on your summer vacation? For many students, that is a tough question to answer. A variety of reasons, including family finances and time constraints, may make time away from home an impossibility this summer.

Finances or family schedules also may prevent some students from taking classes in summer school. But summer provides ideal opportunities for students and their relatives tu combine learning and fun at home.

"Think of your child's favorite subject in school and make up activities that use his or her existing knowledge," recommends Robert E. Astrup, president of the Minnesota Education Association (MEA).

As an example, Astrup cites geography. "If your child understands map reading, work together to plot out routes to places you and your child would like to visit some day. Then; use your child's map reading and map making skills to draw maps to your home from different places in the neighborhood, the state or the country."

The kitchen can be a fun place for students who enjoy reading or math, says Judy Schaubach, who became MEA president July 1.

"Ask your children to read through a cookbook or your recipe cards to find a recipe they would like to help you prepare," she suggests. "Children can help shop for the necessary ingredients, adding up the cost of the items.

At home, encourage them to gather measuring cups and spoons and read the Instructions out loud." Shaubach also says cooking helps younger students learn good health and safety tips such as washing their hands before preparing food and using the stove or appliances only with permission from a parent or other responsible adult.

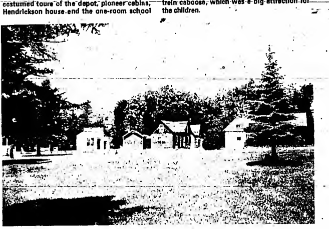
Engelstad Pioneer Village had over 500 people attend festivities held there during the American Festival held over the Fourth of July weekend. Admission to the village grounds was free for the day. Activities included costumed tours of the depot, pioneer cabins, Hendrickson house and the one-room school house; an old time dance in the Engelstad machinery building; and a music recital in the church. There were also spinning, jewelry making and quilting demonstrations. Shown above are the church and a portion of the old train caboose, which was a big attraction for the children.



After rainy skies in the morning, the sun shone brightly Sunday afternoon for activities at Engelstad Pioneer Village. Shown above are just a few of the buildings open for browsing at the museum. Over 500 people toured the village during the American Festival weekend.

What will your child say when teacher asks, "What did you do this summer?"

Encourage students who show an interest in acience to plant small gardents, Schaubach says. Have them chart weather conditions in a journal and reach conclusions about tha amount of sun and moisture plants need to grow.

"Students who enjoy art may wish to drow pictures of their gardens, while others who enjoy writing may wish to compose poems or short stories that talk about gardening or plants," she notes.

"The important thing is that children and adults can spend time together in the summer without spending a lot of money," Schaubach says. "The bonds forged by good times together may last longer than the memories of just one vacation."

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

If I were the deciding person as to whether or not this past weekend's observance of the Fourth of July in Thief River was a success, I would have to say that it was certainly a successful observance of the holiday.

You will remember from past columns of mine that I have bemoaned the fact that Thief River did not observe the Fourth of July holiday. I was pleasantly surprised this weekend by not only the quantity of activities planned for a variety of ages and interests, but I was also pleasantly surprised by the attendance of the public at these activities. I did not attend every activity, but I did attend enough to get a feel for the fact that perhaps it is not foolhardy to have activities planned for this special holiday. I had thought that perhaps everyone, except us, went to their lake cottage or campground for this weekend. I had thought that even though I felt that fireworks here in Thief River was a good idea, perhaps those who had lived here longer than me knew of somewhere where spectacular fireworks were displayed and so Thief River's efforts would be of no consequence. I'm glad I thought wrongly!!

If you attended Sunday night's fireworks display you couldn't help noticing the quantity of vehicles loaded with families making their way to the firework display. My husband and I attended the fireworks, but we decided to walk. We felt pretty smug as we walked past cars stopped in traffic. We would not have felt too wonderful except for the shelter in the park that sheltered us from the rain as we waited for the fireworks to begin! Sunday night couldn't have been much more perfect for a fireworks display. Even in this rainy summer we are having, the rain subsided enough for us to enjoy a beautiful display of fireworks. Even the mosquitoes couldn't bother us too much as the wind kept them at bay.

Saturday's parade was also delightful. I even got a sunburn watching it!! In spite of the relatively short notice we had of these Fourth of July festivities, there were enough participants in the parade to have a parade that lasted about an hour. We watched from a spot that was on the return section of the parade and even at this spot there were plenty of people watching. The kids received their candy and even some ice cream. The adults got to reminisce over old times as the older vehicles paraded past. The marching band was delightful.

Over the course of the 3 days, we had weather that was both delightful and stormy. As we can't plan the weather, this was just about as good as weather can get. Some events were canceled because of the weather. Some of the attendance at other events was probably affected a bit by the weather, but overall, we couldn't complain too terribly about the weather.

So, now that Thief River Falls has had a taste of a Fourth of July celebration, what about next year's celebration? It seems to me that enough of us felt inspired to attend the various events that to not have another celebration on the Fourth of July would be wrong. We don't have to have an abundance of activities, but we should have something to celebrate the Fourth of July – at least fireworks and perhaps a parade???

The Fourth of July is the birthday of our nation. It was indeed delightful to have this auspicious occasion celebrated in our own town. Hopefully, our nation and our community will be so privileged to be free that we will always be able to celebrate our freedom on the birthday of our nation, July Fourth. To all those who helped make this celebration in our town possible this year, thank-you!!

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

Sleep-less Cycles

Why is it that every so often I can't get to sleep? And why is it that these sleepless nights always happen the night before something important, where I really need to be rested and alert the next day?

Most of the time I have no trouble getting to sleep. I usually take a book to bed. I begin to read and get through maybe three pages when my eyes start to cross. Anyway they feel like they are crossing. It would be interesting to have somebody check me to see if my eyes are really crossed some time.

Nonetheless, the pages begin to blur and my eyes cross and I just have to put the book down and shut my eyes. Then, usually, boom — I am asleep.

But there are some nights that I just cannot get to sleep. I read my book and get drowsy, but once the light goes off I do not drop off to sleep.

I think what it is that I begin to think too much. My brain starts to zip around from one subject to another and I begin to toss and turn.

After about half an hour of this I realize that it is going to be one of "those nights," which makes things worse because I immediately begin to worry about not going to sleep. Almost every time one of these sleepless nights happens is the night before something important and I will really need my rest the next day, so I start to worry about that.

"What will I do if I can't think straight tomorrow? I have to get to sleep. I will be so tired tomorrow that my brain won't function. My eyes will have bags under them."

And that is just what will happen to me tomorrow — my brain just doesn't work right when I am tired and things will go wrong much easier than they usually do. I will look terrible and feel just as bad and I will get crabby for no reason at all.

The more I worry about getting to sleep, the worse it gets. The more I worry, the more I toss and turn and the faster my thoughts leap from one subject to another.

I always swear I will not look at the clock because doing that just makes everything worse. Thinking something like, "Oh, my gosh, it's 1 a.m. and I'm still not asleep!" does not do anything to relax me and make me sleepy. So I toss and turn some more.

It does not work to turn on the light and try to read some more either. Once the sleepless cycle begins, reading will wake me up more and I will never get to sleep.

It does not work to get up and get a drink of milk or a bite to eat, either. That just makes my stomach rumble and gives me one more thing to think about and makes my body think it is morning and it should wake up.

Taking a hot bath might work, but I always feel that it would take too long to take a bath and the time could be better spent sleeping, which doesn't happen anyway so two hours later I realize I could just as well have taken the bath anyway but by then it is too late.

I've tried counting sheep and doing that muscle relaxing exercise where I start at my toes and work my way up, relaxing each set of muscles as I go. I've tried counting backwards and trying to lay perfectly still in the bed instead of tossing and turning.

I've even considered taking one of the P.M. medications and went so far as to buy some and have it in my medicine cabinet, but it is usually one of the last things I think of so if I took it at that time I would never wake from the alarm in the morning.

Of course, as expected; I usually do fall asleep. But all of the bad things I mentioned happen to me the next day. My brain is scrambled and I can't think straight, everything seems to go wrong, I am crabby and I look terrible.

The problem then is that I am usually so tired that I end up falling asleep on the couch right after supper. Then when I go to bed I can't go to sleep again and the whole thing happens all over again.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Let's Paint Our Lunch!

Everyone likes to paint and of course eat, so let's combine the two. You will need a loaf of bread, milk, food coloring and clean paint brushes.

Put 1/4 cup of milk into glasses and add different colors of food coloring. You now have your "paint" to the degree of color you desire. Use the brushes to "paint" slices of bread into whatever shape of design you wish.

Carefully toast the creation, butter it and now eat the beautiful colorful piece of toast!

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need slices of bread, a rolling pin, peanut butter and bananas.

Aylesworth, Jim. My Son John. This wonderful "read it again" book comes with fourteen new verses in the pattern of the original, along with a whole new cast of characters.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Adventures of Milo and Otis. A series of exciting adventures begin as a curious kitten and a pug-nosed puppy spend their days exploring the barnyard and surrounding countryside.

PARENTING TIPS

Quality Time With Children

We often hear about "quality time" in reference to parents and young children. Just exactly what is quality time and why is it necessary? Basically it is a warm and intimate way of relating to your child. It involves listening carefully to what your child is saying and following her interests. You can do this by observing your child's behavior and determining her mood. Then allow your child to set the tone, direct the action and create her own dramas. By taking time to focus on your child in this way for a few minutes several times throughout the day you will give him/her the message that you respect his or her needs and thoughts and at the same time foster your child's healthy emotional development and build self-esteem. This then, is "quality time."

Quality time can happen throughout the day while you are carrying out your regular daily routines such as mealtime, bedtime or bath time, as well as at specially created times. For example:

Bath time

If it is not hurried, bath time provides an ideal time for quality time. Relax and enjoy the play opportunities that your child initiates. Bath toys provide many interesting opportunities for conversation.

Bedtime

Bedtime is often accompanied by a good-night ritual, but is also a time to feel close and loving. This can be a time for sharing important thoughts and feelings.

Mealtime

Not all mealtimes can be relaxed, but try to choose one meal during the day when you will have enough time for interaction with your children.

Story Time

Reading a book to a child is a natural time for close contact and shared meanings. As you read, be aware of responses and questions that you can extend.

(Contributed by the Early Childhood Family Education department of School District 564.)

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT,

Quality time is enhanced when you take the time to listen carefully to your child, not just to the words but to the feelings and ideas that are behind the words. Then help your child expand on those thoughts and feelings.

State board to hold standards of conduct hearing in TRF

Thief River Falls will be one of eight sites selected for public hearing by the Minnesota Board of Peace Officer Standards and Training. The board will be soliciting input on proposed standards of conduct for peace officers.

The hearing in Thief River Falls will be held from 9 a.m. to noon on July 13 in room A16 at Northland Community College.

The board, which licenses peace officers, will hold the hearings in response to concerns by the public and the legislature about peace officer conduct. Several prominent police misconduct cases over the last year have focused attention on statewide standards for police conduct.

The hearings are intended to provide the public and law enforcement professionals an opportunity to express views and make suggestions about appropriate standards of conduct for peace officers. By holding hearings in various locations throughout the state, the board hopes to maximize the opportunity for input and discussion. The board will also take testimony on a proposal to incorporate current use of force training standards into agency rules.

Currently, peace officers can be disciplined by the state board only if convicted of a felony, theft or unauthorized use of deadly force. Violation of a board rule can lead to discipline by the board, including suspension or revocation of a peace officer's license.

After conducting the public hearings, the board will meet to consider options for new standards of conduct. The board will develop and adopt a set of standards, which will be promulgated as administrative rules. Administrative rules have the force and effect of law.

The 15 member board is charged with the responsibility of regulating the law enforcement occupation by setting standards for education, training, continuing education and conduct.

The board plans to hold hearings in Brooklyn Park, Thief River Falls, Virginia, Marshall, Rochester, Rosemount, Brainerd and Fergus Falls.

Workshop on teen alcohol problems scheduled

A workshop on school presentation of alcohol problems to students will be held in Conference Room B at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls on Saturday, July 9, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Those who know of a young persons who may be having problems with alcohol are welcome to attend and the public is invited. The meeting is sponsored by Alcoholics Anonymous.

"If a young person is exhibiting alcohol abuse behavior," a spokesperson for the organization said, "then the procedure used in this presentation with the aid of pamphlets and videos might be enough to convince the young person that he or she has a problem. Some young people even decide to seek the help of a self-help program such as Alcoholics Anonymous.

"How far down the path of alcoholism do you have to go in order to qualify for membership in Alcoholics Anonymous?" the spokesperson asks. "The answer is, not very far. In fact, the AA preamble states definitely that membership in the fellowship is open to anyone who has a desire to stop drinking. It is up to the individual to decide when he or she has had enough."

Dear Friends,
Prearrangement of a funeral is especially sensible where there are no close family members to properly assume the funeral responsibilities. You may select the clergyman and funeral director in advance. You may decide details of the burial and service, and place the expense funds in a trust for that purpose. We welcome your inquiries.
Respectfully,

DNR distributes $815,000 in wildlife land payments to cover counties' taxes

Checks totaling more than $815,000 in wildlife land payments were distributed to 81 Minnesota counties in June, by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Bureau of Real Estate Management. The counties of Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall each received some of those funds.

The annual payments are made to compensate counties for loss of property tax revenues on lands purchased for state Wildlife Management Areas (WMAs). The 1994 payments totaled eight per cent more than last year, according to Gwen Hallack, DNR tax specialist at Grand Rapids.

The 21 counties of the DNR Northwest Region received a total of $182,000. Marshall county received $15,270.75. Pennington county received $4,312.50. Red Lake county received $5,381.63.

By law, county treasurers must distribute wildlife land payments within each county as though they were received as property taxes, with a portion of the funds going to towns and school districts where wildlife lands are located.

In addition to wildlife land payments, counties will also receive in-lieu-of-tax payments totaling more than $4.7 million for other state lands owned or administered by the DNR.

The DNR Division of Fish and Wildlife manages more than 729,000 acres in 1,200 WMAs across the state. Wildlife Management Areas are managed for wildlife production through habitat protection and improvement. Most are open to public hunting and other compatible uses, and many also provide special wildlife refuge areas.

Riverwalk is featured during festival Sunday

by Gretchen Beito

When GFWC Zehlians brought the idea of a riverwalk to the City Council in 1987, we all agreed it would be a good idea to link the seven city parks with a walkway, to make the riverbanks behind the proposed Hugo's Supermarket and the public property behind the city fire hall and engineering buildings accessible to all people. But an idea is one thing. Executing the idea is another. It hardly seemed possible that a riverwalk could indeed become a reality.

Today we see many people enjoying walking along our rivers because the former Director of Parks and Recreation, Mike Mongoven, saw this project through. From the meager beginning of laying a short asphalt path near the dam to the creation of new Millyard Park, Mike was leading us. He chaired dozens of joint meetings of city department heads and the community improvement committee of GFWC Zehlians.

The creation of the paver stone path in Elks Park and on into the newly-accessible paths behind the fire hall and city engineering buildings are monumental work. Mike directed dozens of volunteers from the community who hauled and leveled sand as well as placing the paver stones in place. He spent many summer evenings on his own time supervising the task. Northland Community College and the Rotarians' Greenwood Trails received aid from Mike in working on their riverwalks. Chief Red Robe Park was beautified with many trees and a circular path. Mike knew how to get the attractive historical pictographs manufactured. Mike helped turn many ideas into reality.

Mike, the many people who use the walk today are indebted to you. The GFWC Zehlians want to thank you for your willingness, your dedication, your creativity in completing this project in ways that are even better than we dreamed.

Methodist Church Joins In Project

The GFWC Zehlians saw right away that we could not put a walkway behind the Methodist church. A narrow strip of grass planted with lovely flowering crab trees was just too small. The Methodist church property was key in the 7.3 mile plan, not only because it was in the center of town, but also because the church was the route from the newly accessible city-owned property in back of the fire hall and engineering buildings. And so we knew we would have to route foot traffic around the church and onto the First Street bridge.

Joan Strong, Kathy Winjum and myself walked with Curt Howe to try to figure out how to place signs around the church, but that required a tremendous number of signs — it was hardly possible. While we were still in a quandry, Phil Hess called us with what we thought was a brilliant idea. Yes, the land between church and river was too narrow for a walkway, be he had thought of a terrace! The walkway could be below the church!

But Phil does not stop with thinking up a great idea. He and John Bornheldt enlisted men from the church to not only create a terrace, but also to rip-rap the river to prevent erosion. A tremendous donation of time and heavy labor was given by men of the church. Foremen Phil Hess and John Bornheldt saw this project through, and not until the retaining wall was built, a new terrace created, the paver stones in place, and attractive fence installed for safety, did they stop. And then Phil and John and their cohorts added many beautiful elements: an overlook with benches, a hand-hewn cross by Jonathan Low, the engraved stone sculpture of the Ten Commandments, a hand-carved plaque by Orvel Stocks that reminds passersby that "God Loves You."

And now we pause, admiring this wonderful addition to our city, to thank you, Phil Hess and John Bornheldt and all the other volunteers from United Methodist church. To thank you for your dedication, your team work, your thousands of volunteer hours.

Recently Thief River Falls was the cover story in the magazine "Minnesota Cells." The article featured Thief River Falls as an enterprising city. Indeed, the United Methodist church is enterprising.

Mike Mongoven, who served for many years a parks and recreation director for the City of Thief River Falls, was presented with a plaque in recognition of his cooperative efforts to help create the riverwalk program in the city. He is shown with Vice Mayor Jean Heinrichs.

Riverwalk area behind the United Methodist Church was created with a great deal of innovation and effort by John Bornholdt and Phil Hess (right). They are shown receiving an appreciation plaque from Gretchen Beito of the GFWC Zehlians, sponsors of the Riverwalk.

The Strandquist Senior Citizens met at the center with 13 members present and 8 guests, namely Clarence and Frieda Lindstrom from Phoenix, AZ; Tollef and Bonita Nelson from Seattle, WA, Adrienne Lafrooth, and Margaret Donaldson and Alura and Sara. The hostess was Elphie Adlis and the door prize was won by Clarence Lindstrom.

All of Strandquist has been busy getting ready for the big celebration this weekend. The Bethesda Lutheran Church in observing its 100th Anniversary, is bringing folks from every direction to have a wonderful time visiting and reminiscing with one another. There will also be celebrating uptown for all to enjoy, birthday and anniversaries to be observed, making this a great 4th of July.

We were intending to bring pictures of George Rasmussen 95th birthday celebration in Karlstad but a good shot was seen last week so we will just relate some of the highlights of the celebration. George Rasmussen, Jr. spent most of his life around Strandquist and is remembered driving the school bus there for many years, always having a fine bunch of horses that he will still tell about. All of his children and a number of his grandchildren were here and some are still here as there are other celebrations for them to be present at. Glen and Audrey Rasmussen came from Walker and are staying at Pembine where there is a birthday party for Audrey's father, Albert Clow and also a family reunion. Virgil and Ruth Rasmussen from Minneapolis left on Wednesday to attend the Family camp at Fosston. Delbert and LuAnne Orendatrand from Mitchell, SD left Wednesday to stop at Fosston and then go back to South Dakota to be there for the Sunday morning church service where they have been pastors. LaVerne and Beverly Rasmussen and son, Jay came from Buffalo Grove, IL; Beverly and Jay had to go back early Monday and LaVerne now owns the farm on which they grew up on stayed to tend to business. They stayed to tend to business. He is looking after George at the present time with help of Cleri who drives him down from Pembina each morning. While at the celebration at the Assembly of God Church we were favored with two beautiful songs by Beverly, who is a professional singer. Don and Carol Gossenbergre from Yorba Linda, CA left on Tuesday for Minneapolis and flew home later in the week. Allen and Gail Rasmusson and son, Matthew from International Falls, where they are both in the College Educational system, took charge of the guests. The picture on the back of the birthday brochure, I learned was not of George but could have been Allen. The horse he was riding had only 2 feet on the ground, the front feet were 5 or more in the air. It was not George.

On Tuesday evening, Peter and Pearl Thompson celebrated Phaela Thompson's and LaVonne Johnson's birthdays by having Danny, Becky and Jeremy Johnson and David and Phaela Thompson and LaVonne Johnson over for "Compa" supper.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson, Polly Stevenson and Florence Strom were to Elmer Holstrom's in Newfolden on Tuesday evening for Elmer's birthday.

Aviation fuel pioneer to attend Crookston event

Dr. Max Shauck, a pioneer in alternative-fuel aviation, will pilot his ethanol-powered Pitts Special bi-plane into Crookston July 12 at 12:30 p.m. The public is invited to watch the air demonstration at the Crookston Municipal Airport three miles north of Crookston on U.S. Highway 75.

Shauck accomplished the world's first ethanol-powered transatlantic flight in 1989 with his wife Grazia, a flight instructor. They have participated in air shows around the world, from Oshkosh to Paris, demonstrating the efficacy of ethanol-fuel.

The federal Clean Air Act requires aviation fuels to be lead free by 1996. "Ethanol is the best alternative fuel available. It is less expensive, more powerful and cleaner than non-renewable, petroleum-based products," says Dr. Richard Nelson, executive director of the Agricultural Utilization Research Institute, a co-sponsor of the Crookston fly-in. "Made from corn or other crops or by-products, ethanol promotes cleaner air and national energy self-sufficiency."

Currently, Shauck is on a national tour sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy and the Governors Commission on Ethanol. Besides AURI, the Crookston visit is hosted by the University of Minnesota at Crookston department of agricultural aviation and the American Coalition for Ethanol.

Chairman of the aviation sciences department at Baylor University in Waco, TX, Shauck started developing ethanol as an aviation fuel in 1980. Since then, he has received numerous awards and research grants for his work at the Renewable Aviation Fuel Development Center at Baylor.

AURI supports biofuel development as part of a nationwide effort to ensure renewable, safer fuels for the future. AURI is a non-profit corporation established by the Minnesota legislature to assist with new products, product uses and market expansion for Minnesota agricultural commodities.

TRF tops Fergus Falls in final Minot start

Shorthanded Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team finished off an appearance at the Minot Invitational with a 5-3 Sunday win over Fergus Falls, expected to be one of the top contenders in Minnesota Ninth District tournament play this year.

It was a 2-3 showing for Post 117 in the six-team, round-robin event that featured teams from Montana (Glendive), South Dakota (Sturgis), North Dakota (Jamestown, Minot), and Minnesota (Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls).

Thief River Falls lost to Glendive 4-3 and fell to Jamestown 14-3 in back-to-back Friday assignments; out-scored Sturgis 16-12 and lost to Minot 9-5 in Saturday starts, then surprised Fergus Falls in a lone Sunday outing.

Just 11 players joined Post 117 coach Howard Dalager for the trip.

"I was pretty happy with our performance," said Dalager. "We played pretty respectable ball in four of the five games. The Jamestown game got away from us, but otherwise, we were pretty competitive."

Results left Post 117 at 9-14 overall heading into a Tuesday game at Roseau. Thief River Falls will complete the week with a Thursday doubleheader in East Grand Forks.

Increase noted in grouse count

Spring drumming count surveys indicate that Minnesota's grouse population is entering the increasing phase of its 10-year population cycle, according to the Department of Natural Resources. Drumming counts of male ruffed grouse were up 29 percent statewide compared with those done in 1993, said Bill Berg, DNR wildlife research biologist in Grand Rapids.

Ruffed grouse drums were up 89 percent in the northwest range compared to 1993, up 25 percent in the north-central range, stable in the northeast range, down 17 percent in the central hardwoods range, and down 20 percent in the southeast range.

"Historically, drumming increases have occurred in the northwest first, before occurring throughout the grouse range," Berg said. "Drumming count results varied dramatically statewide, but the fact that 68 percent of routes increased or remained stable from 1993 to 1994 also suggests an upward trend, and nesting conditions have been favorable."

While the increase in ruffed grouse was encouraging, dancing ground counts of sharp-tailed grouse indicated that long-term habitat loss and degradation continue to be a problem," according to Berg. The number of male sharptails counted on spring dancing grounds was stable in the northwest range, but declined 9 percent in the east-central range.

"Sharptails are dependent on open lands, particularly brushlands," said Berg. "That type of habitat continues to shrink because of encroaching trees, maturing brush, and lack of controlled burning."

Preliminary figures on the 1993 harvest show that approximately 300,000 ruffed grouse were taken by hunters, down 45 percent from 1992 but still 65 percent above the harvest of 183,000 at the low point of the last cycle in 1983.

Hunters took approximately 12,000 sharp-tailed grouse in 1993, a decline of 40 percent from 1992 and the lowest figure since 1984.

Counts are conducted each spring. This year, the DNR completed 119 drumming routes with the help of staff from the Superior and Chippewa national forests, Agassiz and Tamarac national wildlife refuges, White Earth Indian Reservation, Cass County Land Department, Blandin Paper Company, and Brainerd Technical College.

Sharptail dancing ground counts were conducted by staff from the DNR, Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, and volunteers from the Minnesota Sharp-tailed Grouse Society.

Survey shows rise in duck numbers

Mallard and blue-wing teal breeding populations increased substantially in Minnesota this spring, according to results from the annual waterfowl breeding survey.

The mallard breeding population was estimated at approximately 426,000 birds, an increase of 39 percent of 1993.

"This is the highest mallard breeding population recorded in the state since the survey began in 1968," said Jeff Lawrence, waterfowl specialist with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. "In contrast to other breeding areas in Canada and the Dakotas, the Minnesota mallard population has been increasing since the mid-1970s. This increase is due to a combination of factors, including recent low harvest rates, good habitat conditions and wetland protection efforts, and the 4 p.m. closure implemented in the mid-1970s.

The 4 p.m. closure reduces harvest rates on adult hen mallards, which return to the same general area to nest in successive years, building local populations, explained Lawrence. About one-third of Minnesota's breeding duck population is mallards. This year's mallard population is 71 percent above the most recent 10-year average.

Blue-winged teal, which also make up about one-third of Minnesota's breeding ducks, increased 48 percent to 385,000 birds. The population is 46 percent above the 10-year average.

Numbers are estimated annually as part of the North American breeding waterfowl inventory. Approximately 40 percent of Minnesota – mostly the agricultural and prairie pothole regions – is surveyed. "Information on breeding duck populations from Canada and other states is not yet available," noted Lawrence, "but preliminary reports suggest excellent habitat conditions and good duck populations in the Dakotas and Alberta. Conditions are mixed in Saskatchewan. Some areas have good water conditions and nesting cover, but habitat is considerably drier in Manitoba."

Canada geese observed on the Minnesota survey increased 11 percent from 1993, and were 39 percent above the 10-year average. Canada geese have expanded their breeding range throughout most of Minnesota. "Pond numbers have continued to increase in Minnesota since the 1987-89 drought, and muskrats have returned to many of these ponds in the past few years," Lawrence noted. "Muskrat houses provide excellent nest sites for Canada geese, and they are taking advantage of the improved wetland conditions."

May pond numbers in Minnesota increased 7 percent compared to 1993 and were 27 percent above the 10-year average. Wetland conditions were good to excellent throughout much of the Minnesota survey area, but they tended to be drier in the northwest.

Eastern Prairie population of Canada geese, which breeds in northern Manitoba and migrates through western Minnesota, may have poor production due to a late spring thaw this year. There may be a smaller fall flight due to the relative low breeding population and poor production, Lawrence said. That could require a reduced harvest this fall to protect the breeding population.

DNR News

Water Scooter Complaints

Personal watercraft, often referred to as "Water Scooters" or "Jet Skis," have become increasingly popular on Minnesota waters in the last few years. The increased popularity of these highly maneuverable craft (with over 10,000 registered) has brought numerous calls and complaints to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and county sheriff's departments.

Most common complaint is that the personal watercraft are loud and irritating, according to Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist. "Water scooters are usually well under the state noise limit of 82 decibels at 50 feet, but the higher pitch of the engine and the water jet drive, combined with the operating style of some of the riders, gives headaches to many lakeshore residents and other boaters," said Smalley.

"The problem is that personal watercraft are often run for longer time periods in limited areas than traditional motorboats. You don't often find people in fishing boats or cabin cruisers jumping waves and running around in circles in one area as you do with water scooters," Smalley noted. "It can tend to get pretty irritating to hear a personal watercraft operating for hours at a time right in front of your cabin."

The DNR is urging people to ride responsibly. "We want personal watercraft operators to exercise courtesy towards other boaters and people on shore when operating their machines, just as we expect all boaters to do," Smalley said. "There are a number of state laws that apply specifically to water scooters, and it is the operator's responsibility to know the laws and obey them," he added.

Some of the laws include:

■ All riders and passengers must wear a Coast Guard approved life jacket.

■ Machines may not be operated between sunset and 8 a.m. the following day.

■ Riders may not travel at more than a slow no-wake speed (5 mph) within 100 feet of any shoreline, dock, swimmer, swimming raft, any moored or anchored watercraft, emergent or floating vegetation or non-motorized watercraft at any time.

■ When towing a person on water skis, or any other device, there must be either an observer on board or a factory-specified mirror on the craft.

■ A rider must have the lanyard type cut-off switch attached to clothing or body if the machine is equipped with one by the factory.

■ A person may not operate a personal watercraft if any part of the spring-loaded throttle has been altered so it interferes with the return-to-idle system.

■ Riders may not chase or harass wildlife.

■ Riders must be at least 13-years-old and possess a watercraft operator's permit to operate a personal watercraft without someone at least 18-years-old on board. In addition, 13-year-olds must be under unaided visual observation (no binoculars or telescopes) by a person at least 18 years of age.

■ People may not operate a personal watercraft in a manner that unreasonably endangers life, limb or property, such as weaving through congested watercraft traffic, or jumping the wake of another watercraft within 100 feet of the other watercraft (this includes other personal watercraft).

■ Dealers and rental operators must provide a summary of the personal watercraft laws and rules as well as safe operating instructions. Rental operators must provide a life jacket at no extra charge to the personal watercraft renter.

I don't think that many of the riders are aware of the special laws and restrictions on water scooters," Smalley said. He also noted that, in addition to the owner, there may be as many as a half-dozen or more riders taking turns on one machine.

To assist in educating operators and owners, and make lakes and rivers more enjoyable for all, the DNR is currently mailing out a personal watercraft safety brochure to every registered water scooter owner in the state. "We're hoping that when personal watercraft owners receive the pamphlet, they will take a few minutes to read it, learn the safety rules, and then make sure that anyone who is going to ride the craft also reads and understands the personal watercraft safety laws," Smalley said.

Thief River Falls backcourt club sponsored a hoop shoot contest at LaFeva beach park for the All American Festival in Thief River Falls Sunday. Despite over-cast weather many people showed up for the events taking place at the park.

Camp Sunshine short on funding

Located at Lake Bronson State Park in Kittson county, Camp Sunshine is a private, non-profit organization established to serve the recreational needs of individuals who are physically and developmentally disabled.

This year the organization will serve about 200 campers from young people through adults at five sessions beginning July 25 and continuing through August 26, according to Larry Anenson Jr. of Thief River Falls, director of the camp for the past seven years.

In addition to the camp sessions at Lake Bronson, a travel camp in the Twin Cities is being offered from August 29 through September 2.

Anenson said that Camp Sunshine has established a camper fee of $160 for the one-week camping sessions and that 200 campers would provide $32,000 toward camp expense. Donations so far have totaled $2,264. But the total camp expenses have been budgeted at $39,770, and this leaves a shortfall of $5,506.

Individuals age five and older can attend the camp, Anenson said. "We think of our campers as individuals first and their handicap second," he added. "Camp Sunshine believes that everyone is entitled to a recreational experience."

The camp operates with a staff of 20 to 30 people, mostly students, who come from all over the United States. It also has two full-time nurses to provide care 24 hours per day and a dietary staff trained to handle special diets and ensure nutritious meals.

"Our campers swim, boat, camp, play mini golf, participate in community activities, arts and crafts, nature studies and campfires," Anenson said. "We have the only camp of this type in northwestern Minnesota."

Anyone interested in contributing to support of the camp may write to Larry Anenson Jr. P.O. Box 386, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Contributors to the program to date include the Karlstad American Legion and Eagles, Stephen American Legion, Hallock Eagles Aerie 2617; Winger American Legion, North Country Snowmobile Club at Bemidji, Argyle American Legion, Thief River Falls VFW and Eagles, East Grand Forks American Legion, Middle River American Legion, New Hope WELCA at Alvarado; Lutheran Brotherhood Branch 8129, Mark and Sue Jennl, St. Cloud and Autumn Kinkead, Grand Forks, ND

No injuries reported in two vehicle accident near Greenbush

No injuries were reported in a two vehicle accident near Greenbush Sunday, which involved a Thief River Falls resident.

Minnesota state patrol received a report of an accident near Greenbush on Highway 32 at 5 p.m. According to the accident report, Larry Sehlstrom, 24, Thief River Falls, was driving a Pontiac Firebird north on Highway 32 when Bert Oorden, 87, Badger, made a left turn in front of Sehlstrom in his 1991 Chevrolet pickup. There was an estimated $3,000 damage to the Sehlstrom vehicle and $1,500 to the Oorden vehicle.

For one-year-old Richal Johnsrud, the trail was a little too long Saturday morning during An American Festival parade. Roger Johnsrud of St. Hilaire, president of the Thief River Falls Saddle Club, holds his sleeping daughter and is accompanied by his six year old son Brandon.

Parents need to know what to say and do

This is the second in a series of articles about parents, alcohol and pre-teens provided by the Minnesota Prevention Resource Center.

The first article in this series stressed that parents can have a positive influence on the choices their children make about alcohol and other drugs.

The first step for parents is to decide what they believe about alcohol and other drug use. By doing this, they develop a set of guidelines. Many parents have a set guidelines without even knowing it. Guidelines tell us when the use of alcohol and other drugs is acceptable and when it's not. Is it okay to get drunk? Is it okay to have a drink after work to relax? Is it okay to drink beer on a hunting trip?

Roger Svendsen and Tom Griffin of Health Promotion Resources developed the following guidelines. Consider these:

1) To use or not use alcohol is a personal choice. No one should feel that drinking is necessary to be accepted.

2) Family get-togethers or parties with friends can be fun without alcohol.

3) Drunkenness is unhealthy and risky.

4) There are times when people must not use alcohol and other drugs:

- when recovering from chemical dependency
- when the use is illegal
- when pregnant or breast feeding
- when operating equipment like cars, motorcycles, boats, tools, and firearms
- when swimming, skiing, climbing, or doing risky physical activities
- when working or studying
- when performing athletics or fine arts
- when taking some medicines.

5) Everyone has personal limits for alcohol use. Weight, age, feelings, and gender influence alcohol's effect. Strength and number of drinks, time between drinks, and consumption of food also play a role.

6) Party hosts can cut down on risk:

- Focus on friends and activities, not drinking.
- Offer good-looking drinks without alcohol.
- Provide food.
- Serve all drinks to guests. Avoid an "open bar."
- Tell guests which drinks contain alcohol.
- Stay alert and help guests who have too much to drink.
- Respect each person's choices about alcohol.

7) One person's use should not put another person at risk. Find another ride if the driver is drunk. Always wear seat belts. Watch out for risky sexual encounters.

Remember, first parents set their own guidelines. Then, they explain them to their children. Talk about family guidelines openly and often.

The Second Se

Warnings about Caller ID systems issued by Minn.

Minnesota Attorney General Hubert Humphrey III's office has released the following information.

Caller ID has arrived in Minnesota. US West began offering Caller ID and a host of other new services on June 21, 1994. All telephone companies serving the seven-county metro area must offer Caller ID by January 1, 1994. Several smaller telephone companies already offer the new services. Caller ID fundamentally changes the way we use the telephone and think about telephone privacy.

What is Caller ID? Caller ID is a new service which allows you to know who is calling before you answer the phone. A small display unit shows the number and name (where available) of the caller. The unit will also save the names and number of several callers to let you know who called while you were away.

Warning! Even if you don't subscribe to Caller ID, your name and phone number will be displayed each time you call someone who does have Caller ID. This will happen even if your number is non-listed or non-published.

Can I keep my number anonymous/private? Yes. Blocking is a service which prevents the caller's phone number and name from being displayed when a call is made. Instead, a Caller ID subscriber will read the words "anonymous" or "private" on the display unit when the call is blocked. There are two blocking options available to all residential customers: 1) per call blocking, and 2) per line blocking. Emergency 911 is not affected by either of the blocking options.

Per Call blocking has already been added to your line and there is no charge to use it and sign up is not necessary. All you have to do is dial *67 (1167 on rotary phones) before dialing the number you are calling. On that call your name and number are not sent; Instead the Caller ID customers will see a display of the word "private" or anonymous."

Per line blocking prevents your name and number from appearing to Caller ID customers on all calls. Instead, the word "private" or "anonymous" appears for the caller ID customer you are calling. Per line blocking must be ordered; it is not on your phone line automatically. However, there is no cost to you the first time you order per line blocking, and there is no monthly charge.

If you are a US West customer, you can remove the per line blocking on a per call basis, with One Call Unblock, *82 (1182 on rotary phones). On that one call, your name and number will display to the coller ID customer. To order per line blocking, call your local telephone company today.

If you block, be aware. If a caller blocks their name and number, the Caller ID subscriber will see the words "anonymous" or "private" on their display unit, and could then choose whether or not to answer the call. If the Caller ID subscriber uses the Anonymous Call Rejection feature (also known as "block the blocker"), the incoming caller who has blocked their call should hear the following recording: "The number you are calling does not accept blocked calls. If you wish to complete a call to this number, hang up, pick up the receiver and redial the number un-blocked."

Call Trace. Harassing or obscene calls are serious. If you receive this type of call and you feel you may need assistance from your local telephone company or your local police department, Call Trace can help. To trace a harassing or obscene call hang up after the harassing call, pick up the receiver again, press *57 immediately, and you will hear a special recording. Upon a successful trace, the telephone number of the line used by that caller will be forwarded to your telephone company. A recording will confirm that your call has been traced.

If it is a life threatening situation, or if you think it is appropriate, contact the local police department immediately after tracing the call. Call Trace will work whether or not the call was blocked.

Under normal circumstances,

Kermit the Frog and other cartoon characters pleased the children during the All American Festival in Thief River Falls. Kermit the Frog and Cookie Monster made guest appearances at the LaFava park beach Sunday.

Many people turned out for the Arcteo riders Tigershark personal watercraft demonstration at LaFeve beach park on Sunday. The demonstration was part of the All American Festival held in Thief River Falls. The weather on Sunday was overcast and a little cool, but it didn't stop the activities or interest in the events.

Parents influence what children think and do

This is the first in a series of articles about parents, alcohol and pre-teens from the Minnesota Prevention Resource Center.

Question: Do parents influence what their children think and do about alcohol and other drugs?

Answer: Positively, yes!

Parents care about the use of alcohol and other drugs by children — especially their own children. Crack houses, drug deals, and marijuana crops are in the news everywhere.

Headlines make it easy to forget alcohol and tobacco pose more risk than all other drugs. Of the 520,000 deaths each year which are due to substance abuse, over 75 per cent are due to tobacco and 20 per cent are a result of alcohol. Illegal drugs — the ones that make the front page — account for less than four per cent.

Nevertheless, these stories and numbers make parents think. They are unsure of what to do to protect their children. Some parents believe talking about alcohol will make their children curious. Some parents feel if they drink, they can't expect their children not to. Others limit their comments to: "Don't drink. It's against the law." Many parents do not say anything.

Often, young people wonder what their parents think. They assume their parents approve of underage drinking. Or, they think their parents don't care.

What parents say or do not say affects their children's choices. The research is clear. Young people are much more likely to use very little, or not at all, when they think their parents disapprove. Less than one-half of 12th graders think their parents disapprove of their alcohol use. It doesn't have to be this way.

So, what can parents do? Parents can decide what they believe is okay, or not okay, about alcohol and other drug use. This means they set some guidelines. They can be sure their children understand their guidelines. They can also teach their children by their actions. Young people are watching and listening. Parents do have an influence. Make it a positive one!

BIBLE STUDY

The secret of perpetual motion

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

The God of heaven and earth promises a glorified body that will never die or cease moving to everyone who believes and lives in Him. If that is not perpetual motion, what is? The only thing you need to do to accomplish this is repent from a life of perpetual evil and live a life of perpetual good, as Jesus Christ, our perfect example, did.

Paul, Peter and other apostles were continually admonishing people to practice being good by perpetually practicing those things that are good (Matt. 25:33-40). Paul also told people, including us, that Jesus Christ is purifying for Himself a people who are perpetually zealous for good works (Titus 2:14).

Christ is now ascended on high, where He perpetually does good in heaven. A true follower of Jesus Christ perpetually does good on earth as it is perpetually done in heaven because he is following Christ's perpetual example (Matt. 6:10).

Now if you are not learning to be good by perpetually doing good and glorifying God in heaven by doing good works daily, as Christ did, what are you doing with your free time (Matt. 5:16)? Are you still indulging in a little sin? Heaven forbid! If you are, then you are serving two gods, the god of this world—Satan, and the God of heaven—Jesus Christ (Matt. 6:24; 1 John 5:19; John 14:30). We are not to live to the flesh any longer, but only to the Spirit, so we don't carry out the desires of the flesh (Gal. 5:16). We put to death the unclean deeds and habits of the flesh by perpetually living to please God (Rom. 8:13).

So, if you want your wheels to perpetually turn, perpetually do good for God and He will perfect you (Rom. 12:1-2; Matt. 5:48).

Declaration of Independence.... A Contract Between The People And Their Government

GUEST EDITORIAL
by Bruce Thiesen
National Commander
The American Legion

In July of 1776, John Adams wrote a letter to his wife Abigail in Massachusetts. He wanted her to know about an important vote that he'd just cast in Philadelphia as a member of the Continental Congress.

The subject of his letter was the passage that day of something that would be called the Declaration of Independence.

Adams wrote his wife that a single day in July 1776 would be honored—in his words—"as the most memorable in the history of America."

That's a remarkable prediction to make about a nation that didn't even exist.

Other predictions that Adams wrote to his wife about that special day in July of 1776 were right on target, too:

"It will be celebrated by succeeding generations as a great anniversary festival. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parades, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations....from one end of the continent to the other.....from this time forward....forever more."

John Adams got only one major detail wrong in his amazing prediction—he had the wrong date.

He wrote his wife that he could foresee those parades and fireworks happening every year on July 2. That's because it was on July 2, 1776, that the Continental Congress, meeting in a secret session, actually voted on the Declaration of Independence.

However, we celebrate the Fourth of July as opposed to July 2 for two reasons. Most legal documents take effect when they are signed, which in this instance was July Fourth. More importantly, that was the day the delegates came out of their secret session and shared that incredible document with the entire world.

The Declaration of Independence established a social contract that specified the proper relationship between government and the people.

Many of the 3.1 million members of the American Legion believe our own government needs to be reminded—right now—about how that relationship is supposed to work. The issue is the protection of the American flag.

Just five years ago, the Supreme Court ruled that burning the American flag is a form of political expression protected under the First Amendment's free speech clause.

That decision outraged millions of Americans who see the flag as a sacred symbol of our country, our values, and of the brave sacrifices made by our men and women in wartime.

So, we went to our elected representatives in Congress to make our case. Congress passed a federal law outlawing desecration of the flag and eight months later the Supreme Court declared that new law unconstitutional. A subsequent attempt to pass a constitutional amendment to protect the flag failed narrowly.

Ever since, we've been working throughout The American Legion at what we call the "quiet revolution."

And so far, 44 state legislatures—representing more than 90 per cent of the American population—have formally passed resolutions asking Congress to amend the Constitution to allow the states and the federal government to enact laws to protect the flag from physical desecration.

Our "quiet revolution" is becoming louder. In the months ahead, we will ask for your support and your voice. You will be asked to join the Citizen's Flag Alliance, a broad-based coalition of Americans from every part of the country who want to see the flag protected.

"Old Glory" is precious to me. So is the idea that government should be answerable to the people.

We're hearing more these days about the search for values in America. If we need to find values, we can start with the values laid down 218 years ago in the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted....."

That's still the best statement of who we are as a people, what we hold dear, and what we will fight to preserve.

Our Nation's Flag.... Respected Or Protected?

Commander Thiesen, who wrote the article used as a guest editorial today, is a patriotic and dedicated American who has served his country in the military as well as in civilian life. His allegiance to America is above question and his devotion to our flag as a national symbol is well stated in his commentary.

This editor's opinion on the propriety of a flag protection amendment to the nation's Constitution has been stated previously. We agree with the findings of the U.S. Supreme Court regarding flag desecration, despicable and reprehensible as such acts might be.

When Commander Thiesen quotes the Constitution, he overlooks or ignores the fact that one of our nation's greatest freedoms is the right of protest. And while it is true that legitimate protest can be done without desecrating the nation's flag, the attempt to forbid such an act by Constitutional amendment certainly would place unnecessary restrictions on dissent.

Of greater need than constitutional protection for the flag is the development and cultivation of respect for it. In our own community, certainly a model of hometown America, how many people honored the flag as it passed in the parade last Saturday? No, they didn't burn it nor deliberately dishonor it, but they paid no attention to it, and that is little better.

Our veterans organizations work hard at emphasizing Americanism. They donate flags when requested, they volunteer huge amounts of time for duty in color guards, they sponsor contests and competitions and displays. But they can't instill a respect for the flag in every person at all times, and neither would a flag protection amendment. If a nation respects its flag, it won't have to protect it from its own people.

To The Editor:

Speeding through construction and maintenance road work zones continues to be a problem in Minnesota. Up to this point in 1994, there have been five very serious work zone, traffic-related incidents in our state.

These accidents give all motorists reason to pause and think about their driving behavior when driving through work zones.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation is doing everything it can to make work zones safe for the traveling public and highway workers. Motorists have a role to play as well: Obey the speed limit and drive slowly through work zones; adjust your lane position away from workers; be aware and prepare for the unexpected.

If keeping our highway workers safe and arriving at your destination without incident isn't enough incentive to slow down in work zones, there's another motivating factor. Starting July 1, people caught speeding through work zones will be assessed double fines. In addition, the Minnesota State Patrol will be utilizing extraordinary enforcement measures to maintain safe work zones.

We hope the stepped-up enforcement and double fines, along with awareness, courtesy and common sense, will ensure a safe summer and fall for highway workers and motorists.

Sincerely,
Steve Baker
District Engineer
Minnesota Department of Transportation

To The Editor:

Our daughter, Jennifer Schuler, recently completed her junior year at Lincoln High School. She was accepted for the 1993-94 school year in the Northern Expressions School of the Performing Arts. Her areas of study in the arts were drama and literary writing. As any parent can imagine, allowing Jennifer to leave home at age 16 to follow her dream was difficult. Since the school year has come to an end, we feel compelled to express our appreciation to the community of Thief River Falls. Jennifer's experiences during this school year have been everything she hoped for and more.

First, our thanks to Linda and Neil Peterson for opening their home and hearts to Jennifer. The Peterson family was an excellent match for all of us as we share common values. It was very helpful to us to know that our daughter was safe and in the best of care. Marie Hvidsten is truly an insightful person as she was responsible for making this match of child to family.

The opportunities for personal growth provided within the Performing Arts School were infinite. Mrs. Stock and Mr. Dyrud developed and implemented curriculum which impacted Jennifer's interest and skills in a remarkable way. It was apparent from the start that these teachers understand the individual student and teach to the child's strength. Jennifer's skills have been enhanced greatly. As parents, we couldn't be happier with the accomplishments she was afforded in this special setting.

Lincoln High School has much to be proud of. In addition to recognizing the value of a fine arts education, this school offers a solid course of study in all subject areas. Each of Jennifer's teachers seemed to take an interest in our daughter, realizing that she was living away from home. Their personal touches to her days assisted her in maintaining a strong work ethic.

Thief River Falls citizens, your high school is worthy of your pride. You must also be very proud of your community. In each visit to your city, we were met with friendly people. While shopping, eating in your restaurants, and visiting the school, we were warmly greeted and provided excellent service. Your kindness gave us assurances that our daughter was living in a positive environment.

The simple words "thank you" do not adequately express the gratitude we feel to your school and community. The friendships made through the year are truly valued. Thief River Falls will have a special place in our hearts, always.

Harry also presented a proposed fiscal year '95 budget which will be brought back to the Board for approval at the next meeting.

Harry informed the board of the district's intention to sell aid anticipation bonds later this summer.

Superintendent Bob Duncan reviewed the June enrollment report and reviewed his goals for the 1993-94 school year. Crew of the 560 from Thief River Falls to Glenwood on Hilary Stoltman's last day was Gary Battleson, conductor, Hilary Stoltman, engineer, and Steve Stoltman, brakeman.

Hilary Stoltman takes final ride on Soo Line

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Soo Line Engineer Hilary Stoltman of Thief River Falls took his last ride down Soo Line tracks as Engineer on Thursday, June 30. Although after 41 years everything about railroading must seem routine, this day marked the end of an era, and hopefully the start of a new phase in Stoltman's life.

After 41 years, Stoltman didn't much like working the chain gang, but if he was going to work with his son Steve, a brakeman with Soo Line, then he would have to work on the chain gang.

I learned exactly what "chain gang" meant fairly quickly. It means you're on the job seven-days a week and on call 24-hours a day without any schedule.

Trying to nail down an exit time so that I could line up transportation was a frustrating experience. I didn't know what day we would leave until the very day we left. But even then, I didn't know exactly when. First our departure was scheduled between 8 a.m. and 9 a.m., then it was between noon and 1 p.m. Later, it was scheduled for between 4 and 5:30 p.m. Even later, it became 7:45 and 8:30 p.m. After the three-man crew finally got all of the 120 cars hooked up, blocked, and ready to go it was more like 9 p.m. before we finally left Thief River Falls.

What exactly was so extraordinary about this trip, and this retirement, that a reporter was asked to ride along with Hilary Stoltman on his last run? Hilary Stoltman is the last engineer on Soo Line who worked on steam engines. He began his career with Soo Line as a fireman on a steam engine. With all but one year in Thief River Falls, Stoltman has seen a lot of changes during his career. "I could talk to you for a week and still not tell all of the stories," Stoltman said.

When Stoltman arrived at Soo Line headquarters in the 1100 block of North Atlantic on the evening of Wednesday, June 29, he was with his wife and mother. He was also carrying an overnight bag and a violin case. He explained that he plays his violin while he waits for his next train or during a layoff period. Railroad employees can only work 12 hours before having to take an eight hour rest. It used to be 16 and then it was 14, and then it was 12, Stoltman said.

In any event, being an employee for the railroad means learning to occupy your time while you wait, and not being able to make many plans. In this job, patience is a virtue, and a packed overnight bag by the door, a rule. For Stoltman, a delay means practice on his violin. He's had a lot of practice.

Much has changed over the years. The size and look of the station quarters, a small brown trailer, seems to punctuate what is now the railroad — mobile, understated, quiet. That's quite a change of the hey-day of railroading when station houses were something to be proud of and built to last and bustling with people and products to be shipped. It's quite a change from the days when being an engineer was romantic and exciting.

Hilary's wife and mother were there to see him off on his last run with the Soo Line, which is now owned by Canadian Pacific.

His mother was with him on his first day of work. It was somewhat of a disappointment to her because she said Hilary made her hide in the back seat of their car because Hilary thought if people would see her they would know he was not old enough to work on the railroad. To get the job with the railroad, Hilary told his employers he was 21 instead of 19.

As she seemed ready to launch into another story, Hilary spared no time getting on the train and to work. Either the stories were getting too embarrassing, or he didn't want to allow anything to disrupt the routine he had developed after 41 years of work. Perhaps too, he didn't want to think about this last day. He said he wasn't sure how he would react on that first day when he wouldn't have to go to work — anymore. "It will be a big change because all of a sudden, there it is."

It didn't take him long. He called during the Fourth of July weekend after his last week to say he was going on a one week boat tour of Lake of the Woods.

Steve, his son who has been a brakeman with Soo Line for about 17 years was with him on that last day as his brakeman, and Gary Batleson was the conductor on the SD60, one of the largest diesel electric engines in the Soo Line

All Nations Festival declared successful

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Like every other activity in northwestern Minnesota this summer, the second annual All Nations Cultural Festival at St. Hilaire this weekend didn't escape without rainfall. But it did have long enough dry periods to draw good crowds and most of the entertainers were able to perform at least several times over the two-day event Saturday and Sunday.

Ed Leeper of L. G. Promotions termed the event an "absolute success," then added with a laugh that "I guess you can call it a success if it doesn't lose money, right?"

That fact alone made the second annual event considerably more successful than the first. Last year the fledgling festival floundered a bit, due greatly to the fact that most people in the area didn't really know what to expect from it—including the promoter.

But those who attended liked the idea and the entertainment well enough to refuse to let the idea drop. They helped to resuscitate the event and it went forward this year with enthusiasm and sponsorships that took some of the pressure off promotion and increased the public interest.

The result was that an estimated 2,000 people attended the festival for the two days, including the participants and those with complimentary tickets in addition to the paid admissions. And there were enough paid admissions to assure the financial success of the event and further encourage promoters and sponsors to build on this year's experience and attendance.

After nearly steady rainfall for several days last week, skies cleared in time for the tents to be raised and the dance floor installed prior to the scheduled performance. Saturday events came off on schedule with stage performances by Los Catrines de Texas hispanic band; Moorhead State University Mexican, Norwegian and Scottish dancers; Musikverein Rutesheim 32-piece orchestra from Germany; Fialka Ukrainian Dance Ensemble from Selkirk, Man., Canada; French singer and fiddler Linda Clare Breitag; the Arctic Lites gymnastics show team from Thief River Falls; Fresh Tracks Drum Group and Ojibwe Dancers from the Red Lake Indian Reservation; and the Licanantay instrumental group playing the music of the Andes Mountains in Chile.

Rain delayed the schedule on Sunday as festival workers, performers and volunteers seeing a need to help out worked in the rain to move sound and stage equipment under cover. A number of the craft show participants who had been on hand since Saturday morning folded their tents and left when the rain came Sunday and French performer Linda Clare Breitag had to return to Minneapolis.

Other than that, when the rain ended and the sun shone, the rest of the performers put on their shows for the growing number of spectators.

"We're already planning for the third annual festival," Leeper told The Times Monday. "The Fialka Ukrainian Dancers were the crowd favorite both last year and this year and we have invited them back next year. We plan to have German, Norwegian and French groups once again because of the background of people in this area. And we are considering a Japanese group of eight women with a fast paced act using large drums and martial arts demonstrations."

Leeper said the second weekend of July has again been designated as the date for the cultural festival next year.

Survey sheets were distributed to people in attendance and showed general satisfaction with the program and no complaints of consequence, the promoter added. He noted that Phil Nusbaum of the Minnesota Arts Council attended the event Sunday and was pleased with the entertainment and attendance, stating that the sponsoring group was "on the edge of something very big" in promoting the cultural festival.

Leeper thanked the public for its attendance and the sponsors and all others for their support.

Five-year-old Sonny Hart, son of Kevin Hart of St. Hilaire and formerly of the Red Lake Indian Reservation, was among the Native American dancers taking part in the All Nations Cultural Festival in St. Hilaire this weekend. The performing group was known as the Fresh Tracks Drum Group and Ojibwe Dancers and was led by Deryl Augineush who introduced the numbers and was one of the dancers.

One of the busiest musicians at the All Nations Cultural Festival at St. Hilaire Saturday and Sunday had to be this member of the Licanantay group from Winnipeg, Man., Canada. The group played music from the Andes Mountains of Chile and this member played two instruments simultaneously.

Dr. Allen Scheuneman announces retirement

The decision to move to North Carolina was a remarkable one. Dr. Scheuneman began researching North Carolina and Asheville in particular after hearing some comments about North Carolina from a friend. He and Connie had been talking about retiring to an area with a more temperate climate. Without either knowing what the other was thinking they each began looking at communities in North Carolina. When they discovered they were both thinking about North Carolina, and about Asheville, they decided to look there for a new home.

Although the only people they know in North Carolina include their realtor and the people from whom they bought their home, they are looking forward to moving to a place which last year did not record a single day below zero and doesn't have any mosquitoes. A list of visitors requesting reservations at their new home is already quite lengthy.

Dr. Scheuneman said they will miss their many friends in Thief River Falls, but he believes that, "A stranger is a friend that hasn't been introduced yet". So they are looking forward to making new friends.

Although Dr. Scheuneman will not be practicing medicine anymore he doesn't believe he will have any trouble keeping busy with his many hobbies. The Horseshoe area near Asheville is an interesting place historically and there are many areas of the East Coast that he and Connie are looking forward to exploring.

Dr. Scheuneman says there have been many changes since he began his career in Family Practice. Most remarkable among these changes is the advances made in technology. In the beginning doctors were limited with what they could do. Now mind-boggling equipment assists doctors to make important life saving decisions. With these changes, however, there has been a change in structure and it has become much more expensive. So society is now faced with economic issues they did not have to face in the past.

There have been many highlights during his distinguished career including serving as a rodeo doctor at one time in Nebraska. Dr. Scheuneman said that as a result he introduced his wife to rodeo and she has become what he described as a "rodeo addict". She still enjoys the rodeo and was in the front row at each performance of the recent Thief River Falls Stampede.

Obstetrics has been his favorite part of medicine. Dr. Scheuneman said that already he has delivered a large number of second generation babies. Over his career he estimates that he has delivered approximately 3,700 babies. While in the Air Force he estimated that he delivered about 100 babies a month. While at the City of Faith in Tulsa, and the head of the Family Practice, Obstetrics and Newborn departments, he was one of two doctors assigned to the construction of the obstetrics floor of the City of Faith. He looks back on this with pride as it was a state of the art department. Another highlight, while in Tulsa, was his being granted the privilege to deliver babies by cesarean section in St. John's Hospital, a 550 bed sub-specialty hospital. Dr. Scheuneman was the only Family Practitioner ever granted this privilege.

During his career Dr. Scheuneman has treated many patients. Some years ago, he estimated that he had seen over 250,000 patients.

One of the highlights of his career was coming to Thief River Falls both in 1965 and returning in 1988. He has always appreciated the opportunity to practice at the Falls Clinic and the reception he has received from the community.

As the final day approaches Dr. Scheuneman said it is getting harder to leave. The people in Thief River Falls mean a lot to him and he believes they are among the best in the world. He and Connie will be leaving with many fond memories.

A reception for Dr. Scheuneman will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday July 17 at the Best Western Inn. Everyone is welcome.

Eeva Young, 14, won the Personal Development Award last weekend at the Miss Teen of Minnesota pageant held in St. Cloud. She is the daughter of Dr. Stephen and Paivi Young and will be a freshman at Lincoln high school next fall.

Dee takes part in Washington state conservation work

Carly Dee

Carly Dee, daughter of Wally and Mary Sjaaheim of Thief River Falls and a 1994 graduate of Lincoln high school, is working this summer as a member of the Student Conservation Association's high school volunteer program at Jim Creek Naval Center in the state of Washington.

Carly is one of more than 450 students taking part in the association's programs at state parks, forests and other land management areas nationwide. Through the program, students help government agencies manage and preserve America's rich natural resource heritage.

Carly's work project will involve trail maintenance and construction. Jim Creek is located on the western side of the Cascade Mountain range. The area is a unique example of Washington's treasured old-growth forest.

The program runs for five weeks. After four weeks of work, living in the back country in tents, crew members spend their last week on a wilderness adventure trip.

"Students join the Student Conservation Association's high school program for a variety of reasons," states Ray Auger of the SCA. "Many join for the excitement and adventure of a new way of living, many for the challenge of doing meaningful and demanding service and others for learning outdoor living and survival skills. Others want to explore a career in managing natural resources."

The Student Conservation Association, the nation's largest and oldest conservation volunteer organization, is a non-profit educational organization based in Charlestown, NH. It provides educational field experience in natural resources and conservation for high school students, college students and other adults.

Its programs, which now include Ameri Corps National Service positions, are supported by contributions from individuals, corporations, public funding sources and foundations in addition to funds from cooperating agencies.

Mandy Johnson, 17, of Thief River Falls was one of the top 10 Merit Finalists at the Miss Teen of Minnesota pageant last weekend at St. Cloud. She is the daughter of Paul and Geno Johnson and will be a senior at Lincoln high school.

Eeva Young has been a private piano student of Marcia Knuttila from 1985 to the present and has been a winner on the Northwest District Minnesota Music Teacher's Association piano contest at Moorhead State University in 1986, 1987, 1988, 1991, 1992 and 1993. She was also an alternate winner in the MMTA all-state piano contest at Normandale Community College in Bloomington in 1987, 1988, 1991 and 1993.

She has passed Levels A and B of piano theory examinations, performed in the state honor student concert at Northrop Auditorium on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis and received a superior rating in the district MMTA piano ensemble festival six years from 1986 through 1993.

Also a private flute student of Marie Hvidsten, she had been first choir flutist at Franklin Middle School for three years, participated in the Lincoln high school marching band and been a soloist and accompanist.

Eeva has won a reserve championship and grand championship in weaving through the Pennington county 4-H club program. She is also fluent in the Finnish language and was a foreign exchange student in Kuhmoinen, Finland, for three months last winter.

She has participated in College for Kids at the University of North Dakota, attended Lake Hubert tennis camp in 1992 and 1994 and summer leadership camp at St. John's preparatory school at Collegeville. She also volunteers at Northwest Medical Center.

Eeva's hobbies and interests include international travel, tennis, basketball, rollerblading, cross-country skiing, swimming, drama, weaving, playing the piano and flute, reading and playing backgammon.

FAMILY HEALTH

Sherry LaCoursiere

Women and Smoking

Many health issues today are debatable, but smoking is not one of them. There is no question that smoking is the single largest preventable cause of disease and death in the United States. Women who smoke can shorten their lives by five to eight years.

This is sobering information. And it leads to the obvious question of why women smoke. Surprisingly, one of the main reasons is that they don't know the risks of smoking. More than 40 per cent of Americans don't know that smoking causes lung cancer and another 30 per cent don't know that smoking doubles the risk of heart attack.

As teenagers, many girls are first drawn to smoking, and even if they are aware of the risks, these diseases seem far away. Instead, these young women see the habit as glamorous and get pulled into it by friends who smoke and think it's cool. On top of that, children who have parents who smoke are twice as likely to light up as those whose parents don't smoke.

Once they get started smoking, many women become physically addicated to cigarettes. They become dependent upon the nicotine that gets into their bloodstream with each cigarette. Other women get hooked because they find smoking eases stress and anxiety.

But even if it makes them feel good temporarily, smoking is exceedingly dangerous. Smoking can cause chronic lung disease including emphysema; various cancers including lung cancer, cancer of the mouth, larynx, esophagus, pancreas and bladder; heart disease; and complications during pregnancy including miscarriage, stillbirth and low birth weight babies.

The good news is that the benefits of quitting start to accrue almost immediately. You will breathe easier, be relieved of chronic coughing and have fewer and less severe colds. Fifteen years after quitting, a former smoker's risk of lung cancer returns to that of a non-smoker.

To break the habit, make sure you set realistic goals and tell friends in order to get their support. Many people get help by attending non-smoking programs, through counseling, hypnosis, and use of a nicotine patch.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

...The Perfect Purse

Women and their purses. Just this week I have decided that none of the two dozen purses I have in my closet are the right size and/or shape and I absolutely have to go purse shopping and buy myself another one. But purses are very important to women, as you well know.

Some women carry tiny little things with barely enough room for a comb, one tissue and a lip gloss. Others carry large bags that resemble suitcases — like me.

I didn't always carry around as much junk as I do now. Once upon a time I had a cute little purse with a comb, one tissue and a lip gloss in it. Then I had children.

Oh, certainly I used a diaper bag when my children were babies, but eventually the diaper bag had to go and that's when I needed a purse that was larger and larger and larger.

There were always children's things that needed to be carried around — toys, books, treats — things to keep them quiet and amused in case of an emergency. Then there were the necessities, like baby aspirin, cough syrup, tissues, whatever prescription they were taking at the time, and, of course, an extra training pants or two and probably a little baby bottle of juice.

Meanwhile, I needed to carry more things around for myself, too. Having babies is a little frazzling on the appearance so I needed hair spray, make-up, a brush as well as a comb, some powder for my nose, lots of lotions, and a little cologne for emergencies. I also began to carry around other things for emergencies like a sewing kit, scissors, pencil and paper, band aids, antiseptic cream; a little toothbrush and toothpaste in case we went to the dentist and the child had forgotten to brush his or her teeth (don't laugh about that — it really happened — I sent him into the dentist's bathroom with my little mini toothbrush and mini toothpaste and the dentist never knew he forgot to brush his teeth before we came to the office — I hope).

Then I became a working person and went back to school and I found I needed even more junk in my purse — enough to carry me through the day. At various times some of the junk I have had — in my purse — includes extra panty hose, enough pens, pencils and paper to start a stationery shop, library books (for my lunch hour), last year's Christmas list (in August), several grocery lists (none of which are for this week), three pairs of glasses (each in their own case, of course), a miniature ash tray (back in the "really olden" days when people smoked everywhere and anywhere), my address and telephone number book and a curling iron.

Also, getting older, I needed even more "gunk" to make myself presentable, so I carried around eye shadow, liner, mascara and eye brow pencil, a blush to make myself look healthy, something to put on spots on my face, nail polish to stop the runs in my pantyhose, a whole variety of lipsticks, and various other "beauty" aids.

Now I also have to carry around all of the other stuff that people need from day-to-day, like check books, a money purse, two inches of important cards (only a few of them are credit cards) and identification, like my driver's license and social security card, a gun permit, a press card and my blood type card. Well, I never know when I might need them. Usually I end up with a very large Times camera in my purse, too, along with extra film and batteries for it.

I believe I could be stranded somewhere for a month and I wouldn't need anything other than what is in my purse — except water, maybe.

Anyway, now I just cannot find the right size purse for me and all of my junk. If I try a huge purse, I just cannot carry it around with me — it is too heavy and too large — it drags on the ground. If I try to carry a smaller purse, my junk is sticking out of it and I cannot close it.

As it is, I have a permanent slump in my right shoulder from dragging my purse around on it for these many years.

Nonetheless, it is time to go shopping for a new one. There just has to be a perfect purse for me out there somewhere.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

Is anyone else tired of the rain??? Is anyone else tired of the water that remains after the rain has subsided?? I know I have had my fill of this rainy weather for a while. I imagine that others feel like me.

The rain has decided to occupy the basements of many houses – ours included. If you have driven past my house you will have noticed the beautiful decoration in our side yard – the carpeting from the basement. The fence and picnic table have become a clothesline of sorts supporting this carpet as the wind dries it. I had little hope for it, but maybe I thought too soon. I think that with a bit of sunshine and a bit of wind, the carpet will be almost like new.

We have made it a practice to keep anything we store in the basement up off the floor. We have not had any water problems in our basement, and, in fact, have felt relatively pleased with how dry our old basement has been. But, then comes this summer and its rains. Even the driest of basements can perhaps have a bit of moisture in it as ours did. We are thankful for our method of storage as nothing has been ruined by the water.

As we have moved items around in our basement to get air at the wet spots, we have had the opportunity to move around boxes which we have sealed and not opened for a few years. The temptation was too strong to not look into some of these boxes. They brought back memories of places and times gone by.

My son was digging through a box of old toys. These are the toys that were too nice to have just given away and so were placed in a box in the basement in hopes that someday a grandchild might think that they are indeed wonderful. One of the trucks that was resurrected was the old cattle truck. I immediately remember the Christmas we bought that for one of our sons. I also remember the reaction of that son, who notices details, as he realized that the grid making the cattle truck a cattle truck was simply paint, not an actual open-metal cattle-holding grid. The much anticipated gift was appreciated, but not necessarily loved as it was not really the nifty truck that had been so desired. I try to never forget that even though a child may be young, a child has feelings and desires and knows more about things than we adults give him credit for knowing. We parents thought that our son would never know the difference between the desired truck and the painted fake cattle truck. We forgot to give him credit for being an intelligent being because he was young. I hope to never forget the lesson I learned, and was once again reminded of, as we rediscovered the old cattle truck.

Other toys in the toy box that were unearthed were a couple of old wooden boats. These boats have already been passed down from my husband to his children. They have already generated memories for 2 generations of Johnson boys. As they were removed from the box, and brought to the river to see if they truly still floated, I could see that memories were surfacing for both generations of "boys" that had played with these boats. They are not beautiful boats. They are very crude, probably hand made, and now worn of any paint. Yet they evoked memories of dreams of other places. They probably were the means for many daydreams around the world for these two generations. They remind me that generations in a family are not that different. Each generation has their daydreams that perhaps sometimes turn into reality.

The water in our basement has caused a lot of unexpected work. It has caused some inconvenience. It is not terrible. It is not a disaster as the water covering the crops is. And, in spite of its hassle, it has brought back reminders of times we have shared. It could even be considered a blessing in disguise as we remember once again the value of one another.

PARENTING TIPS

Families On The Go

Today's families have a lifestyle that is much different from what families had twenty or thirty years ago. Today's families are on the go! They go out to work, play and eat. They go shopping, to sporting events and traveling. In addition about 25% move each year. Parents need to remember that children don't always travel as easily as adults. However, with some advance planning and preparation, children can enjoy outings as much as adults.

Here are some tips for outings of any kind (in or out of town):

- Whenever possible plan around your child's nap time.
- Keep a few disposable diapers in your car's glove compartment. To make clean-up's easier, tuck a packaged towelette and a plastic bag inside of each diaper.
- Freeze a plastic container 1/3 to 1/2 full of water. When you are ready to go, fill the container with water for a long lasting, cold, thirst quencher. Water is healthy, quenches the thirst and isn't messy if spilled.
- Always carry a change of clothes for young children.
- Avoid shopping, when you can, by catalog shopping. You can compare prices in peace and quiet as well as save time, money and gasoline.

Hanson herd tops DHIA May report

Mark Hanson dairy herd led the Pennington County Dairy Herd Improvement Association report for the month of May with an average of 68.8 pounds of milk and 2.22 pounds of butterfat per day. Eighty-nine per cent of the 55 cow herd was in milk during May.

Second place herd was owned by Doug and Gloria Barth. This 36-cow herd, 100 per cent of which was in milk, averaged 66.3 pounds of milk and 2.27 pounds of butterfat.

Ketty and Gary Lundeen had the third place herd with 98 per cent of the 43 cow herd in milk and averaging 65.2 pounds of milk and 2.24 pounds of butterfat.

Other herds in the top 10 in the association included the following with number of cows in the herd, percentage in milk, average pounds of milk and average pounds of butterfat listed respectively:

Kevin Kalt, 64, 95%, 64 and 2.33; Walter Bros. Farm, 135, 90%, 63.3 and 2.09; L & R Dairy (3x per day milking), 123, 93%, 61 and 1.90; Jim and Karen Pearson, 43, 91%, 59.7 and 2.26; Lyle Swanson, 50, 86%, 59.3 and 1.92; Tom Koop, 31, 97%, 59 and 2.20; and Bob Schindler, 48, 85%, 58.9 and 1.92.

Since total production is averaged over all the cows in the herd, the number of dry cows will affect the average. Averaging is done to give the dairy farmer a record of the herd's earning power for the month.

There were 25 official DHIA herds in the Pennington county association for the month of May, according to Randy and Margaret Rasmussen, supervisors.

Meeting here on HIV and STD issues

Ideas and recommendations for dealing with sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) and HIV—the virus that causes AIDS—will be heard at a regional planning meeting sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Health Tuesday, July 26, at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls.

The HIV/STD prevention session is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the services planning session for the health and social service needs of people living with HIV disease is scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. Participants can attend one or both sessions.

Similar meetings are being held throughout August and December in Mankato, Rochester, Marshall, St. Cloud, Fergus Falls and Cloquet.

Invited to attend the meetings are health professionals, educators, young people, people living with or affected by HIV/AIDS and other interested persons. Ideas and recommendations from the planning meetings will be considered by the Commissioner's Task Force on HIV/STD Community Prevention and reflected in the state's 1995-96 AIDS/STD prevention and services plan.

Persons living with or affected by HIV—as well as those who provide HIV-related care and support services—are especially encouraged to attend these sessions. It is necessary to pre-register at least four working days before the meeting in order to reserve a lunch, which will be provided. Child care, travel expenses and a stipend will be paid for those who demonstrate need.

To register or obtain more information, call Tina Klein at (612) 623-5232. Collect calls will be accepted.

Grand Finale set for this summer's library program

Jinny Sue and the Sign Painters from Bagley will present the grand finale program for the Thief River Falls public library's "Go WILD for Libraries" children's summer library program on Thursday, July 21, at 2 p.m. There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome to attend.

Certificates for those who have completed the summer reading program, reading program raffles and the library store will be held directly after the singing group's presentation. Children involved in the reading program must complete recording their books on their forms by July 18.

Jinny Sue and the Sign Painters features original songs done vocally and in sign language. Jinny Foldoe has been composing songs for over 20 years. She began composing songs geared around the tri-state summer library program in 1992 and her dulcimer rendition of "Sunshine is Starshine" resounded in programs in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Her specially designed songs were such a hit that she has composed songs specifically around summer library themes ever since. While her program last year featured songs done on the banjo, she has composed this year's songs (including "You Can Be a Toucan, Too") on the guitar.

Foldoe's early music history began with piano and oboe training in New York City. However, when she moved to the Minnesota woods to get in touch with nature, she also began exploring other musical instruments. Since she is a popular performer both as a singer and a puppeteer, she was away from home a great deal. To see more of her family, she decided to take her children with her for her performances.

Jinny Sue's family sings with her and performs all the songs in sign language. When they were trying to decide on a group name, the "Sign Painters" seemed perfect because they are "painting the songs" through the use of sign language.

Foldoe notes that the family is excited to be coming to the Thief River Falls area. "We love this year's program!" she exclaimed. "Our toucan song has a latin beat and a dialect featuring the clown of the jungle—the toucan. And we plan to have a drawing for a free stuffed toucan toy, too."

For more information about the program, contact the Thief River Falls Public Library at 101 East First Street in Thief River Falls, phone 681-4325.

Parents need to develop guidelines about drug use

This is the fourth article in a series prepared by Minnesota Prevention Resource Center on parents, alcohol and pre-teens.

This article series has stressed how parents influence their children's choices about alcohol and other drug use. Parents give clear messages to their children through their words and actions.

Despite some parents' best efforts, some young people will not get the message. They may choose to listen to others that encourage them to use alcohol and other drugs. If that happens, it is important for parents to know what to say and what to do if they are concerned about their son or daughter.

First, talk directly to your child. Tell your child that you care and that you are concerned about the behavior you are seeing. Focus on the behavior, rather than the child.

Then, stop talking and listen. Be open to what your child has to say about your concerns.

Next, tell your child what you want to happen. Your child needs to know what you expect and how you want the behavior to change.

The final step is to offer help. Show your support by telling your child what you are willing and able to do.

These steps may sound simple, but they do require parents to plan ahead. The better prepared you are to talk to your child, the more likely it is that he or she will listen.

This approach works for some people. Others need to seek professional help. Check with your health insurance provider about counseling services or contact your county social services agency or your child's school counselor. Getting help sends another important message to your child. It says that you care.

For more information, contact the Minnesota Prevention Resource Center a 2829 Verndale Avenue, Anoka, MN 55303 or call 1-800-247-1303. The Minnesota Prevention Resource Center (MPRC) offers public education materials, videotapes, a reference library, and speakers on alcohol, tobacco, and other drug use problem prevention. MPRC is funded by the Minnesota Department of Human Services.

Your Times

Allows readers to speak out on a variety of issues

You might begin noticing an occasional "salvaged food" in grocery stores from now on. That's because Minnesota passed a strong Salvage Food Regulation Act in 1994, and it took effect July 1.

Every year in the United States, warehouse fires and natural disasters damage many tons of food. Some of the tainted food goes to waste, but a lot of it ends up on dinner plates around the country.

No federal law assures that salvaged food is inspected and found safe to eat. State regulations regarding the sale of salvaged food vary widely.

Until the new law was passed this year, Minnesota attracted salvaged food because its laws and regulations were relatively lax. One particular incident, resulting from an underground cold storage fire in Kansas City Kansas in 1991-92, attracted the attention of Minnesota legislators and the Department of Agriculture.

Much of the salvaged food from the four-month Kansas City fire ended up on grocery shelves in Minnesota stores. Individually wrapped cheese slices were found contaminated with chloroform and toluene. Astonishingly, Federal Food and Drug Administration officials did not halt distribution.

The new law in Minnesota requires all food reclaimed from fires, floods, significant temperature changes or other accidents that might endanger its quality, to be clearly labeled "salvaged food" or reconditioned food."

Stores selling salvaged food must label each retail package or notify consumers that the food is salvaged by posting a conspicuous "salvaged" or "reconditioned" placard at the display location.

Much of the problem with dumping of salvaged food into the retail market has come form wholesalers who specialize in dealing with food removed from disaster scenes. Under the new law, people selling salvaged food at the wholesale level must be licensed as a salvaged food distributor. Salvaged food processors and distributors must keep written records regarding the date when such food was received, its condition, the source of the food and to whom the food was sold.

In addition, the state will be studying the need for any further regulation and will report its findings to the Legislature by January 15, 1995.

Salvaged food can be just as nutritious and safe as food that goes through the normal processing route. However, it should be given the special attention provided in the new state law. Consumers have a right to know when food is salvaged, and make an informal decision about whether they want to buy it.

Obviously, food is one of the essential needs of life. Our system of food distribution in Minnesota has been regarded as one of the safest and most efficient in the world. The new Salvaged Food Regulation Act preserves and enhances that image.

Reducing costs of air conditioning

Following a few simple operation and maintenance guidelines can reduce air conditioning costs, according to the Minnesota Department of Public Service (DPS).

"Consumer demand for electricity during the summer is quickly surpassing the winter time demand in most parts of the state," says Kris Sanda, DPS commissioner. "This is due to our increasing reliance on air conditioning. A significant portion of this energy could be saved with very little effort."

The following list of do's and don'ts, suggested by DPS energy specialists, can help home owners reduce their energy use and cooling costs.

• Don't oversize your air conditioner. Too large a unit will cool the house too quickly without effectively removing the humidity, leaving you feeling cold and clammy. Properly sized units will run a longer cooling cycle, which is the most efficient at cooling and dehumidifying. Have a professional contractor calculate the cooling load of your home to ensure that you get the right size.

• Don't expect your room-sized air conditioner to cool your whole house. Using too small a unit can be costly. Central air conditioning is often more economical than trying to cool multiple rooms with one or two window units that would have to run continuously to keep the area cool.

• Don't exceed a 20 degree difference between indoor and outdoor temperatures. Generally, keeping the thermostat set at 78 degrees is recommended for comfort and economy.

• Do keep the condenser unit shaded, if possible. Eliminate wasted energy and cost by keeping the condenser (the outside unit) shaded. Ideally, window units should be placed in the middle of the area to be cooled and on the north or shady side of the house. A central air condenser also should be placed on the north, or shady side.

• Do take advantoge of utility programs that offer to cycle your air conditioning off and on at regular intervals. Savings are guaranteed with little or no chango in comfort level. If no such programs are available in your area, install a timer or clock thermostat to control the unit's operating times according to your daily schedule.

• Do perform regular maintenance. Replace the unit's filter monthly and keep the outside coils free from dirt, dust and debris. The fins can be cleaned with a garden hose and fin "combs" can be purchased at hardware stores, if needed.

• Do have a professional tune-up completed every two years. This should includo cleaning the interior and exterior coils, checking the belts, bearings and electrical systems and checking for refrigerant leaks. Make sure the contractor follows Environmental Protection Agency standards in recycling the refrigerant since current refrigerants are believed to contribute to global warming.

Battle sexual assault with education and awareness

Govemor Arno Carlson recently declared a Sexual Assault Awareness month to focus public attention on this pervasive crime, which thrives in secrecy, and which will only get worse until we do more to combat it.

Sexual assault is increasing at an alarming rate throughout Minnesota, and that includes our home here in Pennington county.

In Minnesota alone, sexual assault programs responded to more than 9,000 cases last year.

Here in our area, the Violence Intervention Project in Thief River Falls has responded to 143 cases in Pennington county, 71 cases in Norman county, 47 cases in Roseau county and 96 cases in Polk county in 1993.

There may be even more cases this year — unless strong measures are taken to turn the tide.

Consider these facts:

• By the most conservative estimates, one in three women will be raped in her lifetime. That means if you have three daughters, the statistical chance is 100 per cent that one of them will be raped.

• In the United States, 1.3 adult women are raped each minute.

• One in four girls, and one in seven boys, will be sexually assaulted before they finish high school.

• Every single person in Minnesota is affected by sexual assault either directly or indirectly. Sooner or later, the tragedy of sexual assault reaches all of us.

• Rape has increased four times faster in the past 10 years than any other crime — but less than 40 of reported rape cases result in convictions.

• 83 per cent of raped adolescents do not report the crime; 71.4 per cent of young adults do not report, and 68.4 per cent of raped adults did not report the crime to the police.

And the statistics go on, but you get the picture. The bottom line is that sexual assault is an enormous problem and — right at this minute — the problem is getting worse, and it's getting worse fast.

Sexual assault breaks down the fabric of society. In addition to the emotional and psychological agony of each victim, rape leads to social and economic losses of truly incalculable proportions. People who are raped may lose their ability to function effectively at their jobs; the crime of rape burdens our police and prison system, and causes millions of dollars in health-care related expenses everyyear.

Whether you want to look at sexual assault from the standpoint of how it destroys an individual life, or as a threat to society, no one can deny that it is a problem needing strong, immediate action.

There are no simple answers to the sexual assault dilemma, but here in Minnesota we have a proud tradition of innovating solutions, and for supporting grassroots initiatives that can solve even the most difficult problems.

As a citizen of your particular Minnesota community, you can do something today to make sure the rate of sexual assault goes down this year, rather than up.

Fighting sexual assault is difficult, but far from impossible. Your efforts will make a diference — but first you have to take action.

Last year, community based grassroots sexual assault programs provided about 50,000 services to more than 9,000 victims of sexual violence, trained 13,000 professionals, and educated some 135,000 members of the public.

That's a good start, but we need to do even better. With every person reached, with every awareness set in place, a potential sexual assault can be prevented from ever happening.

Awareness and education will go a long way. The Violence Intervention Project has outreach workers who can come to your local event for speaking or to provide information. Outreach workers are also available to train professional and community groups in handling cases of sexual assault.

You can call the Violence Intervention Project toll free at 1-800-660-6667 for information on all of the services they provide to take care of the problems of sexual assault in our community.

One agency can't accomplish the job, however. To have fewer cases of sexual assault in 1994, each member of the community must have awareness that this crime may very well affect them any day — perhaps even today. Stop it before it happens. Be aware that sexual assault is among us. Contact the Violence Intervention Project to stop it where it is.

EMPLOYEE PROFILE:

Thief River Falls Times, Northern Watch and Print Shop established 1911

Scott Stenvik

Production Supervisor Assistant

Scott has worked for The Times for seven years but, chances are, you haven't been lucky enough to meet him. He works in the back part of the building, in the commercial printing department of The Times.

He can be found running nearly any of the large machines that are used to print and make your brochures, posters, printed letterheads and envelopes, or things like the "Printer's Press" newsletter distributed by The Times.

Scott knows how to do just about everything else that is done in the back part of The Times. He works with the big printing press that actually prints the newspapers and does folding, laminating and stripping. He keeps the array of equipment running, and helps out in the bindery, where booklets and job orders are put together. He also helps with the large camera that makes page-size negatives for printing the newspaper and with the printing plate processing equipment.

When asked to describe what he does, Scott said, "It's hard to explain. I do just about everything," and it certainly looks that way.

Scott was born and raised in Goodridge with his five brothers. His parents, Norman and Lorraine Stenvik, still live there, where his dad runs Country Heating of Goodridge.

Scott is married to the former Gwen Viken from Roseau and they have two children, Jackie, age seven, and Danielle, five. Both of the girls will be attending school in Thief River Falls this fall.

Gwen is a nurse's aid on the second floor CNC unit of Northwest Medical Center. Scott says she is easy to recognize. "She is the shortest nurse's aid there."

Scott and his family enjoy camping in the summer as often as possible. He said he likes to do woodworking in his spare time, but what he does might be considered more than that, because he has renovated his home with his "woodworking" abilities. He also likes four-wheeling and is an avid hunter, especially when it comes to those elusive deer.

Hilary Stoltman takes final ride on the Soo Line

Hilary said Canadian Pacific, the new owner of Soo Line, has ordered 120 of the huge SD80s. Trains are nearly completely computerized now. When he started, there were on computers, just best guesses. The old steam engines were an unfathomable maze of pipes, valves, gauges and levers. As a fireman, Hilary learned tricks to keeping the hungry engines fed with coal, which he learned on the job.

Now engineers go to school and watch the dials and computer readouts. They also haul a lot more. The thrum of the huge SD60 comes from an engine with 3,800 horse power. (The SD80s Soo Line will get will have 4,400 horse power and are on alternating currents. All diesel engines up to this point have been direct current).

There are many other differences between the days of the steam engine and the diesel electric giants now on the tracks. For instance, there are only three crewman on each train now. Depending on the outcome of a possible strike, a crew of three might become a crew of two. Hilary said that when he started there were six crew per train.

With the train "blocked" or put into blocks so that they could be removed in blocks at their destination, the No. 560 from Thief River Falls to Glenwood began to pull out of Thief River Falls. As we passed over Eighth Street and First Street, I couldn't help but feel a little smog. Instead of waiting for a train, I was now on the train. Perhaps I might have felt a tinge of guilt had it been noon or 5 p.m. when traffic is relatively heavy in Thief River Falls, but it was about 9:30 p.m. and there only a few cars backed up on the streets.

The hazards of being a railroad employee have also changed, but they haven't been eliminated. Just as the train was leaving Thief River Falls, three youngsters went past the crossbars and parked themselves on the tracks on First Street as the 120-car train rumbled toward them. When the train was less than 25 feet away they finally decided to get off the track, which prompted Steve Stoltman to exclaim, "See what we have to put up with."

The entire length of the 120-car train was 7,815 feet. The total gross weight, including locomotives was 8,687 tons. Even traveling at the yard limit of 10 miles per hour it would have taken quite a bit of time to stop such a train. (A 120-car train is the maximum allowable length. At one time there could be as many as 200, but it was reduced as a result of an agreement.) At 40 miles per hour, it takes about one mile to stop a fully loaded train.

Stoltman said he has been involved in some fatal accidents during his 41 years. As any engineer or any crew member on a train will say, being up in the engine gives you a very good view of what is happening on the track. Once a train collides with an object, however, there isn't much that can be done for many terrifying moments.

All kinds of safety devices and back up equipment are built into the trains and the track system of today. Stoltman explained that if he didn't make an adjustment to the equipment every few minutes, for example, a loud beeper would sound. If the engineer doesn't respond or for some reason can't respond, the train automatically brakes to a stop.

The trains being operated today are vastly different than the steam engines Stoltman started with. Most are computerized. All kinds of equipment keeps track of what's happening on the train, which it records and provides to the engineer.

Crews are paid by the piece, which is why they rush about to get the job done. They get paid the same whether it takes six hours or 12 hours to complete. Battleson said however, that they don't dare speed however, because equipment in the train detects and records speed, whether the brakes are being used properly, whether the train whistle is being used properly and many other things.

Safety devices are also built into the tracks. Every 25 miles or so, the train passed over a train scanner which then called the crew, and in an electronic voice, reported how many cars were hooked to the train and whether there are any hot spots or problems with the train.

The caboose like the steam locomotive, is now relegated to a sidetrack in history. An end-of-train device (EOT) along with computerized paperwork has enabled railroads to eliminate the caboose on most trains. The telemetry device in the engine receives information, such as when the last car moved, whether it moved forward or backward, how much air is in the lines, when the last car set up and released, and when brakes were set up and released.

Crewmen used to use hand signals. To a degree, they still use hand signals, but crew use radios now and are connected by another separate frequency directly to the home office in Milwaukee. Being connected to an office by radio in Milwaukee can cause a few delays sometimes, especially if the dispatcher isn't familiar with the tracks, but they too are connected to computers and it is nearly impossible to provide a conductor with the wrong set of instructions. An error in instructions is automatically refused by the computer and the dispatcher has to start over again.

After that first moment of anxiety and terror in Thief River Falls when three youngsters played chicken with the train, I settled in to the rhythm of the train and began to relax, without a hot cup of instant coffee, it would have been difficult to remain awake. The train picked up speed to about 40 miles per hour once out of the yard, and it rumbled down the tracks swaying gently back and forth. Lush greenery and water-covered fields slid by, and white-tail deer fled from the noise of the train.

Stoltman believes being an engineer has been a great job. Other than odd hours, being an engineer is kind of like combining the best of a desk job and outdoor job. "It has been an interesting life," he said.

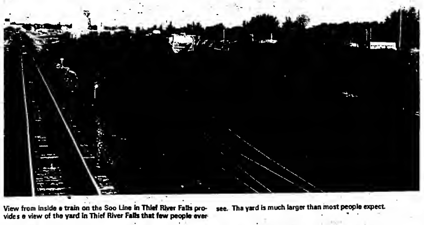
As he neared retirement, Stoltman reflected on the years of being an engineer. He conservatively estimated that he has traveled roughly 3,000 miles per month by rail and over the 41 years, covered a total of about 1,475,000 miles.

If anyone cares to count, there are 3,100 railroad ties per mile. So that means he has traveled over roughly 4.5 billion railroad ties.

Many people are fascinated by trains. Whether we realize it or not, our lives have been changed by and are still being changed by railroads. Most of us are used to being able to go to the grocery store and find just what we want. The impact railroads have on our lives isn't as dramatic as it was when steam engines first began delivering products to grocery shelves. Perhaps too, in the beginning, they were remarkable machines that sparked imagination and made people wonder what else the future would bring. Perhaps the sounds of the engine also attracted many people. The sigh of an engine at rest, the chug of an engine at work seemed so human-like and alive, that people could relate to them.

Trains have brought us our food, appliances, tractors, automobiles and fuel to heat our homes. They have carried fathers and brothers off to war, and brought families together. They still play an important role in our lives. They still carry many products to market and our tables. Yet, they do so without much fanfare or flare and so do not attract as many admirers.

My return trip began at Mahnomen. Because of my time constraints and the lateness of the hour (midnight), it didn't make much sense to go much further. I caught a ride back with the crew of Gerald Schuster, conductor, John Rambeck, engineer, and Mike Kennedy, brakeman. My day, which began at about 5:30 a.m. ended at 3:30 a.m. Hilary Stoltman tied up in Thief River Falls at 11:20 p.m. on June 30.



View from inside a train on the Soo Line in Thief River Falls provides a view of the yard in Thief River Falls that few people ever see. The yard is much larger than most people expect.

Hilary Stoltman talks about some of the equipment inside the engine of an SD60. His last day as an engineer with the Soo Line was on June 30. He has worked for Soo Line for 41 years and is widely believed to be the last person on the Soo Line to work on steam engines.

In 1953 and in 1994, Hilary Stoltman posed for a picture on the 1024 which is now on rails at the old Soo Line depot on Third Street. Stoltman was a fireman on the 1024 when it was operational.

TRF fishing clinic will be presented Aug. 11

Fishing clinic for boys and girls ages 8-14 will be held Thursday, Aug. 11, at the Red Robe Park fishing pier on the Red Lake River in Thief River Falls.

In an effort to expand and utilize fishing opportunities in the Thief and Red Lake rivers, youngsters will be given the chance to learn to identify fish and fish habitat, while also trying their hand at catching a fish during the 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. program presented by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Minnaqua program and the Thief River Falls Parks & Recreation Department.

Trained instructors conduct the program, which includes hands-on activities such as fish identification, pop can casting, food web tag, and fishing. Participants also learn sportsmanship, safety, the basis of water ecology, and fishing techniques.

Adults interested in helping with the training programs are invited to contact the Parks & Recreation Department by calling 681-2519. Parents are also welcome, and encouraged to attend the clinic.

Pre-registration is required. Registration deadline is Aug. 5. Registration fee is $2.

Chargers' camp has TRF ties

by Mike Lundgren, Sports Editor

There is a Thief River Falls connection to the San Diego Chargers heading into the start of training camp this week for the National Football League team.

Rookie defensive tackle Blaine Berger, who was born in Thief River Falls and still has a number of relatives living in the area, signed a free agent contract this spring with the Chargers. He attended the team's mini-camps in mid-April and early June in preparation for the start of regular training camp.

Berger moved from Thief River Falls when he was 5 years old, but returned each summer and was involved in the Thief River Falls youth baseball program through the age of 15. He still visits regularly.

The 6-5, 295-pound Berger wound up earning Idaho all-state high school football honors at Idaho Falls and honorable mention all-conference recognition at the University of Utah, where he graduated this spring with a degree in sociology/criminology.

"I'm really excited about the opportunity," said Berger about his shot at the NFL in a telephone conversation from Idaho Falls earlier this week. "Football is my life! I've really put a lot of work and effort into it."

Hard work, explained Berger, enabled him to play college football, and draw the attention of professional scouts. "I learned work ethic from my family," he said. "It's a blue-collar, hard-working type family. They have really helped me. They have been very supportive in everything I've done."

The 1989 Idaho Falls graduate made five recruiting visits before selecting the University of Utah, located 3 1/2 hours away in Salt Lake City.

A change in the coaching staff after back-to-back 4-7 finishes helped turn the Utah program into a winner and a bowl game participant in Berger's final two years at the school.

A regular visitor to the weight room over the years, Berger has added a daily dose of road work to his NFL preparation routine in an effort to be at peak physical condition when the Chargers' camp opens today (Wednesday) at the University of California-San Diego in La Jolla. Rookies will have the camp to themselves until Sunday when the veterans are scheduled to report.

"San Diego is a little weak in the defensive line," noted Berger in assessing his NFL chances with the Chargers. But he is just one of five free agent defensive linemen expected to be among a field of 16 players vying for eight roster spots.

The odds might not be great, but Berger is living a dream of fans everywhere by just putting on an NFL uniform and competing for a job in professional football.

"If I don't make it, I guess I'll start job hunting," said Berger. "But right now I'm concentrating on football. This is what I've been working for."

A nationally-televised San Diego vs. Atlanta Hall of Fame match-up July 30 will open the 1994 National Football League preseason schedule.

Hunting dates are announced

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials have announced hunting and trapping dates for 1994.

With the return of normal weather providing nearly ideal conditions for nesting and brood-rearing, DNR personnel are predicting improved hunting prospects this fall.

Overall outlook for most game species is very good, said DNR Commissioner Rod Sando. "Deer, bear and moose populations are very healthy, pheasants and ruffed grouse appear to be on the increase, and the state's breeding waterfowl populations are the highest in recent history," Sando said.

Most hunting and trapping regulations will be similar to 1993, according to Sando. The biggest change will be the blaze orange requirement for hunters and trappers during the firearms deer season, and the expanded statewide muzzleloader season beginning in late November.

More detailed information about upland game and waterfowl populations will be available in late summer, when surveys to assess production have been completed.

Deer

Deer populations are being stabilized at or near population goal levels in most areas of the state, and another very good season is expected in 1994, according to Sando. The archery deer season will open Sept. 17, firearms deer season Nov. 5, and muzzleloader deer season Nov. 26.

Antlerless permits will be down somewhat in the forested and transition areas, and about the same in farmland areas of the state, compared to 1993.

Application deadline for antlerless permits and special hunt permits will be Thursday, Sept. 8. A total of 199,650 antlerless deer permits will be available in 1994; a 15 percent decline from last year, but still the third highest number ever offered. Compared to 1993, antlerless permits are down 34 percent in Zone 1 (northeastern Minnesota); down 17 percent in Zone 2 (northwest to east-central transition areas); down 20 percent in Zone 3 (southeast); and down 3 percent in Zone 4 (southern and western Minnesota).

Deer licenses, applications and regulations will be available in early August.

Most significant regulation changes for deer hunters this fall include:

■ During the firearms deer season, all hunters and trappers must wear blaze orange on the visible portion of the cap and the outer clothing above the waist, excluding sleeves and gloves. Red is no longer a legal color.

■ Muzzleloader season is now statewide, except for several permit areas in the arrowhead region of northeastern Minnesota that are closed to protect wintering deer. Parks and refuges closed to firearms deer hunting are also closed during the muzzleloading season.

■ Restrictions on possession of firearms capable of taking deer have been relaxed for the muzzleloader season. This change will allow the use of centerfire rifles by predator hunters during the season.

■ New Intensive Harvest Permits allow taking of additional deer in some urban and special areas.

■ Archery deer licenses no longer must be purchased before the firearms-deer season. However, any archery deer license purchased after the Sept. 17 opening of the archery season is not valid for five days.

■ Archers are no longer restricted to bucks-only during the firearms deer season. Previously, archers were restricted to bucks-only to aid enforcement of protections on antlerless deer. The restriction is no longer needed because modern forensic tests can easily determine whether a deer was shot by a firearms or a bow.

■ Pennington County has been added to the experimental two-deer area in the northwest that previously included Kittson, Marshall, Roseau, and Lake of the Woods counties. Hunters can take one deer on their regular firearms license and another on their regular archery license. Persons wanting to participate in this two-deer hunt are no longer required to obtain a separate two-deer permits, but must still take and register both deer in the five-county area.

■ A person with disabilities who has a permit to shoot from a motor vehicle may take a deer of either sex, but party hunting is restricted.

■ Nonresidents may obtain multi-zone buck licenses. The cost is twice the regular nonresident license fee ($220).

Small Game

Small game hunting regulations are unchanged from 1993. However, resident veterans with a 100 percent service-related disability may now obtain a free small game license.

■ Pheasants/gray (Hungarian) partridge. No statewide population surveys are conducted for these species in the spring. However, information from 15 southern Minnesota study areas indicates an increase in pheasant breeding populations of approximately 50 percent, and a decrease in gray partridge of approximately 60 percent compared to 1993. These numbers for pheasants are probably not representative of the entire pheasant range, particularly west-central Minnesota, where deep snows persisted throughout much of the winter. A better assessment of fall populations will be available after completion of the roadside counts in late August.

■ Drumming counts of male ruffed grouse were up 29 percent statewide compared to 1993, including an 89 percent increase in the northwest range, 25 percent increase in north-central Minnesota, a stable count in the northeast, a 17 percent decrease in the central hardwoods, and a 20 percent drop in the southeast.

■ Sharp-tailed grouse declined for the fourth consecutive year, and continue their general downward trend of the past two decades. Dancing ground counts of male sharp-tailed grouse declined 9 percent in the east-central range and were stable in the northwest. Areas closed in 1993 to protect remnant sharptail populations until habitat conditions improve will be continued.

■ Snowshoe hare counts continue to be low. Rabbit and squirrel prospects should be good.

Furbearers

Many furbearer populations continued to increase in 1993, but red fox numbers in farmland areas of Minnesota declined for the third consecutive year – a decline attributed to an increase in mange, caused by a parasitic mite.

The 1994 Legislature extended the red fox and raccoon seasons year-around. However, they are still protected species and all other trapping and hunting regulations apply. Mink, muskrat, beaver and otter seasons will not have a zoned opener this year. Legal hours for tending traps have been extended to 10 p.m.

Ducks/Geese

Waterfowl-season dates and bag limits will not be set until the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announces the federal framework within which states must select their regulations. The framework includes the earliest opening date, bag limits, and the maximum number of days allowed for hunting. The proposed framework is announced in August, after the waterfowl population status has been evaluated. At this time, the state is proposing an Oct. 1 waterfowl opener.

Total breeding mallards and blue-wing teal in Minnesota this year increased 33 percent and 48 percent, respectively, from 1993 counts. Mallard populations were the highest since the current survey began in 1968. Blue-winged teal were the highest in 10 years.

Habitat conditions for breeding waterfowl were good to excellent throughout much of Minnesota.

Resident Canada goose breeding populations increased 11 percent from 1993 and were 39 percent above the 10-year average.

Early goose hunts in the Twin Cities and southwestern Minnesota will be continued, and the early hunt in west-central Minnesota will be expanded southward from Fergus Falls and Alexandria to include the Benson area. The 10-day hunts, held to better manage resident giant Canada geese, will begin Sept. 3. Applications for the early goose hunts will be available later this month.

Hike/Bike State Park Program

Want to hike or bike some of the most beautiful areas of the state? Minnesota state parks-sponsored Volkssport events offer you that opportunity.

Theme for this year's program – designed to encourage the public to enjoy the beauty of Minnesota as they participate in activities that contribute to a healthy lifestyle – is Walk Minnesota.

Most Volksmarch hikes cover 10 kilometers. Competition isn't part of the sport, so it's perfect for families and friends who love to exercise outdoors, at their own pace.

Any day of the week from now through Labor Day, the public may walk the trails at Savanna Portage or Lake Bronson state parks. Myre Big Island, Lake Maria and Frontenac state parks are sponsoring Volksmarch events on weekends through the summer and fall. In August, hikers can explore Crow Wing State Park on rolling trails that wind along the Mississippi River.

Other hiking highlights include the river bluffs of the Mississippi and St. Croix at Afton, Frontenac and O.L. Kipp state parks, or a hike along the Mississippi River at historic Fort Snelling State Park, where the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers meet.

In September, Lake Bemidji State Park will offer a hike Sept. 10-11 that will take participants along the northeast shore of Lake Bemidji and through pine woods and the bog area. A bike will be held Sept. 11.

Anyone may participate in the events and walk for free, but each person must register and begin with a start card. There is a registration fee of $2 for those who want to earn credit toward International Federation of Popular Sports. For those who want to earn credit plus an award for completing the hike, the registration fee is $4.50.

Events of 10 kilometers or longer are sponsored by the American Volkssport Association. Shorter treks of 5 to 8 kilometers have been designed for the disabled who could not otherwise finish a full 10-kilometer trail. Disabled participants may earn awards and credit for the shorter distances.

For a copy of the booklet that lists the dates and locations of Minnesota state parks Volkssport events, call the Department of Natural Resources Information Center toll free in Minnesota at 1-800-766-6000.

Environmental Tips for Boaters

Clean water is the foundation for enjoyable boating and fishing. The Department of Natural Resources and the Pollution Control Agency have a few tips to help make sure that our lakes and rivers remain enjoyable places to recreate.

■ More than 10,000 boats in Minnesota have some type of marine toilet on board. It is illegal to deposit untreated sewage in the water anywhere in the state. All marine toilet waste must be retained on board for proper disposal on shore, with the exception of three areas where boat sewage can be treated and discharged using a Coast Guard Certified marine sanitation device – Lake Superior and the St. Louis River below the Fond du Lac Dam, St. Croix River downstream of Taylors Falls, Mississippi River downstream of Hastings.

■ It is illegal to discharge oil and gasoline into the water. Spills can be avoided by ensuring that built-in fuel tanks not be filled completely to the top, especially on a hot day when fuel expansion can occur; fueling on trailered craft be done on land before the boat is launched; all fuel tanks, lines and fittings be checked periodically to make sure they are tight and no leaks are present; crankcase oil be properly drained and recycled; and spilled oil and fuel in the bottom of the boat be cleaned up and properly disposed of on shore.

■ Most inboard or inboard-outdrive engines need only be drained thoroughly each fall to prevent damage to the engine block from trapped water freezing and expanding. A check with the owner's manual or a marine dealer will give you the proper technique for your engine. Some owners, however, may still fill the cooling system with antifreeze each fall. When this fluid is flushed or drained in the spring, it should be done on land and disposed of in a sewage system prior to launching, not directly into the lake or river.

■ "Stow it – don't throw it" is a good motto to remember on the water. Nothing is so disgusting as seeing cans, bottles, styrofoam cups, and plastic bags floating on the water, or as a shoreland owner, having it wash up on your property. Litter is not only an eyesore, it is also a hazard to waterfowl, fish and other marine life.

TRF 13-year-olds end up with doubleheader split against Roseau

Roseau beat the Thief River Falls Rockies 4-0 in Game 1, but lost to the Thief River Falls Giants 6-5 in Game 2 Monday in a baseball doubleheader for 13-year-olds.

Two first inning runs were complemented by two sixth inning runs in the seven-inning first-game Roseau win. Derrick Berg was the losing pitcher.

Roseau, after being shut out in the top of the first, scored single runs in each of the next five innings, but it wasn't enough to catch the Giants in Game 2 after Thief River Falls pushed two runs across in both the first and second innings.

Mike Dowers got the win and Nick Wilcox picked up a save in the Giants' win. Wade Haviland was 3-for-3 to lead the Thief River Falls offense.

Changes made in Minnesota's DNR Forestry Division

Forestry Division of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources changed to a three-level organization July 1 when the 16 previous areas and 66 district offices were combined into 41 new area offices with new administrative boundaries.

"The major goals of the reorganization are to increase employee numbers at the field level and to reduce administrative overhead throughout the division," explained DNR Forestry Director Jerry Rose. "It will also bring the division more in line with the DNR structure – a very important thing to do since we as a department need to work more closely together to achieve our ecosystem management goals."

Although the new administrative boundaries were put in place July 1, the division isn't done with its reorganization process, according to Rose. Implementation teams are working out procedural details to help streamline bureaucracy and cut red tape, and are finalizing program teams and working groups within each area.

"Challenges and opportunities will occur because of the reorganization," Rose said. "I am confident that division employees will maintain and even improve the levels of service and cooperation they have always provided."

For a map of the new administrative boundaries and a list of area offices and their assigned area foresters, call DNR Forestry at 612-296-4491.

Soo Line union members tried to head off strike

That United Transportation Union leaders preparing to go on strike were upset with the Soo Line Railroad's latest news release, underscores the fact that things are heating up on the Soo Line Railroad as a 30-day "cooling-off" period nears expiration on July 14.

"This is a fight for justice and protecting the environment," said UTU Vice President Bruce Wigent. "Family-supporting wages and public safety are on the line in this dispute."

The National Mediation board summoned both the Soo Line and the UTU to Washington, DC, on Monday, July 11, for a last-minute try at a settlement.

The UTU is hoping for a negotiated agreement, but is deeply worried because of the company's pattern of intransigence.

"We have been trying to straighten out the situation for six years through negotiating and using civilized means, but Soo Line seems to want war," Wigent said. "We believe the Soo Line wants us out on strike so that they can permanently replace us with a new non-union, low-wage workforce."

According to the UTU news release, the 1,100 UTU members at the Soo Line have gone without any pay increases for the last six years as the union has attempted to bargain a fair agreement. But the prospects for a non-confrontational settlement dimmed last month when the company rejected the National Mediation board's call for an arbitrated settlement by a neutral third party.

Both parties in the dispute claim the other has rejected every reasonable alternative to work out an agreement.

Key issues in the dispute are wages, staffing and safety, and health care benefits.

UTU claims that members have not received a pay increase in six years even though the Consumer Price Index climbed 23.6 per cent, and the offer from Soo Line of just six per cent falls below the recommendation from the National Railroad settlement (10 per cent). Soo Line argues that the wage increases offered were basically the same as those included in the other 16 Soo settlements. Also included in the disagreement of wages is an issue providing for an extension of miles in the "daily rate".

The issues around staffing and safety involve a proposed reduction in the standard three-person crews (engineer, conductor and brakeman) with the elimination of the brakeman. The UTU believes that such an inflexible system would endanger both workers and the public. The UTU is willing to permit the use of two-person crews in situations where the reduced staffing does not compromise public safety.

Soo Line believes this is the focal issue of negotiations. It argues that since all of the major railroads in the U.S. except Soo Line can now operate trains with a two-person crew, it puts Soo Line at a competitive and economic disadvantage.

As with any disagreement involving a reduction of staff, issues also include agreements over benefits to employees who would be released.

Regarding health issues, Soo Line is requesting that employees accept a self-funded health care benefits package and for UTU members to withdraw from the Rail Travelers insurance plan.

The UTU expects that the Soo Line's self-funded plan would soon impose a set of cutbacks in coverage and co-payments once workers are locked into the plan. Moreover, it is their understanding that Soo Line is demanding that it make the final decision on all disputed claims.

The cooling-off period expires at 12:01 a.m. EDT on July 14 and if no agreement is reached, UTU members will go on strike. Soo Line plans to operate the railroad with available resources if a work stoppage occurs, which includes management, and if necessary, the hiring of additional employees.

Parents need to talk to children about drugs

This is the third in a series of articles prepared by Minnesota Prevention Resource Center on parents, alcohol, and pre-teens.

The first two articles in this series looked at how parents can positively influence their children's choices about alcohol and other drugs. Ideas for setting guidelines were discussed.

But, it's not enough for parents to decide what they believe about alcohol and other drug use. Parents must take the next step and talk to their children. There are three important messages parents can give to their children. First, choosing not to use alcohol is a safe, acceptable, and lifelong decision. Second, underage use of alcohol is illegal, risky, and unnecessary. Third, if a young person chooses to drink alcohol when legally of age, guidelines will help him/her know what use is acceptable and what is not.

What else can parents do? Parents can be positive role models. Children learn from watching their parents. Parents' guidelines become stronger and easier to understand when your children see them in action.

Parents can be honest in discussing both the risks and benefits of alcohol and other drugs. Children need to know alcohol and other drugs have risks. Serious health, social, legal, and financial problems can result from use. Children also need to know that alcohol and other drugs have some benefits. They can protect people from disease, help people recover from injuries faster, and comfort the ill. They are an important part of some religious celebrations.

Parents can teach children the benefits of not using alcohol and other drugs. Young people who abstain have a better chance to develop important life skills. These skills include conflict resolution, problem solving, and goal setting. Alcohol and other drug use interferes with this development. Young people who are drug-free have a better chance to develop good performance skills. These skills include academics, fine arts, athletics, music, and driving. Young people learn, mature, and develop relationships most effectively when they abstain from alcohol and other drugs.

Positive role modeling, clear guidelines, and talking honestly about alcohol and other drugs should begin at an early age. But

Four nom [illegible] Northwest Medical Center board of directors

Northwest Medical Center board of directors nominating committee has accepted four nominations to the board of directors.

The Northwest Medical Center board of directors nominating committee met Thursday, June 30, for the purpose of considering the nomination and/or re-nomination of four directors for three-year terms expiring in September, 1997.

In September, 1994, the terms of Roger DeLap, James Rogalla, Thomas Kays and Larry Lee will expire as directors on the Northwest Medical Center board of directors.

Roger DeLap, James Rogalla and Thomas Kays have agreed to have their names placed into nomination for three-year expiring in September of 1997.

Larry Lee declined the opportunity to have his name placed into re-nomination for election.

The nominating committee placed the following names into nomination: Roger DeLap, James Rogalla, Thomas Kays and Mark Blackwell.

Northwest Medical Center Association by-laws provide the association membership with an opportunity for nominating candidates from among the membership to the Northwest Medical Center board of directors. Such nomination shall be accompanied by each nominees' written consent and shall contain the signatures of five association members. The additional nominations shall be received in the Chief Executive Office's office at Northwest Medical Center on or before 5 p.m. August 1, 1994.

National forest timber program returns profits

In 1993 the two national forests in Minnesota provided about 1,768 jobs and over $102 million in income through their timber programs, according to reports issued recently. The Timber Sale Program Information Reporting System tracks revenues and costs resulting from federal timber sales.

The jobs and income generated will provide income taxes of $15.5 million. The two national forests also paid over $1.1 million directly to the State of Minnesota for county schools, roads and other programs.

"We are very pleased that our timber sale program remains above cost for the second year in a row," states Chippewa Forest Supervisor Steve Eubanks. "We have made efforts to reduce costs and maintain quality. Coupled with our efforts to implement ecosystem management, our timber sales program is moving in the right direction."

The Chippewa forest's timber program cost $2.4 million and produced revenues of $3 million in 1993. Timber harvest on the Superior National Forest cost $2.5 million and provided revenues of $2.2 million. The combined figures put the combined Minnesota forests above cost.

"We have made considerable progress in reducing the cost of our timber sale program," Superior Forest Supervisor Kathleen McAllister said. "We recognize the importance of becoming above-cost. The timber sale program is important to improve wildlife habitat and help the area economy."

At the St. Hilaire Cultural Festival Sunday, members of the Killingberg Family, a four piece band from Norway, kicked off their performance of a tune made popular by the winter olympics in Norway by asking members of the Fresh Tracks Drum Group to perform the tune with them.

After the seminary, he took a position in Goodridge, serving four congregations of the American Lutheran Church (ALCA). ## Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

Does God use sickness and pain to build godly character?

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Many people do not realize that God not only inflicted sickness on people who were sinners in the past, but He also uses sickness and pain to build righteous character in those He is calling and working with today.

Consider Job, Daniel, Jonah, Elijah and others who suffered and endured in the past for our example (James 5:10-11). Paul and Timothy were sick to the point of death (2 Cor. 1:8-9). God was teaching them that they should not trust in themselves but in God, who raises the dead. Paul said God comforted them in their affliction to give them experience so they could comfort others who would be going through the same afflictions (1 Peter 4:12). Paul called it "the sufferings of Christ" and he had them in abundance (2 Cor. 1:5).

The fiery ordeal that disciples of Jesus Christ go through at times can, and often does, include sickness (1 Peter 4:12). Notice, these are called the sufferings of Christ (1 Peter 4:13).

Did Jesus Christ suffer? You bet, He did! Jesus was a man of sorrows. He suffered. He had grief. Isaiah 53:2 and Luke 4:23 show that He was sickly and had a lot of pain.

Anyone who does the Will of God will suffer, for through much suffering you must enter the kingdom (Acts 14:22). You are suffering according to the Will of God (1 Peter 4:19). Anyone who lives as God lives will suffer persecution (2 Tim. 3:12). You are only going to have to suffer a little, however, according to 1 Peter 5:10.

Yes, our suffering has a purpose. We learn obedience to God through suffering and we will be made perfect, like Christ, when we suffer as Christ did (Heb. 5:8-9). We are perfected through suffering and we will be glorified with Christ if, indeed, we suffer with Him (Heb. 2:10; Rom. 8:17-18).

In 1968 it was incorporated as a non-profit organization without religious or political affiliations.

Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund recently awarded $27,145 to the East Polk county Developmental Achievement Center to determine the feasibility of a regional DAC consortium in northwest Minnesota. # Regional DAC study has Initiative Fund aid

Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund has awarded $27,145 to the East Polk County Developmental Achievement Center (DAC) to determine the feasibility of a regional DAC consortium in northwest Minnesota.

Developmental Achievement Centers provide a wide range of services for individuals who are developmentally disabled. Each organization identifies and assesses disabled adults; trains clients in social, daily living, recreational and vocational skills; counsels clients and their families; and educates its community about disability issues.

Other developmental achievement centers participating in the joint project with East Polk county DAC are Polk County DAC, Crookston; Marshall County DAC, Warren; Norman County DAC, Ada; Kittson County DAC, Lake Bronson; Falls DAC, Thief River Falls; Mahnomen County DAC, Mahnomen; and Clearwater DAC, Bagley.

A regional DAC consortium could give each DAC increased visibility, eliminate duplication of services, provide sharing of programs and help each DAC offer a greater variety of client services with more specialized staff, according to Ruth Edevold, executive director of the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund.

"Joint ventures leading to increased effectiveness and efficiency among organizations and communities are a priority of the Initiative Fund," Edevold said. "We are pleased to be a partner in helping the DACs in their collaborative efforts to establish a regional consortium."

The Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund is a charitable foundation committed to improving the quality of life for residents of northwest Minnesota. To achieve this mission, the fund focuses activities toward two principal goals: (1) Increasing economic growth and business development and (2) increasing the capacity of individuals and organizations to shape the region's future.

We Are A Confused And Bewildering Society

Someone in California deliberately used what was apparently a sharp instrument to terminate the lives of a woman and a young man who was with her. The act, and the arrest of a high profile suspect, touched off a public outcry and one of the most highly publicized investigations and legal procedures in history. It is called "The O. J. Simpson Case" and the public hangs on every word surrounding the case.

Every day in cities across America other people deliberately use sharp instruments to terminate the lives of hundreds of males and females in acts that are similarly violent and equally as decisive in result. The perpetrators of these acts are not arrested and in fact are protected by federal law. It is called abortion, and the public averts its eyes, turns its back, shrugs its shoulders and says "Don't bother me."

We are a confused and bewildering society.

It is heinous murder to take the life of an adult by stabbing and cutting, a crime which, in California, carries possibility of the death penalty upon conviction. It is a "surgical procedure" to do the same thing to an innocent, totally helpless, unborn child, a legal "right" granted to the woman carrying the baby and the person she selects to be its executioner.

Supporters of abortion on demand contend that government may not interfere with a woman's intensely personal decision to abort an unwanted child. The Supreme Court has allowed the act on the basis of that personal right.

Yet the same supporters simultaneously insist that government must be involved in the abortion choice in the most fundamental way possible—by paying for it. Women will be denied their constitutional rights, they argue, if taxpayers do not pay for abortions.

Minnesota abortion proponents are aided in their argument by Hennepin County District Judge William Posten, who ruled June 16 that a state law limiting public abortion funding is unconstitutional. As a result, in effect, every Minnesota taxpayer is under court order to help pay for killing babies.

We are indeed a confused and bewildering society.

Nancy Koster, vice president of Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life, correctly points out that citizens have many rights that government is not obligated to subsidize.

"My freedom of speech is not abridged because the state won't buy me a desk-top publishing system," she writes. "Your freedom of religion is not denied because government declines to pay your cab fare to Sunday services. Taxpayers do not negate our club's freedom of assembly because they refuse to provide us a meeting hall."

The State of California and City of Los Angeles will spend perhaps millions of dollars trying to convict a murderer of two people. Now it will be a legal requirement for the State of Minnesota to spend perhaps millions of dollars to cause the death of hundreds more.

We are a confused and bewildering society.

91% Solution Is No Solution

"No sane person would buy tickets on an airplane that only has a 91 per cent chance of not crashing. No parent would buy baby food that only has a 91 per cent chance there's no ground glass in the jar. Why should middle class Americans have to live with only a 91 per cent chance they won't lose their health insurance next month?"

This is the statement of Ron Pollack, executive director of Families USA Foundation, in discussing national health care. It is yet another opinion on a subject that is not lacking for opinion.

"One and a third million Americans will lose health insurance every month in 1996 if Congress rejects the Clinton health reform and settles on a partial 91 per cent solution," Pollack says. "The 91 per cent solution protects the rich and the poor but sticks it to the middle class. Real health reform means that no Americans will ever lose their health insurance, no matter what."

Pollack said the "91 per cent solution" would allow insurance companies to raise their premiums rapidly, pricing many middle class families out of protection.

Pollack also said that small businesses are especially vulnerable to the "outrageous prices and grossly unfair practices of insurers that charge small businesses 10 to 40 per cent more than they charge the big companies and severely penalize small companies whose employees are over 50 pr have sick children or are women of child-bearing age.

According to the Families USA report, more than seven out of 10 businesses with health costs over 12 per cent of payroll are small companies with fewer than 10 employees.

"America's health crisis is a day-to-day financial crisis for nearly half a million businesses employing 10 million people, and health reform with universal coverage is the only hope for saving these businesses and these jobs," adds Robert Peck of the Small Business Coalition for Health Care Reform.

"When politicians say they may not pass health reform this year, they are passing a death sentence on many of these businesses and they're printing pink slips for a lot of their employees. We need health reform because small business simply can't afford much more of this health care inflation. It's destroying small businesses."

Plans Taking Form For Water Carnival

"Plans are rapidly taking shape for the annual water carnival to be staged in Tindolph park Sunday afternoon, July 23, under the sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, President A. W. Hensrud stated today. In addition to swimming, diving and boat races, the program for the afternoon will include land events as well. Walt Larson is arranging for a diamondball game, while Bert Emanuel is planning volleyball contests and Gordon Reierson asks that anyone interested in horseshoe contests register their names with him."

Education Board Disposes Of Old Central School

"The local board of education has confirmed the sale of the old Central school building to Lyn Lundquist, Clitherall, Minn., contractor, on his high bid of $750. ### Circus Has Hard Luck Here: Tent Blows Down

"Like the Ringling Brothers circus at Hartford, Conn., last Thursday, the Bud E. Anderson circus experienced hard luck when it showed in Thief River Falls last Friday. The afternoon performances had no sooner got well under way than the city was visited by a torrential downpour accompanied by a high wind, which caused the main tent to collapse, though fortunately not until virtually all the spectators had made their way out into the open. The proprietors did not attempt to set up the tent again for the scheduled evening performance, which was canceled."

Preliminary to starting work on the parkway, a crew of state highway department workers late last week did a thorough job of scraping and brushing the street to remove the accumulated dirt from the road surface."

To Hold Meeting Of Aeronautics Chapter

"The Thief River Falls chapter of the National Aeronautics association will conduct a meeting at the club house on the golf course this evening at 8 o'clock. Reprinted Columns by Norman A. Holen, former Times Editor

—When they talk about an absconder, we read, the public is less concerned about how tall he is than how short.

—A lot of heartaches would be spared if all folks followed this advice: "If you can't write and sign it, don't say it."

—We look for a lot of wind at the Democratic national convention in Chicago next week, but doubt that there will be much of a draft.

—The soldier boys who are now living in foxholes probably will insist on air-conditioned quarters when they get back home.

—Inner tubes are off the ration list. Now folks would be happy if they only could get something to put them in.

—The paper shortage, they tell us, has reached an acute stage that a newspaper was forced to announce, "Due to the shortage of paper, a number of births will be held off until next week."

—Says a juvenile court judge, "A pat on the back develops character if administered young enough and low enough."

—Of dubious value to Candidate Roosevelt are those full page advertisements being run by Communist Earl Browder promoting a fourth term.

—Quoted appeal for blood donors: "If you can't be a private, be a corpuscle."

—If you didn't bother to vote Monday, don't complain if your favorite candidates aren't on the ballot next November.

—The circus tragedy last Thursday in Hartford, Connecticut, no doubt, didn't help to attract crowds that showed here last Friday.

—The season has set some kind of record in that no lawn sprinkling has been necessary up to the middle of July.

Public Notices

IN MEMORIAL
As the Goodridge High School class of 1974 gathered for our 20-year reunion on July 3rd, we renewed old friendships, laughed and shared memories, and caught up on the events of the last 20 years. We remembered the way we were and celebrated who we have become. What we didn't do was forget. We didn't forget that one of our classmates is no longer with us. We didn't forget that our reunion might be a painful reminder to her family and friends. We didn't forget how she touched our lives and played a part in shaping our classes' identity. We didn't forget because her passing painfully reminded us that life is precious, each day should be appreciated and friends are treasures.
In loving memory of Maria (Lind) Nelson

R. M. "Mike" Siems has announced his candidacy for sheriff of Beltrami county, saying that a sheriff's department must work for the community and do more than "just go after criminals and arrest bad guys."

Siems said the department should become a center for needs such as ambulance services and first responders. He said it is important to leave these services in their communities but provide real support through the sheriff's department.

93rd Pennington Fair to open Wednesday

Five-day event to feature Joe Diffie, team penning championship, free bandshell and local exhibits

Headlining one of Nashville's hottest new singers, Joe Diffie, the 93rd annual Pennington County Fair will open Wednesday with the Murphy Bros. Exposition on the midway for the afternoon and evening and a free Gospel music program by local vocalists and musicians in the bandshell from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Diffie will present two concerts Saturday evening, July 23, at 7 and 9 p.m. in front of the grandstand. Reserved seat tickets at $15 each are available at Kozar Music Company and Hugo's Supermarket in Thief River Falls.

Beginning Thursday at 1:30 p.m. will be four days and nights of free bandshell entertainment featuring magician Craig Carlson, Karaoke, the Cats Deluxe men's trio and the local Sugar Creek band including Chickie Walseth, Lori Ann Fanfulik, Scott Walseth, Sue Helm and Jim Johnson.

Additional free entertainment will be provided by local and area entertainers at Bandshell II, a portable stage located next to the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center on Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons. A schedule of these acts is published in a separate story in today's issue of The Times.

Other entertainment will include the Matt Vorderbruggen Orchestra playing old-time waltz, polka and schottische music in front of the grandstand Thursday, July 21, at 8 p.m.; a teen dance to music by the band "Numb" Friday, July 22, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in front of the grandstand; and the annual Jaycees demolition derby Sunday, July 24, at 5:30 p.m., also in front of the grandstand.

Thursday, July 21, will be entry day with open class entries to be received from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. (flower exhibits must be entered by 4:30 p.m.) Open class entries will be judged on Friday. No entries will be accepted on Wednesday.

Entries in the 4-H department will be received from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. with conference judging used in that department. Under the conference system, judges discuss the projects entered with the exhibitors and make their ribbon placing immediately.

Entries in the 4-H department are down this year from a year ago with 144 exhibitors having 366 exhibits including 152 entries in the beef, dairy, dog, goat, horse, poultry, rabbits, sheep and swine projects. Last year there were 163 exhibitors in the 4-H department with 402 exhibits including 182 animals.

Fairgoers who enjoy livestock exhibits should love the Pennington County Fair this year. A new horse barn has been added and nearly 100 horse entries have been registered in advance, exceeding the capacity of the new box stall barn.

Cattle entries are expected to fill the cattle barn, swine entries are on the increase and use of the state fair poultry list could increase the number of entries in the poultry department as well. As in prior years the American Dairy Goat Association sanctioned show will be held on Saturday and the number of rabbit showmen in the county should assure another good rabbit show as well.

Another interesting event at the fair will be the team penning championships on Friday, July 22, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the horse show arena at the west end of the fairgrounds. Three prior events have been held at Red Lake Falls, Warren and Roseau, leading up to the finals here. A separate story on the team penning event also is included in this issue of The Times.

Fast rising star in the country music field, Joe Diffie will be the featured performer at the 93rd annual Pennington County Fair. He will appear in performances at 7 and 9 p.m. Saturday, July 23, with reserved seat admission of $15 per person.

Providing entertainment at the bandshell at the Pennington County Fair Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 22, 23 and 24, will be the Sugar Creek band. The local group includes (left to right), front row, Chickie Walseth and Lori Ann Fanfulik; back row, Scott Walseth, Sue Helm and Jim Johnson. Sugar Creek will play all three days at 2:30, 5:30 and 8:30 p.m.

Men's trio known as Cats Deluxe will be among the performers to provide free entertainment at the bandshell at the Pennington County Fair Friday through Sunday, July 22-24. The group will perform each day at 3:30, 6:30 and 9:30 p.m.

One killed and several injured in accident Sun.

Several people were injured and one person killed in an accident Sunday, July 17, at the intersection of Highway 89 and Marshall County road 6 near Gatzke.

Minnesota state patrol received a report of the accident at 12:15 p.m. Scott Russell Warne, 24, Roseau, was pronounced dead upon arrival at Roseau hospital.

According to the accident report, Warne and his wife Rebecca and four children were traveling south on Highway 89 when a west bound vehicle driven by Melanie Rose Wawrzyniak, 19, Strandquist, entered Highway 89 from Marshall County road 6 and the vehicles collided. The impact of the collision caused the Warne vehicle to collide with a vehicle facing east on County road 6 and driven by Dean Alan Broten, 49, Newfolden.

Warne's children, Brandon, 8, Cody, 6, and Taylor 2, were airlifted from Roseau hospital to United Hospital in Grand Forks where they remain in critical to serious condition. Rebecca, 26, was treated and released from Roseau Hospital. Tanner, age 8 months, was in an infant seat at the time of the collision and was uninjured.

Dean Broten was treated and released. Marlene Cheryl Broten, the wife of Dean Broten, remains in the Roseau hospital.

Melanie Wawrzyniak was not hospitalized.

The accident is still under investigation by the Minnesota state patrol.

Team penning finals at fair Friday night

Three saddles and nine silver belt buckles will be at stake plus prize money in two out of three divisions when the Northern Minnesota Team Penning championship is held Friday, July 22, at the Pennington County Fair in Thief River Falls.

Up to 150 teams are expected to take part in the three divisions with competition to start at 6:30 p.m. at the horse show arena on the fairgrounds. Lights are being installed at the arena and the events are expected to last until at least late into the evening. Admission will be $3 for adults and $1 for children 12 and younger.

Divisions of competition include a youth draw for riders through 15 years of age, an open draw with no age limit and an open jackpot competition for more established teams.

Prior to the Thief River Falls championships, team penning contests have been held at Red lake Falls June 19 with 105 teams entered, at Warren July 4 with 139 teams entered and at Roseau July 11 with 128 teams entered.

It is the open jackpot division in which the three saddles will be the top prize. Teams which will have competed at three out of the four locations will be eligible to win the saddles. The top 10 teams at the Thief River Falls competition will make a second run and the low average time of the two runs will determine winners of the saddles.

Second place team members in the average time competition for the saddles will receive cellular phones.

Under rules established for the competition, contestants may enter the open jackpot four times by changing one member of the three-member team and paying the $20 per person entry fee. There will be $500 added money for the cash payback in the open jackpot.

In the open draw competition the entry fee is $10 per rider and teams are determined by random draw among individual entries. There is no limit on the number of times a rider my enter and no age limit. Team with the low time will receive silver belt buckles and cash payback will be $90, $60 and $30 for the top three teams.

The youth division for riders 15 years of age and younger is also an open draw with individual entries being drawn to make up three-member teams. Entry fee is $10 and participants may enter twice. The top team at Thief River Falls will receive trophy buckles. There is no cash payback in the youth division.

In addition to the head-to-head competition in the youth division at Thief River Falls, that division will also have an all events category. Points have been kept for each of the three previous shows with riders getting six points for a first place team finish, five for second and so on down to one point for sixth place. The top three individual point winners after the Thief River Falls competition will receive trophy buckles.

Jamie Kalt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Kalt of Warren, is leading after three contests with 15 points. Jill Anderson, daughter of Dean and Mary Anderson of Newfolden, is second with 14 points and Corey Francis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Francis of Mahnomen, is third with 13. Tied with 12 points for fourth place are Kenner Gervais of Red Lake Falls, Bryan Francis of Mahnomen and Amy Gryskiewicz of Argyle.

The buckles are still up for grabs, however, as it would be possible for any one rider to gain 11 points by entering twice and finishing first and second in Thief River Falls.

In the event of a tie in the top three places, the person with the highest placing in the Thief River Falls contest will be declared the buckle winner.

Competition at all events is open to all comers and participants have entered previous penning events from Fargo and Park River, ND, Twin Valley, Ulen, Halstad and

Street project work underway

Construction crews began ripping up Horace Avenue Monday. Horace Avenue from First to Third Street, which is Phase I of the downtown project, will be closed to traffic for at least two weeks. Construction crews will replace underground utilities, the sub-grade, and cover it with a gravel surface before starting on Phase II of the downtown project.

Construction on Phase 1 of the 1994 downtown street reconstruction project began on Monday, July 18. Depending upon the weather and progress on the project, Horace Avenue could be closed to traffic for at least two weeks.

The downtown re-construction project was discussed at the weekly construction project meeting Wednesday morning. At that meeting it was announced that the contractor for the 1994 Street and Utilities project is nearing completion of a project between Arctco and Digi-Key. The contractor was expected to begin setting up street detour-and-direction signs and removal of the bituminous on Horace Avenue. The street will be closed to traffic for another two weeks.

Mike Miller, project foreman for Christiansen Industrial Developers of Bemidji, said Phase 1 of the three-phase project, includes reconstruction on Horace Avenue from First to Third Street. After removing the bituminous and subgrade, the underground utilities will be replaced. A gravel surface will then be placed on the street and made passable for traffic before the start of Phase II of the project.

During construction in the downtown area of Thief River Falls, the public is being asked to exercise caution and common sense — not to wander into areas under

Day camps for youngsters set at TRF and Goodridge

Day camps for children ages five to 10 years will be held in the Thief River Falls and Goodridge areas next week. Both camps will run from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and children will be able to participate in games, relays and various sessions concerning the environment.

The first camp will take place Wednesday, July 27, at Oakland Park in Thief River Falls and the second on Thursday, July 28, at the Goodridge park.

The camps are sponsored by the Pennington county 4-H department and 4-H junior leaders will serve as counselors. Participants are asked to bring a sack lunch, a $2 fee and register in advance by calling the Pennington county extension office at 681-2116.

School construction update given

Major construction in School District 564 continues at all three levels—elementary, middle school and senior high school. Plans remain to have construction completed at the Challenger elementary, Franklin middle school and Lincoln high school sites in time for the start of fall classes in early September.

Supt. Robert Duncan has prepared a summary of the construction work at the three locations as follows:

Lincoln High School

The Lincoln high school project is proceeding very well. Athletic locker rooms, office area and storage rooms are now complete. Plans were to move equipment into the new fitness room late last week. The fitness center on the second floor of Lincoln will serve as a gym for wrestling.

The music area including band room, practice rooms and storage areas plus offices are completed with some work remaining to be done in the choir/orchestra room.

Work in the cafeteria/student commons area and kitchen is proceeding on schedule. The exterior windows have been installed in the cafeteria. Presently contractors are working on installing the ceiling grid and completing work in the kitchen. All the new construction area should be completed in early August.

Remodeling on the inside of Lincoln high school has begun. The former cafeteria is being converted into visual arts classrooms and a theatre classroom. Part of the former kitchen area is being developed into dressing rooms for people who perform in the auditorium. Conversion has begun on the old visual arts room which will become two general classrooms. Work will soon begin on remodeling of a classroom adjacent to the counseling office into a career center.

Installation of new windows in the 1957 addition to Lincoln will soon begin as an energy conservation measure. Air conditioning is also being installed in the 1957 area of the building.

Franklin Middle School

Franklin middle school and the attached Mark Twain elementary school have been basically gutted as the former structure plus new additions will be used entirely for the middle school (grades six through eight) program. Contractors are now starting to put the building back together again, which includes new ceilings in many of the classrooms.

The district was required to remove all the floor tile in the building because it contained asbestos. Those floor spaces will be carpeted.

The district is also required by the state fire marshall's office to build two fire walls from the floor to the roof deck, an additional project that was not included in the original plans or cost projections. Because the district is not permitted to use health and safety dollars for this part of the project, it must be funded out of the general bond issue. Consequently, there are some parts of the Franklin project which had been planned that can not be done.

Construction of the media center is underway. In the choir, band and orchestra rooms and music offices the walls are being constructed. Also under construction is a multi-purpose room, a space that will have a stage to be used for student performances. Seating for the public will be on the floor of the multi-purpose area.

Interior remodeling will be completed prior to the start of classes in September, but the new additions are somewhat behind schedule due to the wet weather this summer. Supt. Duncan said everyone is working hard to make up for lost time and hopeful that new additions can be completed prior to the start of school. If that can't be accomplished, however, alternate plans will be put together for students until the project is complete.

Challenger Elementary

With all students from pre-school through fifth grade to be housed in the new Challenger elementary school being built south of the city on the airport road, concern for completion of that $10 million project runs high.

Dr. Duncan said construction of Challenger continues to move along at a very steady pace. On average there are approximately 90 construction trade people at work on the job site each day and considerable activity is taking place in all of the construction trade areas.

On the outside of the building the brick work is near completion. Some physical education storage spaces on the west side of the gymnasium, the bell tower and brick work on the very front of the main entrance adjacent to the bell tower are yet to be completed. Almost all of the block work on the inside of the budding is complete.

Concrete site work is underway with sidewalks being poured and curbs around the parking lot being installed. Weather permitting, plans are to have the sidewalks and parking lots completed by August 17. Site work will also be underway soon in the playground areas.

Challenger Elementary Environmental Learning Lab committee has been working with the architect on the landscaping around the Challenger school. Initial phase of the plan would include landscaping of the grounds around the building to include trees, shrubs and flower beds. By state code, open ground areas must be sodded from the building out 10 feet.

Planting of trees and shrubs is planned to be completed this fall. A number of spruce trees have been donated by Connie and Tony Dom Jr. for transplanting on the site. The trees are eight to 10 feet in height so they will give the landscaping plan a more mature appearance.

Driveways into the parking lot off County Road 61 on the south side of the school will soon be developed and include installation of culverts. County Road 61 will not be surfaced this year as the Pennington County board of commissioners is attempting to have the road designated as a state aid road and procedure for such designation takes time. The county has agreed to keep the road graded and dust controlled as much as possible until the road is surfaced in the future.

Work on the interior of the building continues toward completion. The building is divided into separate "schoolhouses" for different age groups of students, although they will share use of common areas such as cafeteria, gymnasium and media center.

In the Grades 2 and 3 schoolhouse, all the classrooms are carpeted, the cabinetry is installed and the ceiling, lights, telephones and television brackets are installed. Teachers' supplies will soon be moved into these classrooms. Student desks are scheduled to be put into the classrooms within the coming week. Student lockers are presently being installed. Bathrooms and computer labs are complete. For all practical purposes, the second and third grade schoolhouse is just about completed.

The fourth and fifth grade schoolhouse is slightly behind the second and third grade schoolhouse in being ready for students. Some carpeting and the lockers are yet to be installed. Otherwise, this part of the building is also considered to be just about completed.

In the pre-school schoolhouse the cabinetry has been installed, lights are in place and wall covering has been installed. Carpeting is underway and lockers will be installed late this week.

In the kindergarten and first grade schoolhouse the cabinetry is being installed. All of the lights and wallcoverings are in place and lockers will be installed early next week. Carpet will soon be laid in that part of the building and the K-1 schoolhouse will be ready for furnishings.

All four sections of the gymnasium are just about ready. The floor covering—a vinyl inlay with a pad under it to provide more safety and comfort for students running on it—is yet to be installed and storage rooms on the west side of the gymnasium are yet to be built. The ceiling is being painted and the walls have been primed with final painting scheduled for July 26. The three motorized dividing walls will be installed August 1-7. The 12 basketball backboards and baskets in the gymnasium are all installed and the floor standards for volleyball are in place.

In the cafeteria and kitchen the freezer and coolers are installed, as are the hoods for the ovens and deep fryers. The tile floor is presently being laid in the kitchen. In the cafeteria, the ceiling is in place and the floor is scheduled to be carpeted on August 7-9.

In the library/media center the skylight is in place, the amphitheater has been built, walls for small meeting rooms have been erected and the ceiling is presently being put in place.

Ceilings are being installed in the two general music rooms and orchestra room and walls will be painted and floors carpeted in the next five weeks.

Walls are being installed in the central office area. This is the area of the school that needs the most work in order to be completed by September but seems to be coming together quite quickly, Dr. Duncan said.

The commons area adjacent to the administrative offices is taking shape with skylights installed, the amphitheater built and ceiling grid being put in place.

The geothermal heating and cooling system has been installed. All 520 "wells" have been drilled and the piping has been brought into the building. The fluid that will circulate through the system will be installed on or about September 7. The pumps that will move the flow of fluid to the individual rooms have been installed, as have the majority of heat pumps throughout the building.

This system will provide both heating and cooling for the building at what is expected to be a substantially reduced cost from a conventional boiler system. The back-up generator is in place and will allow the building to be operated on its own power if the electrical service to the building is interrupted. It will also be used for standby during peak electrical use hours.

Overall, Dr. Duncan said, progress on the building is on schedule for September opening. In early August parents of children attending Challenger elementary will receive additional information as to orientation, bus schedules, location of classrooms and other materials.

Pennington Co. requests federal disaster listing

Pennington county commissioners have submitted a petition to the Governor of Minnesota requesting a disaster declaration because of recent severe weather.

Various local government officials in Pennington county met last Monday to discuss whether disaster assistance should be requested. After reviewing pictures taken of the county by the local chapter of the Civil Air Patrol and after discussing field examinations, the declaration came rather quickly. On Tuesday, the Pennington county board approved a disaster declaration request.

The disaster declaration request estimates that 693 farmers in the county will experience loss due to the weather. The declaration also estimates the percentage of loss in various crops. Officials believe wheat crop loss will reach 30 per cent. The corn crop will experience a loss of 30 per cent; the soybean crop will experience a loss of 50 per cent; the sunflower crop loss could be 45 per cent; and the hay land loss could reach 45 per cent.

Sheriff Oerold Moe, the emergency services director for the county, explained that the loss extends beyond crops. The severe weather affects feed crops for the cattle and sheep industry. Their loss is expected to reach $550,000. If it stays wet, there could be extensive damage to some of the machinery and equipment used by farmers. That loss was estimated at $173,000.

Phil Bergland, ASCS director, said the meeting on Monday included representation from the county commission, county extension office, the sheriff's department, FmHA, SCS, and ASCS. Bergland said the pictures taken by the CAP were particularly helpful. He said there is water standing everywhere. Though it is difficult to come up with an assessment of the loss, he said, the southern half of the county appears to be in worse condition than the northern half.

Dave Odetto of the Civil Air Patrol in Thief River Falls, said the CAP received a request for assistance from Sheriff Moe. Odette said CAP's mission consisted of making about four passes over the county and taking about two to three pictures of each township from an altitude of about 6,000 to 7,000 feet. The mission took about three hours to complete. Such a mission is out of the ordinary for CAP, Odette said, but they sat down and did some planning before they began. He added that he though the mission had been a success.

Last Thursday, Sheriff Moe began working on setting up counseling assistance for people affected by floods. Moe said he was thinking about setting up a program similar to Project Reality II, which is being administered in Polk county through the Northwestern Mental Health Center. He received approval to go ahead with the program, which would involve several charity agencies. He learned later that the Federal Emergency Management Administration (FEMA) had no more funding for such programs. The county has since decided to go ahead with the program anyway. It might be in place sometime during the first week of August.

Friday morning, Sheriff Moe said he learned that funding might be available through FEMA later.

As a result of other meetings, Sheriff Moe is asking for assistance in determining excessive damage caused by the severe weather. He has sent a letter to each township requesting their assistance in estimating damage to such things as culverts, ditches, roads and other public property. He is also asking each town to keep track of public damage. For Thief River Falls, that might include excessive damage caused to areas currently under construction. He is also asking that private citizens notify the sheriff's department of any damage caused to private property, such as water damage to homes.

The fact that this information is being collected doesn't guarantee that the county will receive federal assistance, but it does assist the county in preparing its case for federal assistance.

Tunheim reviews laws effective July 1

State Representative Jim Tunheim of Kennedy has reviewed some of the new laws which officially went into effect on Friday, July 1. He encourages anyone with questions about the new laws, or any other topic of legislative interest, to contact him at 674-4480.

Included in the laws becoming effective July 1 are the following:

- Child abduction: Several provisions in the new law aim to concentrate law enforcement efforts on the first two hours following a child abduction, and the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA) will become a key player in those efforts.
- DARE: Law enforcement agencies must make a reasonable effort to use vehicles confiscated during drug busts and other criminal arrests for the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program.
- Hazardous Waste: A new law will help Minnesota's automobile salvage yards dispose of their battery acid, oil, antifreeze and other hazardous substances involved with auto recycling. The new law will provide a uniform procedure that all the state's salvage yard operators will be able to follow.
- Sales tax breaks for farmers: A total of $1.5 million is authorized to pay for a provision that grants a sales tax exemption on used farm equipment purchase between July 1, 1994 and June 30, 1995.
- Sex offenders: The sex offender registration law, established in the 1991 legislature, is expanded to include all felony-level criminal sexual conduct crimes. The law also will require juveniles to register if, had they been adults, their crimes would mandate registration. Sex offenders from other states sent to Minnesota for incarceration or supervision must agree to register before entering the state.
- Teacher pension increases: Under a new law, teachers who are part of the Teachers Retirement Association will contribute two per cent more per paycheck into their retirement fund. The law also changes the computation for figuring how much money teachers will receive.
- Title fees: The fee for motor vehicle titles or title transfers will be increased from $2 to $5.50. The fee will be decreased to $3 by July 1, 1997. The money will be used to purchase new cars for state troopers.
- Transportation: Drivers convicted of speeding in highway construction zones will pay up to a $200 fine.
- Victims' rights: Should someone convicted of a first-degree murder, or any other crime punishable by life imprisonment, become eligible for parole or supervised release, the victim's next of kin will be notified in advance of the parole hearing. The family of the victim may also give an oral or written statement at the parole hearing, detailing their suffering and recommending whether the offender should be paroled.

construction or try to drive through the construction area, respect warning signs, and above all, be patient.

Phase II includes work on LaBree Avenue from First to Third Street. The construction company will video-tape the project area before the project begins. This will allow them to determine if any future problems were caused during construction and what areas currently need replacement. Merchants and property owners in the downtown area are encouraged to notify the construction company of any defects prior to the video-taping of the project. The construction company can be contacted by calling 751-4433. They also have an office set up in the former downtown Hartz store parking lot.

This phase of the project involves removal of the bituminous overlay, replacement of sub-grade and utilities. A gravel surface will be placed on the street to make it passable to traffic before construction on Phase II begins. Phase II is expected to take roughly four weeks.

During Phase II, construction crews will attempt to keep the disruptions to downtown business at a minimum. Where water and other services are disrupted, the construction company will attempt to provide temporary services.

Phase III involves re-construction of Third Street.

Construction meetings are held every Wednesday in the city auditorium basement meeting room beginning at 10 a.m. The public is welcome to attend and ask questions.

Finding a Breast Lump

According to the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, all women should practice breast self examination (BSE) on a regular basis. If you feel something suspicious, your doctor may request to see you immediately or may wait to see if the lump disappears following your menstrual period.

On examination (by "palpitating" it), your doctor will gain an immediate impression of whether the lump is a solid mass or a fluid-filled cyst. If the latter is suspected, your doctor may perform fine needle aspiration. This involves inserting a hypodermic needle into the center of the cyst and drawing liquid from it so the cells may be examined under a microscope.

In 99 per cent of cases, fluid-filled cysts are benign (non-cancerous), and result from fibrocystic changes in breast tissue. These tend to increase with age until menopause, when they become more rare. They can be painful, and possibly place a woman at greater risk of developing breast cancer — which makes regular BSE and screening mammograms all the more essential.

A solid mass (one that is not fluid-filled) is apt to be confirmed first with the help of a diagnostic mammogram. This provides a more detailed image of a specific area of your breast than a screening mammogram. Another diagnostic technique is ultrasound.

Even with these techniques, it is difficult to distinguish a benign tumor, such as a "fibroadenoma," the most common benign breast lesion or tumor, from other lesions that may be cancerous. Mammography can detect other tissue changes, such as microcalcifications, that are benign in most cases, but in 15 to 20 per cent of cases may be a sign that cancer is developing.

Your doctor may thus recommend that the lesion be biopsied (surgically excised and its cells examined). A breast biopsy usually is performed in the hospital as outpatient surgery, without requiring an overnight stay. The incision is usually small and the scar inconspicuous.

Jenny Nelson weds Jeffrey Swedin on riverboat June 24

Jenny Sidonia Nelson and Jeffrey David Swedin were united in marriage June 24, 1994, upon the sternwheeler, Anson Northrup, in Boom Island Park in Minneapolis. Rev. Roger Hanson, formerly of Thief River Falls, officiated at the 7 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Ray and Jan Nelson of Thief River Falls and Dave and Jeanne Swedin of Lakeville.

Wedding music was provided by Plenny Nelson, uncle and godfather of the bride, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O' Perfect Love." A special reading from "The Prophet" by Kahlil Gibran on marriage was read by the mother of the bride during the ceremony.

The setting for the ceremony was decorated with red Gebera daisies, ferns, babies' breath and tulle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a straight line floor-length crepe dress encrusted with hand sewn pearls which featured a v-necked solid pearled collar. The bride's floor-length, pearl-scattered veil fell from a sterling silver Swedish wedding crown which had been worn by the bride's mother at her wedding. The gown and veil were designed and sewn by the bride.

The bridal bouquet consisted of three long-stemmed Calla lillies wound with white satin ribbon.

Serving as maid of honor was Jessica Nelson of Fargo, ND, sister of the bride. Bridemaids were Brenda Doll of Grand Forks, ND, Kim Huson of Prescott, AZ, and Mary Fitzpatrick of Isanti. All were attired in fitted, sleeveless, red crepe, tea length gowns which featured twisted strap backs adorned with matching bows and pearls. Each carried a single long-stemmed Calla lily wound with white satin ribbon.

Usherettes were Siri Spong of Minneapolis and Colleen Benfer of Savage, friends of the bride. They wore dresses identical to those of the bridesmaids but in navy blue, and also carried single Calla lillies.

Alissa Doll of Grand Forks, ND, was the flower girl. She wore a gown of white chiffon and satin adorned with pearls and applique, and carried a red and white-ribbon-trimmed, white basket filled with babies' breath.

Michelle Leach, friend of the bride, and Jodie DuPay, cousin of the groom, were the bride's personal attendants.

The groom was attired in a white, double-breasted tuxedo with black pants, bow tie and cummerbund. His boutonniere was a single white rose with stephanotis.

The groom's cousin, Danny DuPay, of Webster, served as best man. Groomsmen were Kevin Kalal of St. Paul, Brian Pavek of New Prague and Dean Seymour of Pompano Beach, FL, all friends of the groom. They wore black, double breasted tuxedoes with white lapels and black ties and cummerbunds. Boutonnieres were white Stephanotis.

Ushering the guests were Adam Seurer of Eagan and Greg Seurer of Minneapolis, friends of the groom. They wore all black, double-breasted tuxedoes with Stephanotis boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride was attired in a red and white print silk gown and the mother of the groom wore a navy blue sailor jacket with white pleated skirt. They were presented with Cymbidium orchid corsages.

Honored guests at the ceremony were Sidonia Halvorson, grandmother of the bride; Margery Nelson, the bride's great-aunt; Norbert and Edna Weckman, grandparents of the groom; and Albert Swedin, the groom's grandfather.

Following the ceremony, a dinner reception and dance were held aboard the river boat as it cruised the Mississippi. Darrel and Phoebe Tomlinson, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Joe and Faye DePoy, uncle and aunt of the groom, served as hosts and hostesses. Yvonne Ode, friend of the bride, and Hollis Nelson, uncle of the bride, served as charter coordinators.

Kim DuPay, cousin of the groom, presided at the guest book with Annette Nelson, aunt and godmother of the bride, as flower hostess. Julia Nelson and Marilyn Nelson, aunts of the bride, were in charge of decorations. Jodie DuPay and Chris Zweber, cousin and friend of the groom, served as name check host and hostess.

The wedding cake consisted of seven chocolate or French vanilla cakes with separate fillings of Bavarian cream, raspberry, lemon, fudge and cream cheese. The layers were trimmed with red-tipped roses, blue-tipped borders and pearls. Topping the cake were two china bells handpainted by Dar Kutzer, cousin of the bride. Carla Mandrell, cousin of the bride, baked and served the wedding cake, assisted by Michelle Swedin and Heather Tupa, cousins of the groom.

Following a wedding trip to Duluth and the North Shore, the couple is at home in Savage.

The bride was a 1988 graduate of Lincoln high school and attended Normandale college in Bloomington. She is employed at Martinizing in Bloomington and by the Chaska and LeSeur Skating schools. The groom is a 1988 graduate of New Prague high school and a 1992 graduate of Normandale college. He is employed by the Scott County Sheriff's Department and Minneapolis Public Housing.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

Have you looked at your calendar recently? Did you notice that July is more than half way gone? That means that summer is two-thirds over!! Where has the time gone? If summer is practically two-thirds over it stands to reason that in a little more than a month school will start. Where has summer vacation gone?

For those of you like me who have not yet done anything that qualifies as a summer vacation, we had better get busy formulating a few ideas as to what would constitute a relaxing vacation. The first thing that must happen to have a summer vacation is that the calendar must be cleared of the business of life in order to go about the enjoyment of vacation. Take a look at your calendar and decide what time you can choose to vacation. When you choose a vacation time, keep in mind that you don't have to choose an extended period of time for your vacation, but what you need to do is simply choose some time. This time you choose may be an elongated weekend, or it may be most of a week, or most of a month. The length of time is not as important as actually choosing time to vacation.

After you choose your vacation time, and after your place of employment as well as the other members of your family all agree that its a fine time for you to vacation, what are you going to do with this time?

To help you decide what you should do with your vacation, consider the meaning of the word vacation. Vacation means "freedom from any activity; rest; respite; intermission". I would imagine that if we truly decided to spend our time as the word vacation dictates, we would become refreshed individuals. How many of our families choose to do nothing for a vacation? Too many of us decide that it is now our vacation time and we must choose to make the most of this time. We schedule ourselves and our families with as many activities as we can fit into our allotted vacation time. We keep ourselves constantly busy. We forget the first part of the definition of the word vacation – freedom from any activity, rest.

We do pretty well in keeping the second part of the definition of the word vacation. We take a respite from our normal daily activities during our vacation time. As we participate in our many planned activities, we are taking a break, an intermission, from what we normally do. Planning activities for our vacations – traveling, visiting tourist-sort of places, going to visit the relatives – meet our need for variety, our need for a respite from the ordinary daily activities. Most of us probably think that a vacation just hasn't been a success if we haven't immersed ourselves in activities.

Do you ever feel that at the end of your vacation you need to go back to work, to your normal daily activities, in order to rest? I know that I have felt that going back to normal work related activities can be more restful than vacation. If we must go back to our daily activities to rest up from our vacation maybe we have missed the benefits of vacations. Maybe instead of scheduling ourselves with a multitude of activities, we need to simply spend our vacation in inactivity – in rest. We would miss out on all the wonderful educational activities we could show our family. We would miss out on seeing how boring the interstate roadway system can be. But, just maybe we would find time in our time of inactivity, in our time of rest, to let our bodies and our souls feel rested. We forget how to simply rest. We forget that we can have fun times with our families at our own homes. We forget that a lazy week at home could be as delightful and maybe even more restful than a hectic vacation schedule.

It may seem even unAmerican for me to suggest that during vacation we simply rest – that we free ourselves from any activity. We have a strong work ethic in America. We like to work. We like to keep busy. We don't like times of silence, times of ignoring the things that need doing. We forget that in order to work well we need to also rest.

As you clear your calendar for your vacation, consider a new way to vacation this summer – rest. It may be the best vacation of your life.

Health Column

If the biopsy results confirm a malignancy, the size and progression of your cancer will be noted. This is called "staging." Additional surgery may be performed at the time of the biopsy or scheduled for later, most likely followed up by radiation therapy or chemotherapy to make sure all cancer cells are eradicated. Finding a breast lump is certainly scary. But it is important to remember that the great majority of women with early stage breast cancer can be successfully treated.

Area watershed work visited

Nearly 50 land and water managers attended the annual joint summer tour of the Minnesota Red River Watershed Management Board and the Joint Water Resources Board of North Dakota July 13. The tour covered about a dozen northwestern Minnesota projects in the Middle River-Snake River, Red Lake, Roseau River and Two Rivers watershed districts.

Executive director Don Ogaard of the RRWMB said touring the northern districts is important because it allows attendees "the chance to get acquainted with an area of innovative and creative management techniques not commonly associated with traditional flood control projects."

Another unique characteristic of the northern districts is the amount of publicly-owned lands. According to Omar Rood, district engineer for the Two Rivers, Joe River and Roseau River districts, nearly 50 per cent of the land in the Roseau district is state and federally owned.

"Because these lands do not add to the tax base," he said, "people in the agricultural and urban areas of the district must carry the burden of water management across the publicly-owned lands."

Last year's tour included projects in North Dakota.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LeCouriiere

. . . Rain, Rain, Go Away For a While

People are not asking one another "How are you?" any more. They are asking "How is your basement?" Even the driest basements seem to have water in them these days. Some basements have water pouring into them and some just have a little trickle coming in every time it rains.

We have had too much rain and that is all there is to it. The ground can't hold any more and it has to go somewhere, so it is going into the houses through any little hole it can find.

I have water in my basement. The sump pump at our house is working overtime and taking care of most of the water, but I think it is seeping through the walls. Most of it dried up over the weekend, but when it rained again Monday morning, it started seeping in again — slowly — just enough to make a mess.

I am really getting tired of treading on damp carpets and walking on a wet floor every time I go into the basement. I think it is time for the rain to stop now so things can dry out.

The sump pump is acting rather strange, too. The whole plumbing system in my house is a little weird, so when the sump pump ran it used to pump up into my washer. Well, now I have a new washer with some sort of a stopper on it and when the sump pump runs it comes up into my kitchen sink — yes, all the way up into the kitchen — go figure it.

As soon as we can get the equipment, we are going to run our sump pump outside — way outside — and take care of that problem and make the city happy at the same time because I figure my strange sump pump must be going somewhere it shouldn't be — like into the sewer system — and I feel guilty. I surely don't want to contribute to any more of a mess around town than there already is.

Because I know things could be worse than they are now. I remember a few years ago when we had several inches of rain in a half an hour and the sewer system couldn't take all of the water and everyone's sewer backed up into their basements. Now that was a much worse mess than now. Some people had several inches of water in their basements and things like furnaces and water heaters got wet.

I remember because at the time I was working for an insurance claims office and very few of the water damage claims were covered. Insurance only covered the mess if the sump pump failed, not if the sewer just backed up.

Of course it could be worse, but I don't want it to be worse.

I just want it to stop raining for a week or two so my basement can dry out again.

ACTIVITIES

Water Lilies

Summer is here and to many of us that means a trip fishing. Whenever young children go out into the boat it is good to point out some of the plants as well as fish they may see. One of these may be a water lily.

When you get home the children can make a water lily out of an egg carton and a brass fastener. Cut two of the egg sections out and cut dips in them to resemble the flower. Then from the top of the carton cut the leaf section that floats in the water. Put the two egg sections together to form the flower and attach it to the "leaf" with the brass fastener. This lily will really float as well as looking pretty.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need blue paper, sponges, scissors, a pie tin and liquid paint or food coloring.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Caseley, Judith. Mama, Coming and Going. Love and laughter abound in this hilarious and all-too-true glimpse of a supremely functional, but temporarily disorganized, family.

Stein, Sara. Oh, Baby! From first cry to first steps, this is the perfect book for baby-loving toddlers and soon-to-be big brothers and sisters.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Berenstain Bears and the Coughing Catfish. When Papa and the cubs go fishing in Grizzly Lake, they get a short but important lesson in ecology and water pollution.

(Contributed by the Northwest Regional Library.)

PARENTING TIPS

Playing With Children

Play is the way children learn. Toys are the tools that they use. Adults who want to help a child to play need to be careful about providing just the right amount of adult involvement. Both too much or too little adult involvement can hinder a child's play. Here are four simple rules for adults to remember.

1. Watch children play without interrupting. Observe their interests and level of skills. How do they use the toys? Which playthings are favorites?

2. Join in and play at the child's level. Let the child lead. If you try to introduce complicated ideas too quickly it may confuse the child and disappoint you. If the child loses interest after you join the play you are probably above or below the child's level.

3. After playing for a while at the child's pace, introduce a slightly more difficult stage of play. Be careful not to rush this step.

4. Then back away and watch again to see if and how the youngster explores this new activity.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Ask children to tell you about what they are doing. Ask questions to which you do not know the answers.

Seth, Tanner, Kaine skating in tournaments...

Hockey plays a big part in Martell summer

by Sports Editor Mike Lundgren

Three hockey-playing sons of Doug and Mary Martell are keeping the family on the run this summer, with select-team tournament appearances for 14-year-old Seth, 15-year-old Tanner and 16-year-old Kaine taking a bite out of the family's time and pocketbook.

It was previously announced that Seth, a goalie who will be a freshman this fall, was picked to play for Team Minnesota in a Winnipeg-area tournament in late June, and in the Team Minnesota Summer Festival July 30-Aug. 6 in the Twin Cities.

Word was recently received that Tanner and Kaine were named to Minnesota teams scheduled to appear in the 20th anniversary Hockey Night in Boston summer tournament.

Players from 24 states and Canada will take part in the HNIB event.

A forward, Tanner will be involved in the 16-team sophomore portion of the event. He joined his Minnesota teammates in the Twin Cities for a July 19 flight east. Minnesota's tournament debut is scheduled today (Wednesday).

Kaine, a defenseman who will be a high school junior this fall, will be skating in the 18-team tournament for juniors and seniors. Kaine and his Minnesota teammates will fly out of the Twin Cities July 29 and begin play the following day.

Both Tanner and Kaine were named to the Hockey Night in Boston rosters following five days of try-outs in mid-June in Eden Prairie.

Featuring mostly teams from the New England/New York area, Hockey Night In Boston Summer Tournament for juniors and seniors stretches from July 30 to Aug. 28. But Minnesota and a Great Lakes team that includes players from seven mid-western states plus California and Colorado, will have just a week-long stay. They will play five-game exhibition schedules and will not be in the running for a spot in the four-team finals Aug. 23-24.

It's the first-ever appearance for Minnesota at the event, scheduled to be played at the S. Peter Volpe Complex on the campus of Merrimack College in North Andover, Massachusetts.

An all-star team will be selected from the 370 participants in the sophomore portion of the event to join the junior/senior skaters in the robin-robin tournament.

A further selection process will be the naming of three Hockey Night in Boston all-star teams – Massachusetts, New England, Mid-America – that will be joined by the Ottawa Selects for the Aug. 26-28 HNIB All-Star weekend series.

Players selected for the Hockey Night In Boston series are responsible for their own expenses, including air fare, food and lodging.

TRF has strong tournament

■ Legion upends No. 1 team in Wisconsin

Defections notwithstanding, Thief River Falls made a solid showing over the weekend at the Lakeview Invitational American Legion baseball tournament.

Post 117 went 3-1 through the Friday/Saturday round-robin division format to earn a spot in the Sunday consolation bracket finals before being eliminated by Waite Park 20-1.

In robin-robin play, Thief River Falls knocked off the Superior Reds, the No. 1-ranked Legion team in Wisconsin, 9-7, lost to Hopkins 5-0, handled Cloquet 22-7, and shut out Brookston 10-0.

Results left the team 12-19.

"It was a good weekend," said Thief River Falls assistant coach Corey Poole, who directed the team throughout the tournament in absence of head coach Howard Dalager.

Since the start of the 1994 season, Carter Rogalla, Jason Hruby and Eric Bjorgaard have left the team. Depth was wiped out, but former back-ups have seized the opportunity, using the unexpected additional playing time to improve their game. Instead of suffering a collapse, Thief River Falls' revamped line-up has proven to be competitive.

"It's a little surprising," acknowledged Poole. "They're relaxed. They're having fun."

Top two finishers in each of the six round-robin divisional alignments earned spots in Sunday's finals. Top four teams went into the championship bracket; places 5-through-8 played in the runner-up bracket; and teams that finished 9-through-12 formed the consolation bracket.

Thief River Falls wound up No. 10. Hopkins won the division at 4-0, followed by Thief River Falls at 3-1, Superior Reds 2-2, Cloquet 1-3, and Brookston 0-4.

| Thief River Falls | 9 |
| Superior Reds | 7 |

Thief River Falls snapped a 6-6 tie with three runs in the top of the seventh inning, then got out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the frame to escape with a 9-7 win over the Superior Reds in Round 1.

Jason Jensen was 3-for-3 and drove in two runs for the winners, who overcame an early 3-1 deficit. The Thief River Falls offense also included a 2-for-2 game by Chris Vanyo and 3 hits in 4 at-bats by Adam Henney.

Tim Barry was the winning pitcher, working 6 2/3 innings before leaving with a run in and the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh. A three-pitch strike-out by reliever Brian Minks netted him a save and ended the Superior threat.

| Hopkins | 5 |

A Thief River Falls offense that scored 41 runs against three other divisional opponents came up empty against a strong Hopkins team in the second round, 5-0.

The winners scored three times in the first inning and tacked on two insurance runs in the third.

Brian Minks started and took the loss, leaving after two innings. Derek McFarlane pitched four innings in relief and Adam Henney pitched the final frame.

Only Thief River Falls offensive highlight was a 2-for-3 effort by Steve Burslie.

Hopkins went on to reach the tournament championship game before losing to Bloomington Gold 13-7.

| Thief River Falls | 22 |
| Cloquet | 7 |

Responding to an early-morning wake-up call for a 7:45 a.m. Round 3 Saturday match-up against Cloquet, Thief River Falls banged out 20 base hits and won 22-7 in five innings.

Post 117 had a 7-0 lead before Cloquet came to bat, enjoyed a 14-2 second inning cushion and had a 20-2 third inning spread.

Corey Jenkins, Steve Burslie and Chris Vanyo had three hits apiece to lead the assault, while Brad Thayer, Joby Looker, Adam Henney, Andy Peterson, and Tim Barry picked up two hits each. Jenkins and Jason Jensen both drove in four runs. Vanyo, Barry and Henney had 3 RBI each, while Burslie and Thayer wound up with two runs-batted-in apiece.

Vanyo went the route for the win.

| Thief River Falls | 10 |
| Brookston | 0 |

Joby Looker threw a one-hit shutout at Brookston Saturday afternoon in a 10-0 Thief River Falls win.

Charlie Keefe, Steve Burslie and Jason Jensen were all 2-for-3 to back Looker's pitching. Keefe drove in three runs; Burslie and Jensen had two RBI each.

Thief River Falls had a 2-0 second inning lead, made it 6-0 in the third, and enjoyed a 9-0 advantage in the fourth before tacking on a final-inning run for the early 10-run rule decision.

It was another feast or famine outing for Thief River Falls Sunday – and this time the Post 117 hitters wound up short on offense in a 20-1 five-inning tournament-ending consolation bracket loss to Waite Park.

Jason Jensen, who had just four hits for the year coming into the tournament, was 2-for-2 to lead an otherwise quiet Thief River Falls attack, giving him eight hits and eight RBI for the weekend. Brad Thayer drove in the only Thief River Falls run – in the fourth.

Waite Park put it away in quick fashion with an 11-run first inning and added to it with nine more runs over the final two innings.

Corey Jenkins was the Thief River Falls starter, but he retired just one batter and was tagged with the loss. Thayer, Adam Henney and Steve Burslie pitched in relief.

TRF regular season schedule ends with six twinbill outings

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team, after playing doubleheaders in Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Fargo this week, will close out its 1994 regular season schedule with three more twinbills at Irv Wilson Field next week.

A Tuesday (July 19) trip to Fergus Falls kicked off the busy stretch, with Post 117 scheduled to visit Detroit Lakes Friday (5:30/7:30 p.m.) and Fargo Saturday (2:30/4:30 p.m.).

The homestand match-ups include 5:30 p.m. doubleheaders Tuesday, July 26, vs. Roseau; Thursday, July 28, vs. East Grand Forks; and Saturday, July 30, vs. Devils Lake.

Ninth District tournament play is scheduled Aug. 3-7 in Fergus Falls.

College notes...

■ Heather Holmstrom, a senior from Thief River Falls, was recognized for her contribution to the Jamestown College women's track program in a recent press release from the school that noted she had three second place finishes and six thirds among her efforts this spring, including a second place effort in the 10,000 meters at the district meet and a second in the 5,000 meters at the conference meet. She graduated in May with a biology major and minors in chemistry, math, and physical education, earning a spot on the Deans List in her final semester with a perfect 4.0 grade point average. She has been accepted into medical school at Purdue University and plans to pursue a Masters in exercise physiology.

Father/son combination of Bob (left) and Bruce Mattson of Thief River Falls examined a prize 10 3/4-pound, 30-inch walleye the pair landed Saturday while fishing Minnesota waters on Lake of the Woods. Bruce caught the fish. Bob helped in the landing process.

Thieves eye post-season spot

Completion of regular season play for the first-year Thief River Falls Thieves amateur baseball team includes games against Crookston, Ada and Roseau.

The Thieves were scheduled to be at Crookston Tuesday (July 19) for a single 6:30 p.m. game. They have a 6:30 p.m. doubleheader in Ada Thursday, and will then try to fit in a pair of make-up outings against Roseau.

Thief River Falls, Roseau and Warroad form a three-team alignment that will advance its top two regular season finishers into post-season play. Thief River Falls and Roseau have yet to play this summer because of weather-related postponements, but with a 4-0 mark against Warroad, the Thieves are all but guaranteed a spot in the 2-out-of-3 game July 30-31 post-season series.

The winner will be part of a three-team Region 12C field in Detroit Lakes that will qualify two teams for the Class C state tournament in Hutchinson.

Applications accepted for early season goose hunts

Hunters interested in participating in the special Sept. 3-12 Canada goose seasons in the Twin Cities Metro Zone, the Fergus Falls/Benson Zone, or the Southwest Zone should submit an application by Aug. 20, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

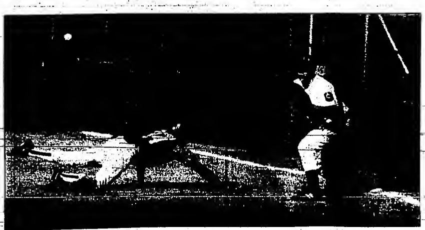
Application forms are now available at county auditors offices and DNR Wildlife Section offices. A separate application and $3 fee must be mailed to the DNR License Bureau for each hunt. Validated permits will be mailed to the hunters. An unlimited number of permits will be issued.

Twin Cities Metro and Southwest zones are identical to last year. The Fergus Falls/Benson Zone has been greatly expanded from last year's Fergus Falls/Alexandria Zone, and now extends to south of Benson. Maps of the special early-season Canada goose zones are shown in the 1994 Hunting Regulations Handbook, which will be available at most license vendors after Aug. 10.

Hunters may not hunt within 100 yards of surface water during the early seasons. Because most hunting in the zones is on private land, hunters are encouraged to get permission from landowners before the season.

In addition to the special permit, hunters must have a current small game license, federal duck stamp, and Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp, in accordance with state and federal regulations.

Applications should be mailed to the DNR License Bureau, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul 55155 by Aug. 20 to ensure hunters will receive the validated permit before the hunts.



Crookston runner Brock Hanson did a head-first dive back to the bag to beat a pick-off throw to Thief River Falls first baseman Joby Looker in the third inning of Tuesday's American Legion baseball doubleheader opener at Irv Wilson Field. Crookston won both games, including a 4-2 nine-inning first game and a 9-4 nightcap that included a four-run seventh.

Northwest Medical Center recently completed a $545,000 remodeling project at the CNC unit. With its 66 nursing personnel, the CNC unit can provide partial and total patient care for 90. The first and second floors of CNC provide patient care. Both CNC floors are very similar in design and layout. The remodeling consisted of installing new bathing areas, a nurses headquarters, family conference area, sprinkler system, and a computerized nurses call system. It is now more handicapped accessible and there is a resident and family lounge. Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors recently presented hospital staff, represented by Dick Spyhalski, chief executive officer, Sandy Parker and Janell Hudson, a More Progress award. Chamber Ambassadors pictured above are Dan Baumgartner (left), and David Dnkka.

BIBLE STUDY

What people need to know

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

People need to know how to repent. They need to be told more than to turn around and go the other way. They need to be told how to go the other way. They need to be told that practicing righteousness is the Way of the Lord (Matt. 21:32; Acts 18:25-26). Some 2,000 years ago, the disobedient spoke evil of this Way and this caused no small disturbance (Acts 19:9, 23). It will be the same today.

This Way is simply overcoming evil by doing good for the Father in heaven, as Jesus did (Rom. 12:21; Psalm 37:27). Jesus did all His good works in the Father's name (John 10:25). Now, we are to do good works in the Lord Jesus Christ's name, giving thanks through Him to God the Father (Col. 3:17). Jesus always did things that were pleasing to the Father (John 8:29). We, too, are to learn what is pleasing to the Lord by living to the Spirit and by doing all we do in love (Eph. 5:10; Gal. 5:25; 1 Cor. 16:14). We are to do good works, like Dorcas, who was continually doing deeds of kindness and charity (Rom. 2:6-8; Acts 9:36-41). She died in the Lord and was brought back to life to show us that those who do good works will be partakers in the resurrection of the righteous (John 5:29).

Doing good works is how you repent and return to God so that your sins are wiped away (Acts 3:19). Job knew his sins were not being held against him because he lived to be a servant of others for God (Job 14:16-17; 29:12-18; Matt. 25:33-40). He knew God considered him blameless and upright because he was turning away from evil by doing good for God (Job 1:1, 8; 2:3; Rom. 12:21).

Have you started to do good for God daily in your life? If so, can you say with Paul, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith; in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also all who have longed for His appearing" (2 Tim. 4:7-8)? Have you overcome the pulls of the flesh as our perfect example, Jesus Christ, did (John 16:33)? Do you have Jesus Christ formed in you (Gal. 4:19)? Have you been tested and perfected by God (2 Cor. 13:9, 11; 1 Peter 5:10)? Are you a new creation yet (Gal. 6:15)? Have you overcome by keeping Jesus Christ's works in your life daily (Rev. 2:26)?

Now you know how to live this Way, which Jesus Christ said is easy and pleasant (Matt. 11:30). It doesn't take intelligence, just daily obedience to your loving Father in heaven (Acts 6:7; 1 Cor. 1:26-28; 2:9). All you need to do is make all your words and deeds pleasing to Him (Heb. 13:16; Col. 3:17). Learn to be selfless, like Jesus Christ, by being a servant to others (Matt. 23:11). Put others first (1 Cor. 10:24). Practice love and charity to everyone you meet (Luke 11:41). Be a friend to everyone (Matt. 5:46-47). In short, live only to do good for God, as Jesus Christ said you should (Matt. 5:48).

Three people had minor injuries in this accident at Fourth and State on Tuesday, July 12. According to the accident report from the Thief River Falls police department, a Blazer driven by Jason Branden, Thief River Falls, was going north on State Avenue, when a van driven by Valaria Bakken Austad, Thief River Falls, allegedly failed to yield at the yield sign on Fourth Street and the vehicles collided. Austad was issued a citation for failure to yield. The force of the collision caused the Austad van to spin around and collide with a forklift owned by United Building Center and driven by Patrick Mayernik, route 2, Goodridge. The Austad vehicle was considered a total loss. Damage to the Branden vehicle was estimated at $2,000. There was no damage to the forklift. Robert Bakken, 13, a passenger in the Austad vehicle had cuts and bruises. Valeria Austad had cuts and bruises. Branden complained of a bump to his head.

"Golphers"
By Alan B. Swenson

A full color limited edition print, image size 13-1/2" by 19" personally signed and numbered by the artist. Commissioned in 1970 by the Thief River Falls Golf Club, the original oil painting measuring 48" by 68" still hangs in the clubhouse as a constant reminder of the propriety and decorum of this dignified sporting event. Although there has been speculation as to similarities between the characters in the painting and certain characters whom occasion the links of this northern Minnesota course, the artist assures us any likeness is entirely coincidental, almost.

Now you can enjoy a moment of golfing pleasure and summer fun year around with this print in your own home or office.

1890s corn binder is restored for display

Restoration of a McCormick corn binder built in the mid 1890s has been completed by young people working at the Pennington County Historical Society's Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village.

John Gunstad was project manager with Lydia Morken as assistant and Eddie Swantek as helper. It is one of several pieces of vintage farm equipment totally restored and on display in the village's farm equipment and automotive building.

Bonnie Swantek, director of the village and museum for the county historical society, said that other equipment is available to the society for restoration and display. She said that the society is looking for more old tractors to be displayed in the farm equipment building.

Asked to summarize the process involved in restoration, Gunstad and Morken prepared the following summary:

"The restoration process usually begins with a thorough washing. Most machinery comes covered in years of dirt and grease. Once the donated object is clean, we begin to sand and scrape. This time-consuming process lives up to its name. All surfaces are sanded by hand— without the smooth texture the primer and paint would appear blotchy and/or run.

"The majority of priming is done using a spray gun, although some require brushing by hand. The messiest step is also the most readily visible. Painting is done with a spray gun, but all touch-up is done using small brushes.

"The time required for each step varies depending on the size of the object being worked on, weather conditions (high humidity is terrible for painting) and the number of visitors exploring the Engelstad building.

"We try to maintain an upbeat atmosphere during each one of these steps. Conversation is jump-started through odd or unusual questions. The topics range from universal endpoint (What is at the edge of the universe?) to industry (How is tape made?) to human nature (Why aren't there playgrounds for adults?).

"Overall, restoration is challenging, messy....and a great summer job."

Lydia also researched the background of corn binders and found a considerable amount of information in a book entitled "American Farm Tools." It indicated that A. S. Peck of Geneva, IL, in 1892 was the first inventor to patent a satisfactory corn binder. Of all cereal grains, corn required more hand labor for harvesting than any other crop. Stalks were heavy and cumbersome to handle.

While Peck's machine did not work well enough to warrant widespread use, it contained the essential principles used on all the corn binders produced thereafter.

"Most corn binders had row dividers attached to the frame," Morken wrote. "Two or three endless chains caught the stalks and carried them to a serrated cutting knife which was given a reciprocating motion by a pitman attached to a weighted flywheel. The flywheel gave the cutter enough force to slice through the toughest corn stalks.

"A conveyor carried the stalks back to the binding deck where the bundle was packed and tied with twine by a knotting device similar to that used on grain binders. Discharge arms then pushed the bundle onto the ground.

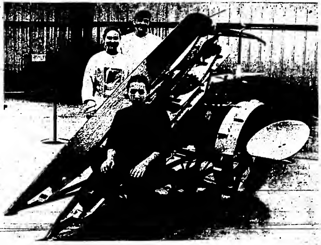
"Corn binders weighed an average of 1,500 pounds and worked best in fields where the corn had been planted in check-rows. The binder had a draft of 420 pounds and three horses were required to pull it.

"The corn binder harvested from seven to nine acres per day, and two or three shockers were needed to follow behind the binder.

"Although the cost of cutting an acre of corn with a binder was about the same as cutting it by hand and was slightly more expensive than by cutting it with a sled (largely due to the cost of the binder and the expenditure for the twine), farmers still preferred the binder because it made the corn harvest easier.

"The binder, however, knocked some ears off the stalks which had to be picked up by hand after the corn was shocked. By the late 1890s the implement companies were producing thousands of corn binders each year."

People interested in seeing this latest restoration and other equipment in the building are invited to visit the village on Oakland Park Road.



Another farm machinery restoration project has been completed by young people working at the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village. John Gunstad and Lydia Morken were project manager and assistant on the project and Eddie Swantek (seated) was a helper in restoring this McCormick corn binder now located in the farm equipment building at the village. Restoration involved a thorough cleaning, sanding and scraping, some wooden part replacement, and priming and painting to what research showed to be the original colors.

Soon, Long-distance Calls Within Your Minnesota Area Code Will Become 1+ Area Code + Number Calls

NEW DIALING PLAN IN MINNESOTA - EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 17, 1994

Beginning September 17, 1994 telephone customers in Minnesota will have to change the way they make long distance calls within the state. At that time it will be necessary for customers to include the 218 area code on every long distance call they make even if dialing from and to the same area code.

Customers currently dial 1 + the telephone number to make those calls within their home area code. With the new plan, customers will dial 1 + area code + the telephone number to make any long distance calls.

The new plan will not increase telephone rates and will be easy to use since the calls will be dialed the same way as out-of-state long distance calls. All other dialing remains the same.

"Minnesota customers steadily demand more telephone numbers each year. By implementing the new plan, more numbers will be available for customers," said Dolores M. Wikstrom.

In addition to growth, the expansion of the cellular telephone industry, an increase in requests for additional lines by residential and business customers, customized systems for large business customers and an increase in the use of pagers have placed a higher demand on telephone numbers.

Other states with major cities, such as Washington, D. C., Maryland, Virginia and Georgia, have adopted similar plans.

"Wikstrom Telephone Company will have an optional dialing period beginning May 14, 1994 so that customers may place calls dialing the old or new way. The optional dialing period will give customers time to get used to the new way of dialing," said Dolores M. Wikstrom.

Wikstrom Telephone Company recommends that large businesses and government customers with complex dialing systems reprogram their systems in anticipation of the change. Systems which are currently reprogrammed to dial 1 + the telephone number will need to be reprogrammed to incorporate the area code into the automatic dialing system for in-state toll calls.

Additionally, small businesses and residence customers with custom calling features, such as speed calling and call forwarding, will need to reprogram these features to include the 218 area code for any long distance call made within the state. Small businesses will also need to reprogram fax machines, alarm dialers, and personal computers that contain preprogrammed telephone numbers.

Alternatives to the new dialing plan were considered. Also, customer research showed that Minnesota customers wanted to know when a toll call was being made.

Other alternatives, such as being able to dial a telephone number without a 1 or an area code, would not indicate to customers that a charge applied to the call."

Customers dialing the old way after September 17, 1994 on calls that require the 218 area code will receive a recorded reminder.

Should You Be Entitled To Entitlements?

Interestingly enough, among the materials to come across our desk in recent days were articles on the same topic by two people with opposing viewpoints. The topic was entitlements and the writers were Dr. Richard Lesher, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and Martha McSteen, president of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare.

As might be expected, the full truth is probably somewhere between the two views, but both writers make compelling arguments for their positions.

Dr. Lesher laments the "absence" of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski from chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee because he was "one of the few members of Congress willing to acknowledge the fiscal crisis rapidly descending upon our government.

"The root of our peril," Dr. Lesher writes, "is the runaway entitlement spending machine—Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, federal retirement programs—that is consuming an ever larger share of the federal budget, leaving less and less available for other uses, such as national defense, drug enforcement, infrastructure and health care."

McSteen states there are two types of entitlement programs. "Social entitlements are one type," she writes. "They are social because the government and citizens feel a moral obligation to ensure these services are available to those in need. These entitlements include programs such as food stamps and Medicaid. Persons who meet the eligibility requirements set by law are 'entitled' to them. The money to pay for these programs comes from the general budget, or income tax revenues.

"The second type of entitlement is the 'earned' or 'true' entitlement. Social Security and Medicare Part A fall into this category. Money for these benefit programs does not come from the general budget, but rather from special, dedicated trust funds. Each worker and each employer contributes to these trust funds through payroll taxes. These trust funds are earmarked for one purpose—and one purpose only—to provide benefits to the nation's current and future retired and disabled workers, their dependents and survivors. Other 'earned' entitlements include civil service pensions and unemployment compensation."

Dr. Lesher counters that Rostenkowski is one of the few leaders of the Washington political establishment who will admit publicly that claims of a vast Social Security Trust Fund set aside to accommodate the needs of future retirees are nonsense. "Uncle Sam is spending the excess income generated by Social Security today as quickly as it comes in," Dr. Lesher writes. "There is nothing in the bank except a stack of IOUs reflecting our obligations to ourselves."

McSteen says that Social Security trust funds are running a surplus of close to $50 billion a year and that the larger the surplus, the easier it is for Congress to hide the true size of the deficit. If self-financed trust funds are taken out of the budget and deficit calculations, she writes, defense spending makes up 26 per cent of the deficit and interest payments on the debt account for another 26 per cent.

Dr. Lesher says that assuming the government IOUs to the Social Security Trust Fund are honored, it is still projected to go bankrupt by 2029, seven years earlier than the experts were predicting as recently as last year. Prospects for Medicare are even bleaker. He points out that "for young people entering the work force today Social Security is a poor financial investment. A basic investment in a six per cent annuity would produce a retirement income many times that provided by Social Security."

McSteen states that the founders of Social Security envisioned and designed a universal social insurance program, one to which all workers would contribute and from which all workers would receive benefits. Removing this universal aspect (through a means test which would reduce benefits in accordance with other income) would turn Social Security into a welfare program for thousands of Americans.

"Social Security is a compulsory program—an earned right guaranteed by law," she writes. "What would happen, if after a working lifetime of paying Social Security taxes, you suddenly were told your benefits were reduced, or even eliminated, because you had managed to invest and have additional income after retirement? Social Security was designed to encourage workers to save to supplement their retirement earnings,—not to penalize them for doing as much."

We agree. Had government invested Social Security tax income as it should have instead of carrying paper balances and spending the money, there would be no crisis in the program and greater reality in the federal budget and deficit. The temptation to raid earned entitlements would be removed and the retirement future of millions of Americans would not be in jeopardy.

"Solutions are available, but none of them is politically palatable," Dr. Lesher writes. ".....Also lacking is any sensible explanation of how Congress can hope to pay for a health care reform plan when the federal treasury is bare and entitlements are exploding. A fiscal reality check is needed in Congress, and soon."

"Contact your lawmakers and let them know how important protecting Social Security and Medicare is to you," McSteen summarizes. "We must insist that the federal government keep its promise to today's and tomorrow's retirees, workers, survivors and disabled."

4-H market livestock sale July 24

As part of the 93rd annual Pennington County Fair, the 1994 sale of 4-H club market livestock will take place Sunday, July 24, at 3:30 p.m. next to the livestock barn on the fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. The public is encouraged to attend the event and bid on stock for sale.

"The 4-H livestock committee would like to stress ribbon placings in regard to premiums in the auction," states Van Swanson, Pennington county extension educator.

"One of the goals of the auction is to reward 4-H members for excellence in livestock projects and to encourage 4-H members to improve in their livestock project areas. Only blue ribbon animals will be sold, with the grand and reserve champion animals sold first in each type of livestock."

Any animal purchased can be marketed or processed locally and transportation of the animals for processing can be arranged. Bidding starts at market price and premiums paid above that price are deductible as donations by business purchasers.

Photographs of the club member and the purchaser with the animal will be taken and given to the buyer.

Pennington Co. board meeting
(April 26, 1994)

■ Joan Abercrombie, representing the Northwest Minnesota Multi-County Housing and Redevelopment Authority, met with the county board to review the results of a survey authorized by the county board.

■ The sheriff was authorized to investigate what it would take to increase the jail's capacity to 22 beds for a three-month trial period.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY
APRIL 26, 1994 - 5:00 P.M.

Pursuant to adjournment, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Commissioners' room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, April 26, 1994 at 5:00 p.m. Members present: Comstock, Murphy, Naplin, Swanson and Jensen. Members absent: none.

County Assessor Adelina Olson presented a request for abatement and Homestead classification for the property owned by Sharon Murphy described as Lots 35 and 36, Block 18 of Red Lake Rapids Addition. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to approve the application for Homestead classification on parcel #25-06-197-80 owned by Sharon Murphy for taxes payable 1994. Motion unanimously carried.

Joan Abercrombie representing the Northwest Minnesota Multi-County Housing and Redevelopment Authority met with the County Board to review the results of the survey authorized by the County Board of the easterly seven townships to see if a Small Cities Development Program Application would be warranted. Joan Abercrombie stated that they had a 68% return on the survey and they still expected a few more to be returned. The results seem to indicate a need for this program. Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to approve the Memorandum of Understanding with the Northwest Multi-County Housing and Redevelopment Authority to write a Small Cities Redevelopment Program Application to the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development on behalf of Pennington County for the seven townships including Highlanding, Star, Hickory, Deer Park, Mayfield, Goodridge and Rainer. The fee for these services will be $3,000 to be paid by Pennington County. Motion unanimously carried.

At this time, the County Board drew a name from among the names of the people that returned the survey by the deadline. Larry Kotrba was drawn as the winner of the $100 credit on his Red Lake Electric bill.

County Engineer, Dalton Schulz, then met with the County Board regarding the following items concerning the County Highway Department.

Robert Gunstad has requested a field approach off S.A. #3 to service the SE1/4 of Section 34 and SW1/4 of Section 35 in Rocksbury Township. The County Board held over action on this item until a policy could be formulated that could address this situation.

The Highway Department had installed the railroad ties as parking barriers at the parking lot adjacent to the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village but due to the weather had not done the grading and placement of gravel for the parking lot. This will be done when weather permits.

The Board was informed of the breakup of approximately 50' of C.R. #62. The road has since been blocked off and will be patched temporarily with Class V material and with an asphalt overlay when the S.A. #7 overlay gets underway. At the same time, Jeff Lannoye has obtained the majority of the signatures for cleaning the ditch along C.R. #62 and replacement or resetting of certain culverts currently installed along County Road #62. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock that the County Engineer proceed with grading the ditch along County Road #62 and replacing or resetting culverts in approaches along the same road in accordance with plans developed by the County Highway Department. Motion unanimously carried.

Other items discussed but with no action taken included Robert Houske's request to petition lands out of County Ditch #62, discussion on the request for variance of the Norden Township Zoning Ordinance to allow gravel crushing and S.D. 564's request for a bus transfer station along County State Aid Highway 17.

Lyle Olson, who owns ag land adjacent to Johnson Drive, requested clarification on what the County's involvement in the improvement of Johnson Drive was. He stated that he had heard that the County was selling bonds for the project and that he objects to being assessed for improvement to this road. The County Engineer explained that the County had committed $33,000 to grade Johnson Drive from Trunk Highway #1 to where Johnson Drive turns easterly. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to notify the North Township Chairman and Johnson Drive Residents Association that the County would not be selling bonds for the additional cost to pave Johnson Drive. Motion unanimously carried.

County Sheriff, Gerald Moe, Regional Sentenced to Serve Coordinator, Dennis Drury and Pennington County Sentenced to Serve Coordinator, Scott Peters, made a presentation to the County Board regarding having a State employed STS crew leader. Pennington County would still have one full-time and one part-time position person working in the sentence to serve program as it is now but would need to pickup a share of the State employee's budget. Advantages include more supervisory staff, another van to get crews to the worksites and additional equipment. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to approve the adding of a State employed Sentenced to Serve crew leader. Motion unanimously carried.

At this time, the Sheriff submitted a letter of resignation from Nancy Olson as a Dispatcher/Jailer effective April 18, 1994. Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to accept the resignation of Nancy Olson effective 4-18-94 and wish her well in her new position with the Minnesota State Patrol. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Comstock moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to authorize the Sheriff to post within the department the opening of a full-time dispatcher. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Comstock moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to authorize the Sheriff to purchase a new squad car off of the State Cooperative Purchasing Contract. Motion unanimously carrie

The Sheriff then discussed occupancy of the jail which has run 99% full for the first three months of the year. The amount of outstanding warrants is increasing and the need exists to house prisoners in other county facilities or to request the Department of Corrections to temporarily increase the permitted occupancy of our jail from 14 to 22. After discussion of the alternatives, Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to authorize the Sheriff to investigate what will be required to increase the jail's capacity to 22 beds for a 3 month trial period and report back to the County Board at their next meeting. Motion unanimously carried.

Rick Nordhagen, Howard Person, Steve Nordhagen, Shirley Borgen and Roger Borgen met with the County Board to discuss the compost management service agreement. Howard Person stated that the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency suggested not signing the agreement until the Attorney General's office has reviewed and approved the agreements.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Naplin, seconded by Commissioner Swanson and upon vote was unanimously carried.

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Chairman and County Auditor be authorized to sign the agreements with SWIS Corp. upon receipt of approval from the Minnesota Attorney General's Office.

Howard then discussed the Hilton Hog farm which he has been told is again housing hogs. He will be contacting the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency of the violation and ask the MN PCA to send Dave Olin, County Attorney, copies of any correspondence from the MN PCA to the owners of the Hilton Hog farm.

WHEREAS, the Federal Government is in the process of implementing an Empowerment Zone and Enterprise Community (EZ/EC) Program which is a critical element of the Clinton-Gore Administration's community revitalization strategy and since designated areas will receive Federal grant funds and substantial tax benefits and will have access to other programs; and,

WHEREAS, the County of Pennington has received information that Census Block Numbering Area 9904, located in Pennington County, Minnesota, which includes parts of the City of Thief River Falls, North Township and Rocksbury Township, is eligible for designation as a "Rural Enterprise Community"; and,

WHEREAS, there are two other general areas in the State of Minnesota in or around the Cities of Bemidji and Staples, which are also eligible for designation and a multi-community collaboration is likely to have a better chance of receiving designation, and,

WHEREAS, Northwest Technical College, an umbrella organization serving the three Communities, has expressed its willingness to be the Lead-Coordinating Entity in preparing a Nomination for Enterprise Community Designation and to develop a Strategic Plan, which is the core of the Nomination, for a multi-community collaboration.

A break in the week's weather salvages Pennington Co. Fair

Premiums paid and carnival receipts establish new records despite wet start

Although it was far from ideal, weather took a turn for the better Saturday and Sunday to help salvage the 93rd Annual Pennington County Fair.

Rain Wednesday and Thursday following excessive rains in the three weeks prior to the fair dampened the grounds if not the enthusiasm of fair goers. The Gospel music show at the bandshell Wednesday evening had its crowd cut by drizzle and the Thursday evening performance of the Matt Vorderbruggen Orchestra was also hit by rain and moved to Bandshell II next to the arena.

A promising day on Friday brought a good crowd to the grounds and the midway and other areas were beginning to dry when a rain, wind, lightning and light hail storm hit shortly after 10:30 p.m. The storm shut down the midway and resulted in cancellation of two out of three Northwest Minnesota Team Penning championship events at the horse show arena (see separate team penning story in this issue of The Times).

About 125 young people had paid admission for the teen dance at the grandstand when the rains came. A number of prizes remain to be claimed from admission tickets purchased. Prizes offered and ticket numbers drawn for each include the following:

Any person with one of the tickets listed may contact fair board secretary Ray Safranski at Anderson, Poissant, Kays & Co. to claim the prize. Winners who claimed prizes Friday were Angie Hasnedl, St. Hilaire, C.D. holder; Berdine Swanson, Lake Bronson, $20 gift certificate; and Alana Spilde, Karlstad, Ace of Base C.D.

The rain Friday night created more wet grounds but sunshine and a light wind Saturday and continued dry weather through Sunday made a remarkable transformation in the ground conditions. Joe Diffie's 7 and 9 p.m. performances Saturday in front of the grandstand were presented in ideal weather, as was the demolition derby and the open horse show on Sunday. The Diffie shows drew about 1,500 total attendance—not nearly enough to cover cost of the show.

The horse show arena was soupy for the 4-H horse show and an open horse show on Saturday but had dried considerably for the open show Sunday which drew a large number of entries and continued throughout most of the day.

The Jaycees demolition derby had a crowd of about 1,250 people in attendance with six heats of crashing plus special events.

Somewhat surprisingly, despite the wet grounds early in the fair, the Murphy Bros. Exposition carnival had a good play with gross receipts up about nine per cent from a year ago, according to fair board secretary Ray Safranski. Last year's carnival receipts were up $8,000 from 1992 for an all-time high.

Receipts from parking on the grounds were about on a par from a year ago and both years were up from 1992.

Premiums paid continued their upward climb to a new high of $10,447.25, surpassing the 1993 mark of $20,351.84. The total was $8,423 in 1990, increased to $8,871 in 1991 and $9,389.50 in 1992.

Open class dairy had a large increase in premiums from $695 last year to $1,107.50 this year, more than off-setting a decline in beef premiums from $1,474.50 to $1,265. Sheep, swine, poultry and goats had slight declines while rabbits increased slightly. Horse entries earned $1,882.50 in premiums, up from $1,722.34 a year ago.

Other increases were seen in dogs, agriculture, adult and children's culinary, arts and crafts (from $200.50 to $430) and photography, which was an expanded exhibit area this year.

Open class premiums totaled

A jumble of concrete blocks mixed with scaffolding was all that remained of the north wall of the multi-purpose room under construction at Franklin Middle School after Friday night's storm. The wall—70 feet long and 24 feet high—was completed over a week ago and block layers were working on other parts of the school project. Clean-up of the site began Monday and rebuilding is expected to take about a week and a half. Although the rebuilding will delay completion of the multi-purpose room, classes are still scheduled to start in the school on opening day of September 6.

Storm causes damage

Friday evening in Thief River Falls, a severe storm knocked out power, downed trees, damaged roofs, fences and satellite dishes.

Arlo Rude, director of utilities said the electrical outage was caused by tree branches breaking cables and blown fuses. Utility department crews worked from 11 p.m. to 7:30 a.m. in an effort to restore electricity to residences in the community. Most of the damage occurred in the north part of town in areas north of 13th Street and along North Dewey.

Madelyn Vigen, co-director of the park and recreation department, said there was a great deal of damage to trees in the city. City crews worked from 11 p.m. until 2 a.m. just removing the trees that blocked city streets and sidewalks. Most of the sever damage occurred in the north part of town in areas along Knight Avenue. LaFave Park, the swimming beach area, was struck hard as was Centennial and Finsbury parks. Vigen said beginning 7 a.m. Saturday, city crews were out removing some of the trees pushed aside during the previous evening and removing downed trees in the parks.

Vigen said local residents have been wonderful. She said that as soon as they were able to assess the damage they contacted radio stations to notify residents to neatly put tree branches on berms with the stumps point out. She said residents did exactly what was requested of them.

City crews will pick up all tree limbs and trunks if placed on the berm. City employees will not drive on private property to retrieve tree limbs and tree trunks. Vigen said it may take a little longer for city crews to collect tree trunks. Residents may also have private contractors remove damaged trees.

Monday morning a meeting was held between the street and sanitation department and park and recreation departments to set up a schedule in an effort to deal with the storm damage.

Vigen said it may take awhile to pick up all of the downed trees and tree branches. She said they hope to be completed within 10 days.

Vigen said an inventory of tree loss had not been taken but will be addressed as soon as they begin to catch up.

Residents throughout the community were talking about their experiences during the storm and damage or lack of damage to their property.

Roofs at Handy Farms and the former Variety Sales building were heavily damaged by the storm. Pictures of those building appear in this issue of The Times.

A car owned by Charlone Nilson, 1002 Knight Avenue North, and parked in a driveway was destroyed when a pine tree fell on it. The tree was so large that it extended across the street and hit the top of a house owned by Philmore Nilson, knocking off shingles.

Strong winds also toppled a 70 by 24 foot wall at the construction project site at Franklin Middle School. The wall, which was to be part of the new multi-purpose building, had been completed over a week ago and block layers were working on other parts of the project. Some scaffolding and other equipment used in construction of the wall were also damaged.

This compact car was turned into a subcompact late Friday evening when the wind toppled a large pine tree onto its roof. The car owned by Charlotte Nilson was parked facing west beside the Nilson residence at 1002 Knight Avenue North when the large pine was uprooted and fell across the car, the street and struck the Philmore Nilson home across the street to the south, tearing off some shingles. The top of the stump cut off to release the remainder of the tree trunk measured 15 inches in diameter.

Soo Line negotiations break down Monday

United Transportation Union accepted the National Mediation board's call to bring together both sides in the Soo Line strike for a session on Monday in Minneapolis, but negotiations broke off Monday night.

The NMB issued the call last Friday morning, stating that "the public interest" dictates that more efforts should be made to resolve the dispute.

UTU Vice President Bruce Wigent has accepted the NMB's invitation. "We will be there on Monday morning," he said. "Since the strike began, we have made clear that we are willing to negotiate anywhere, any time."

"The rock-solid solidarity of our members and the 16 other labor organizations has absolutely astonished the Soo Line executives. They had planned on playing us off against each other, and breaking the back of labor on the Soo Line. But with courageous support across the board, Soo Line traffic has been cut to a microscopic trickle," Wigent said. "Our surveys show that Soo Line is running well under 10 per cent of its normal traffic in all of the sites."

"We hope that the strike is finally teaching the company that they cannot operate a railroad without workers, and that we deserve to be treated fairly."

Negotiations, however, broke off after CP-Soo asked mediators for a recess.

"This demonstrates the company's intransigence and disdain for the process and the National Mediation board," said Wigent.

The UTU put forward a new compromise proposal, but CP-Soo refused to bargain, failed to give a counter proposal and asked the mediation service to recess.

"Once agin, we saw a total

$8,809.25 (up from $8,554) and 4-H club premiums totaled $1,638 (a decline from $1,797).

The 4-H market livestock sale cantinued ta grow in popularity with a number of champion and blue ribbon winners receiving premium prices for their animals and poultry. The entries were weighed and current market prices established to use as a base for starting the bidding.

Tatal market value of the livestock was $6,922 with sales totaling $11,285 for a premium af $4,363. Seven cattle valued at $5,768 brought $8,650; six hogs valued at $471 brought $1,170; Seven sheep valued at $584 brought $1,115 and eight chickens valued at $98.30 brought $350.

refusal to bargain in the CP's attempt to break the unian," said Wigent. "The real casualty of this multi-national's intransigence will be the standard of living in the 10 midwestern states the Soo Line serves.

Wigent added that the UTU challenges the CP-Soo to public debate of all issues anytime, anywhere. They are also unconditionally willing to negotiate.

The strike began July 14 among 1,100 UTU members an the Soo Line, who were quickly supported by abaut 3,000 members of 16 other unions.

Key issues in the strike are wages, health insurance, and "crew consist" - the size of work crews. The UTU views the crew-consist issue as a matter af warker and public safety. UTU members have endured the last six years without a pay increase by the Soo Line.

Storm Friday causes considerable damage

Lanny Syr, project manager, said it put the contractor about one and half weeks behind schedule. He believes additional man-power will be put on the project and they will be able to catch up. He said it will not affect school opening, scheduled for September 6.

Syr noted that while the strong winds knocked down the wall it did not touch a bundle of plastic foam insulation less than 50-feet away.

The strong winds caused a lot of tree damage on the new nine-hale additian at the golf course. This will not delay the opening of the golf course. Following the storm, an estimated 40 people went out to the golf course to help with the clean-up.

Residents living near Riverview trailer court alsa experienced a great deal of tree damage. One resident noted that while the winds knocked down large trees in her yard, it didn't tauch the plastic bunny on her deck.

One insurance agent said he had received about 15 claims, most of which were fairly minor. He said more damage occurred north of town. He said he was eware of at least one crop damaged by hail.

TRF residents asked to help purchase Soo depot

The City of Thief River Falls has entered into a purchase agreement with the Soo Line Railroad to acquire the Soo Line depot located an Third Street in downtown Thief River Falls. The purchase, however, is contingent upan raising approximately $200,000 from the public, receiving a $200,000 matching grant from a public benefactar, and securing $250,000 to $300,000 from a third party private develaper.

Mayor Bob Reeve said during a meeting Wednesday that the city is not interested in owning another building but is willing to ba the vehicle ta accomplish the preservation of the depot.

Nat a lot of time remains to raise money to purchase and restore the building. Under the terms af the purchase agreement, the City of Thief River Falls has until the end of November to make a decision as to whether or not they wish to take possession of the building. During this period, the city must perform site surveys, legal abstracting; have an environmental survey of the property completed and, most importantly, raise funds to pay for improvements to the building.

According to a news release from the Depot Preservation committee, "The cost estimates that had been prepared in 1990 using local resources to do the estimating were revamped and adjusted in September 1993. The intent was to make the minimum improvements to the Depot necessary to halt deterioration of the building, address environmental concerns, and to make the building habitable by providing a new heating system and rewiring the building. This amended estimate also included site Improvements with provisions for construction of on-site parking which would be needed for any future use of the restored structure the committee could reasonably anticipate. The estimate did nat include architectural or engineering services. That preliminary estimate came to about $400,000.

"The Depot Preservation committee and the city council's finance committee decided that before a public fund-raising effort was started, a preliminary architectural-engineering report prepared by a professional consulting firm should be completed. Michael J. Burns Architects of Moorhead was engaged and a "Soo Line Depot Restoration/Adaptive Reuse Study" was delivered to the committee in mid-June. Burns indicated to the committee that the building was structurally sound and in surprisingly good condition considering the fact that it has not been heated for the past four winters.

The cost.

"The preliminary project costs summary break-down in the Burns' study are as follows: total acquisition costs $29,800; asbestos and lead paint abatement $60,000, interiar building improvements $347,800, mechanical (plumbing and heating) $79,500, electrical (service, controls, fire alarms, telephone wiring and lighting) $55,400, contingencies for unanticipated costs $48,300, architectural engineering fees and expenses $58,100. The total preliminary estimated cost is $678,900.

Stewart said total acquisition costs involves many different costs including the cost of the building, which is $10,000. The total site is 170-feet by 180-feet. The depot has about 9,000 square feet of floor space, including commons areas.

According to the news release, "It should be noted that the architects and engineers included an excess of $200,000 for interior improvements, including handicapped accessibility to the second floor of the building, that were not ariginally contemplated by the committee. However, it is important for the committee, the city and potential users of the building to have these estimates of costs.

The news release further stated that, "It has become very apparent that the reason the Soo Line railroad was not able to sell the building on the private market was the price that the Soo Line felt that they had to have for the property, but, more importantly, the costs associated with making the necessary improvements to the building so it could again be occupied and put to good use."

Putting the building to use.

Tha restored depot could lend itself to a multitude of public or private uses. In fact, Don Stewart, community development director, said he had participated in three or four different meetings and had discussed some very interesting uses for the facility.

The Depot committee news release, states that, "the main floor and baggage-express wing at the north end of the structure could be a very attractive location for a restaurant and lounge or could be subdivided for office space or small retail outlets such as boutiques, craft shops, art galleries and other similar shops. The second story lends itself to remodeling for what could be very attractive office space for a number of types of businesses such as professional firms.

"The city council has maintained that it does not wish to use taxpayers' dollars to preserve and maintain the Depot either in the short-term or in the long-run. The City, however, is willing to be the vehicle to accomplish the preservation of the depot, and, if the city takes possession of the property, would request that it be placed on the National Historic Register."

It is the view of the Depot committee and the city council that the ultimate goal of the public should be to see that this historic structure be preserved.

Mayor Reeve and Larry Rohlf, chairman of the Depot committee, said it is their hope that the public will not necessarily see this as an effort to subsidize a private developer but an effort to preserve the depot. The very real alternative, Rohlf said, is that the depot will be torn down.

Mayor Reeve said the building will remain on the tax rolls. Through an agreement with a private developer, the city will ensure that the outside of the building will not be altered by placing it on the National Historic Register.

Locomotive 1024.

The Depot committee also addressed the issue of Steam Locomotive No. 1024. In the committee's news release the committee stated that, "It should also be noted that a great deal of concern has been expressed by persons in the community about the final dispositian af steam locomotive No. 1024, which is displayed an the depot site. The locomotive, which was donated by the Soo Line railroad to the city in 1956 to be maintained as a historic museum piece, is a Mikado Class steam engine with a 2-8-2 configuration and is, itself, of historic value. Built by the American Locomative company in 1912 for the MONON railroad of Indiana, which sold this locomotive and seven others ta the Soo Line in 1941 and 1942, is the last known existing steam locomative of this class that was operated by the MONON railroad.

"Although two outside entities have expressed interest in acquiring locomotive No. 1024 because of its historic value, it is the desire of the committee to retain the locomotive in the city. In order to provide the maximum number of on-site parking stalls, the committee has discussed reorienting the locomotive on the site or relocating it across the street and putting it on display in Elks Park. Relocating the locomotive could cost as much as $25,000 and this cost is not included in the Burns' study."

Funding.

The Depot committee has explored whether grant funds were available for the project. They discovered that grant monies for these types af projects were plentiful in the 1960s and 1970s, but have largely dried up. Two grant applications have been submitted, one was funded and the other was not.

A private benefactor has come forward and indicated a willingness to provide matching funds of up to $200,000 to preserve and restore the depot.

According to the news release, "Approximately $200,000 to $250,000 would have to be raised from private donations. A $25,000 grant from a private foundation is being used to fund the 'up-front' casts that must be incurred. The committee is in the process of interviewing private developers who have expressed an interest in the building to see if they wauld have interest in becoming a partner in the project. It is hoped that the private developer(s), who would be the eventual owners, would provide $200,000 to $300,000 to assist in implementing the improvements outlined in the Burns' study with additional private monies to be used for furniture and fixtures, depending on the eventual use."

The committee.

"Gene Beito and Dave Strang, who have been members of the Depot Preservation committee since its inception in 1990, have agreed to serve as co-chairpersons in the effort to solicit the $200,000 to $250,000 to be raised through private donations. Donations, which will be refundable if the total funds needed cannot be obtained, will be tax deductible. Persons wishing to make donations may contact either Beito (681-4020) or Strong (681-4949) or may mail checks, payable to "City of Thief River Falls," to the Community Development Department, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Persons with questians can contact Community Development Director Don Stewart at 681-2500 or any of the members of the Depot Preservation committee.

"In addition to Beito and Strong, the committee members include Chairman Larry Rohlf, Mayor Bob Reeve, Bob Bergan, Nanci Kezar, Chuck Kimbrough, Yvonne Pederson, Don Stewart, John Tofte and Jerry Wigness. Pat Swanson, representing the Pennington County Historical Society, and Winton Forsberg, representing retired Soo Line employees, have sat in on recent committee meetings."

Mayor's statement.

Mayor Bob Reeve stated Wednesday, "We are in effect, then speaking about creating a public-private partnership which would be aimed at first preserving and restoring the depot, ensuring that it would remain a historic property, and, finally turning it into a successful business location with income-producing potential, as well as a tax-paying property."

Tips on how to have a crime-free vacation

The Department of Public Safety is offering crime prevention tips for Minnesotans traveling during the summer months.

"The best advice is to use common sense while traveling," said Charles Rix, executive director of Minnesota Crime Watch, a program coordinated through the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA).

Whether you are traveling on business or on vacation, crime prevention should be incorporated into your trip. Do not let your vacation or business trip be ruined by becoming another crime statistic. Traveling tips are being offered for those who drive, fly, stay at hotels or motels, those who go sightseeing and those who travel to other cities.

The Bureau of Criminal Apprehension is a division of the Minnesota Department of Public Safety.

If you are driving:

- Prior to any long-distance motor vehicle trips, have your vehicle serviced by a reputable mechanic.
- Try to load your vehicle in the attached garage to avoid advertising to passersby that you are leaving. Never pack your car, camper or trailer the night before if it must be left in the driveway. It is tempting to thieves and an advertisement that you are going to be away.
- Always be aware of your surroundings.
- Always check the interior of your vehicle before entering.
- Do not stop and assist a stranded motorist. Go to the nearest phone booth and call for help.
- Never let your gas tank get below one-fourth full.
- Use well-traveled roads; avoid shortcuts.
- Keep your doors locked and windows up at all times.
- Do not pick up hitchhikers.
- Never advertise your plans to strangers. If you think you are being followed, drive to the nearest public-area telephone and call the police.
- Always park in well-lighted areas.
- Always carry your purse or wallet with you.
- Keep your valuables out of sight, preferably locked in the trunk.
- Engrave your car stereo, CB radio, car phone and other removable items with your OPID number.
- Avoid late night driving.
- If lost, stop at a well-lighted service station for directions.
- Use a locking gas cap on your vehicle.
- Avoid consulting maps in public because it draws attention to the fact that you are unfamiliar with the area.
- Keep an emergency road kit that includes a good flashlight and batteries.
- When you park, do not leave anything of value visible in the car. Put everything in the trunk and take the trunk key with you. (This is applicable wherever you go, even at home.)
- If you leave the car with an attendant, leave only the ignition key and note the odometer reading on your claim check as the attendant watches you. Always take the claim check with you.
- Check the area before getting out. If anything looks suspicious, drive away and find another parking place.

If traveling by plane:

- Use hard-construction suitcases so they cannot be cut open.

SPEAKING OF

. . . Murphy and Me — Meandering

There is no form of exercise quite so relaxing as taking a dog for a walk in the evening. My dog is named Murphy because I can't imagine calling to a dog with a name that doesn't end in an "ee" sound, but that is another story.

The best time to walk Murphy is when it is just starting to get dark, after the sun has set. It is usually quiet and tranquil in my neighborhood and there aren't too many cars zooming around to disrupt the peacefulness. Murphy and I can wander slowly down the street and listen to the sleepy peeping of the birds as they settle down for the night and now and then we can hear music or some such from the houses that we pass.

Murphy loves to sniff things on his walk, and this is best done when I let him drag his leash behind him. This is a great way to exercise him because I can walk as slowly as I want and he can hurry around in circles sniffing everything several times and bounce up and down the sidewalks and boulevards and get lots of exercise while I can be sedate and get just enough exercise for an older lady my age.

Murphy and I don't like loud cars or other dogs. They definitely disrupt our walks. Murphy is scared of loud cars, but I am not scared — just irritated. However, I am scared of other dogs and it appears that Murphy is not.

Murphy is not very big, but I don't think anyone has told him this. He gets very angry when he sees another dog, and it doesn't seem to matter that the other dog is two or three times Murphy's size. He barks and carries on as if he were a giant.

Of course, it is only me that gets scared when we meet another dog, and I quickly grab Murphy's leash and pull him away — fast. I don't want to be caught in the middle of a dog fight! All the while we are heading away from the other dog, Murphy is twisted around, barking and carrying on, sounding like he is ready to do serious harm to the other dog.

Actually, I doubt that he could do much of anything to another dog. He is less than a foot high and doesn't even have his permanent teeth yet. I'm afraid his bark would be much worse than his bite if it came to a real confrontation.

Our very favorite walks are those when we do not meet any loud cars or any other dogs. Then we can meander around the block and sometimes over to the park, where Murphy can sniff and race around to his heart's content.

I can tell by the way Murphy acts that the park is filled with wonderful smells. People come there to eat their lunch and walk their dogs and what better things are there for a dog to sniff than traces of food and other dogs? I like the park because I don't have to worry about the street and I can sit down while Murphy runs.

Murphy is also a wonderful watch dog. He must have very good ears because he can hear people out in the alley or across the street in the front. He always barks when he hears someone who isn't family. Sometimes he barks when he hears someone who is family, too.

Murphy always barks when we meet people on our walks. He will see them a block away and start to bark. I suppose he is warning them that he is there and so am I and they'd better not bother us.

The people Murphy barks at never seem to mind, though. Actually, I can't understand it, but they often laugh.

Could it be because Murphy is covered with hair like a little floor mop and doesn't look like a guard dog? Well, I know that he is a pretty good little protector, even if he does look like a teddy bear.

When I first got Murphy I wondered if I wasn't too old to have a bouncing puppy. I was afraid I was too sedate and set in my ways to make room in my life for a wild little dog.

But, so far, Murphy and I are getting along all right. I think we will manage just fine, so long as we can keep having our meandering little walks every evening and he keeps the strangers away from me and I can keep him away from other dogs.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

Once again we have been reminded that the "wind blows where it wills" as we saw the power of wind in the storm that affected our area this past Friday night. I was not at home during the storm. In fact, I was on a mini-vacation. Our children, now young men, were at home watching the storm and tending to our house.

I heard about the storm as I called home to check in with our boys. As we began our conversation, my son said he just had to get off of the phone as there was a good storm going with lots of wind. Later he told me that he felt that the windows on the house sounded as if they could have been blown away by the wind. He told me that he heard quite a bit of noise and upon investigating he discovered some branches of an ancient tree had fallen and were blocking the road. After the storm quieted, our sons called us to say all was well – the police were out in the street by our home as were crews who began to clear the limbs from the street. The house was fine. All that was left to do was to pick up the remaining branches and twigs the next day. Calm had returned.

I imagine that many of you have your own stories from Friday night's storm. Just a ride or a walk around our town shows that damage to trees was widespread. Why some trees were snapped off and others left standing is simply part of the wind blowing where it wills. We merely observe the evidence of its power. Some yards have seemingly mountains of debris waiting to be disposed of by the city crews while other yards have little if any debris from the storm.

The wind is powerful. More powerful than we can imagine. We have a tree in our backyard that still stands after Friday night's storm, but you can tell by the ground around it that the wind gave it a mighty push. It lean's about 5 degrees differently than it had. How can something we can't see – the wind – push such a mighty strong object enough to move it? The wind blows where it wills. We see its evidence everywhere.

We not only have tree damage in our town, but we have damage to property as well. We've all heard about the roof of one of the restaurants in town being damaged. And, now we have also heard and seen that a wall at Franklin Middle School came down. How can something we can't see – this powerful wind – cause a sturdy wall to come tumbling down? The wind is powerful, we see its evidence, yet we don't see the wind, and we are awed.

I dare say that if I had been home when this storm had arrived last Friday, I would have been a basket-case. I don't like storms. I don't like the unknown that they bring with them. I probably would have had all of us in the basement under the stairs. I have lived in Kansas – tornado alley. In Kansas just about everyone in our small town had a storm shelter of some sort. In the parsonage that we lived in there, a storm shelter of solid concrete was built into the basement of the house. We needed to go to this shelter enough times that we even kept a chair or two there for our comfort!! I saw a tornado while we lived in Kansas and I felt our house slightly lift as another tornado flew over our small town. The wind blows where it wills, we have no control over it. We sometimes tremble in it. We are always in awe of the work it can do.

We who live in the Great Plains become friends with the wind. We know its strength, we know too that it can be our help. It creates electrical power. It dries our wet fields. We know that its strength can also cause great damage. Friday we were reminded of its mighty power.

Rep. Finseth of Warren files in bid for reelection in 1B

Rep. Tim Finseth of Warren has officially filed with the Secretary of State's office for his reelection bid in legislative district 1B.

Elected in a special election to succeed Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls who resigned to become state ASCS director, Rep. Finseth received the Independent Republican party endorsement in April.

Finseth said he plans on running a strong, positive campaign focusing on issues of concern that he has heard from area residents, including state spending, business development, individual property rights and welfare reform.

"We need to keep the state in sound financial shape by prioritizing spending within the financial resources that we have rather than by raising taxes," Finseth said. He said District 1B has a strong tradition of leadership and that the interests and concerns of the district's residents have always been his first priority.

Have a crime-free vacation

- Suitcases should have solid, well-secured handles and good locks.
- Do not pack valuables, especially fragile items. Baggage marked "fragile" is an invitation to theft.
- If you must take valuables, pack your valuables in a carry-on bag that you keep with you at all times.
- Never leave your luggage unattended; keep it in sight and within reach at all times.
- Use only your initials and your business address on your luggage tags. Do not include your company name or use your business card. Another security measure is to use baggage tags that must be unsnapped to be read.
- Include identification inside the luggage too, in case outside tags are lost.
- Carry on luggage should include names and phone numbers of people to contact in an emergency; a valid copy of your birth certificate if you are traveling overseas and need to replace your passport; and the policy number card of your health insurance agency.
- Remove all old airline destination tags that might confuse baggage handlers.
- Keep a list of the contents of your luggage separate from your luggage and carry on items. This list could help identify your bags if the need arises.
- Do not pack anything with a battery in it, such as an electric toothbrush, since if it is accidentally turned on during luggage handling, security personnel may treat it as a possible bomb.
- If you are packing hobby work that involves scissors or pocket knife, put it in the check-in luggage so it will not be confiscated from your carry on luggage.
- Avoid carrying liquids in either carry on or check in luggage. Inside carry on luggage, it may be probed to ensure it is not a flammable liquid. Inside check in luggage, it may be broken during handling.
- If you will be carrying a gun, check with the state of your destination to ensure it is legal to carry/possess them. If it is, you must pack it unloaded in your check in luggage and you must declare it when you check your bags. The clerk will enclose a tag inside the suitcase and will notify the airplane crew of its presence. You cannot transport ammunition of any kind aboard the plane.
- Do not overload your luggage or it may pop open.
- For a modest sum you can join one of the passengers' clubs offered by the airlines. Card holders can use a hostess-serviced hospitality lounge. It is a restricted, special access room that provides security for you and your belongings.
- If you must leave your baggage unattended momentarily while waiting for your cab or ride, when you go to the rest room, etc., carry a bicycle chain and padlock to run through the handles of your bags, then chain it to a post, bench or plumbing under a sink in the rest room.
- When standing in a line or crowd in the airport, if there is an argument or commotion in the area, immediately check your luggage. This could be a ploy to distract you.
- You may experience long security delays as you pass through customs and immigration in some foreign cities.

At the hotel or motel:

- Women should register with first initial and last name only, never Mrs. Miss or Ms. Always leave the idea with the desk clerk that you are expecting someone soon. Ask the clerk not to announce your room number when he summons the bellhop.
- Be careful in the hotel elevator. Trust your instincts when you see the other occupants. If you are going up, do not board an elevator headed for the basement. If someone does something suspicious on an elevator, stand facing that passenger with your back to the control panel and finger on the emergency button.
- Inspect the room thoroughly before accepting it. Check the locks and bolts on the doors and windows and on the door between any connecting rooms.
- Check to see if the building has sprinklers.
- Keep the room door locked at all times. If possible, wind a coat hanger through the key or key ring as the key is in the lock and hang the hanger on the door to prevent anyone from using a key outside to open the door. There are also special locking devices and alarms available at many shops that work especially well for hotel/motel security.
- Prop a chair against the door when you go to bed so an intruder will make noise.
- When you check in, locate the fire exits nearest your room and throughout the building, and locate the fire alarm pull boxes.
- Look up the local emergency number and write it down near the phone.
- When you leave, do not tell the desk clerk and do not leave your keys at the desk. Leave the radio or television on and hang out the "Do Not Disturb" sign if the maid has cleaned your room. Take the keys and valuables with you or use the hotel safe.
- If anyone knocks, make them identify themselves before you open the door. If you did not request room service, laundry, bellhop, etc., check with the desk for verification. Use the door viewer as well.
- Unpack and arrange your belongings so you can tell if anything is missing.
- Lock your suitcases so they cannot be used to carry your property out of your room.
- Always take your cash, credit cards and car keys with you when leaving your room.
- Never sit in the room with the door propped open. Do not leave the door open for any length of time, even if you are just going to the ice machine.
- Be aware of your surroundings. Notify the management of any suspicious persons in the area.
- Do not give out your room number to strangers.
- Report any missing items to hotel management and the police.
- Do not leave jewelry, cameras, or other expensive items lying around your room. Use the hotel safe to store your valuables and extra cash.

When sightseeing:

- Avoid deserted streets, alleys, parking lots and areas with unsafe reputations. Ask the hotel clerk if there are any areas in town that should be avoided.
- Stay alert.
- Walk on the sidewalk against traffic, and not too close to the street or too close to buildings, doorways, alley openings, etc.
- Do not let strangers slow you down for hand outs, cigarettes or any other pretext and watch their hands. Keep walking and pull away from any possible body contact or attempts to touch you.
- If you sense you are being followed, change direction and move to a more populated area.
- There is safety in numbers. Tours can be taken with a group.
- Verify the tour agency or guide is reputable.
- Be wary of strangers who ask a lot of questions about you and your vacation plans.
- Never carry large amounts of cash. Leave what you do not need in the hotel safe. Separate the larger bills from the smaller ones in order to avoid flashing all your bills in full public view.
- Stay in public areas. Do not wander off from your tour group.
- Looking lost will make you an easy target for crime. If you need directions, ask a service station attendant. Do not ask pedestrians for directions.
- If renting a car, cover the car rental agency's name or logo with a piece of masking tape. A rented car is a good indication that you are a tourist.
- Travel brochures and maps are a good indication that you are a tourist. When not in use, keep them in the glove compartment.

Transportation in another city:

Cabs—

- The maps you receive from either the Chamber of Commerce or Travelers Aid can help you map out your route from the airport to your destination so the cab driver will not take you on the scenic route.
- When entering the cab, check for the cab identification number. Most cities require cabs to have special licenses. Write down the number and the name of your driver.
- Ask the driver in advance how much it will cost to get to your destination.

Buses—

- Never stand at isolated locations. Stay with other people.
- Stand away from the curb.
- Sit as close to the driver as possible and choose the aisle seat if possible.
- Notify the driver immediately if anyone bothers you or even acts suspiciously.
- When you get off the bus, if you suspect you are being followed go immediately to a well-lighted area where there are people and request police assistance. Then stay there until an officer arrives.
- Do not accept a ride to your destination from a stranger.

Subways—

- While waiting, stand away from the edge of the platform and near the ticket booth.
- Be alert.
- Do not exit at your stop if it is not well-lighted. Stay on until a better stop is reached.
- If you suspect someone is following you, get off only at a busy stop. Go directly to the ticket booth and ask the cashier to call the police.

Trains—

- Be especially security-conscious at the boarding platform and near or in rest rooms and/or food service areas.
- If anyone bothers you, notify the conductor immediately.

Dear Readers,

If you wish to pre-plan your funeral, it may be wise to discuss it with close family members. They, may have emotional and psychological needs which should not be overlooked.

Inappropriate arrangements could truly disturb the feelings of the bereaved. Remember, the funeral is for the person who dies, but it is also for those who survive.

Saddles awarded in team penning event

Wind, rain, lightning cut events short with 47 teams left to ride

Wind, rain, lightning and a touch of hail interrupted the Northern Minnesota team penning finals shortly after 10:30 p.m. Friday, July 22, at the Pennington county fair.

The open jackpot event with 85 teams entered was settled after the storm but the youth and open draw classes—with a total of 47 teams left to ride—were postponed due to the weather and arena conditions.

In the jackpot competition, the 10 teams with the fastest penning times were entered in a second run with the team members having the fastest combined time in the two runs each receiving a saddle.

Saddle winners were Shawn Hanson of Lancaster, Milo Monroe of Warren and Robbie Carlson of Strandquist. The team finished sixth in the first run for trophy buckles with a time of 34.19 seconds, then turned in a 36.16 time in the second run for a combined time of 70.35 seconds.

Finishing second and winning breast collars was the team of David Lien and Chuck Lien of Twin Valley and Ken Krebsbach of Mahnomen. They had a run of 33.66 seconds for fifth place in the first round and 40.20 seconds in the second round for combined time of 73.86.

Third place team received cellular phones for their efforts of 32.34 and 44.70 for a combined time of 77.04 seconds. Team members were David Lien of Twin Valley, Gary Peterson of Moorhead and Stacy Odegaard of Twin Valley.

Trophy buckles were awarded to the first place team among the 85 entries in the qualifying run. Milo Monroe of Warren, Robbie Carlson of Strandquist and Dean Anderson of Newfolden penned their cattle in 28.06 seconds to win the buckles and first place prize money of $735.

Teams placing in the top 10 and qualifying for the competition for saddles in addition to the first place team were as follows:

Second Place—Allen Carver, Bagley; Sue Erdman and Shawn Hanson, Lancaster: 29.30 seconds, $663 prize money;

Third Place—David Lien, Chuck Lien and Stacy Odegaard, Twin Valley: 31.37 seconds, $585 prize money;

Fourth Place—David Lien, Twin Valley; Gary Peterson, Moorhead; and Stacy Odegaard, Twin Valley: 32.34 seconds, $507 prize money;

Fifth Place—David Lien and Chuck Lien, Twin Valley; and Ken Krebsbach, Mahnomen: 33.66 seconds, $429 prize money;

Sixth Place—Shawn Hanson, Lancaster; Milo Monroe, Warren; and Robbie Carlson, Strandquist: 34.19 seconds, $354 prize money;

Seventh Place—Chuck Lien, Twin Valley; Gary Peterson, Moorhead; and Stacy Odegaard, Twin Valley: 35.40 seconds, $270 prize money;

Eighth Place—Tom Haverkamp, Ogema; Lahna Loftin, Ulen; and Becky Meineke, Pequot Lakes: 36.50 seconds, $195 prize money;

Ninth Place—Kelly Wastaski, Park River, ND; Dawn Zidon, Edinburg, ND; and Lynn Meberg, Park River, ND: 38.15 seconds, $129 prize money;

Tenth Place—Randy Johnson, Patty Alexander and Jay Stewart, all of Detroit Lakes: 38.89 seconds, $105 prize money.

Although not eligible for the saddle competition, two other teams finished in the money in the first round. They included:

Eleventh Place—Dean Anderson, Newfolden; Robbie Carlson, Strandquist; and Becky Meineke, Pequot Lakes: 39.40 seconds, $75 prize money;

Twelfth Place—Dawn Zidon, Edinburg, ND; Phyllis Loftsgard and Lynn Meberg, Park River, ND: 39.81 seconds, $60 prize money.

In the open jackpot competition each team member pays a $20 entry fee and may enter as many times as he or she wants by changing at least one member of the three-member team.

As of Sunday afternoon it was undecided how to complete the competition for the 18 youth teams and 29 open draw teams which had paid their entry fees and been drawn for the evening's competition. Use of the permanent facilities at Red Lake Falls on a subsequent date was being considered.

In the youth and open draw classes, riders enter as individuals and are randomly drawn to make up three-member teams. If some of the riders entered in Thief River Falls do not participate in the make-up penning, a question arises of how to handle the team composition which had been drawn for the finals here.

In addition, the youth division had a point system for trophy buckles involving penning events held in Red Lake Falls, Warren and Roseau in addition to the finals at Thief River Falls. One more event is needed to determine final points in that contest.

Drayton firm extends stock sign-up period

Drayton Grain Processors has extended its grower equity stock sign-up period until August 15 or until a total of two million shares are purchased. Decision to extend was made by the board of directors due to numerous requests for information by regional wheat growers.

Many of the requests to extend the offering referred to poor weather conditions within the region. Growers are concerned about current crop conditions and the extension will allow adequate time for them to invest in Drayton Grain Processors.

The board has also been invited by regional wheat growers to conduct several more grower information meetings throughout the Red River Valley. These invitations are currently under review by the board. More than 50 per cent of the individuals who were able to attend the earlier grower information meetings in June signed up for stock.

Drayton Grain Processors' Phase 1, a fast track frozen dough project, is reportedly progressing rapidly. The company plans to produce frozen bakery dough under the name Drayton Foods and develop additional specialty items including fruit, vegetable and meat-filled croissants and bagels.

Expectations are that Drayton Foods' production will begin in September and that plan is currently on schedule. Production must begin in September to satisfy current commitments.

Coaching positions are filled

■ Hockey, tennis teams have new coaches

Two of the three Thief River Falls head high school coaching positions that were open for the upcoming 1994-95 school year have been filled, it was announced this week by School District 564 Activities Director Lee Alger.

Pat Cullen has been named Thief River Falls hockey coach and Jim Bitzegaio has been selected tennis coach, handling the girls squad in the fall and the boys team in the spring.

The Prowlers' head baseball coaching position remains open.

The 27-year-old Cullen, a 1985 International Falls High School and a 1993 Bemidji State University graduate with a major in secondary physical education and a minor in health, succeeds Glenn Chiodo as Thief River Falls' head hockey coach. Chiodo resigned from the position following the completion of the 1993-94 season.

Nephew of Moorhead head coach Terry Cullen, Pat Cullen was named NCAA Division III All-America and Northern Collegiate Hockey Association All-Conference while serving as captain of the Beavers in 1990-91.

Cullen taught school in Rochester last year, and also served as an assistant coach with the Junior A Rochester Mustangs of the United States Hockey League. He worked in the Bemidji youth hockey program while in college, and is currently serving as an instructor in Bryan Erickson Summer Hockey Camps in Wisconsin.

The Thief River Falls position will be his first high school coaching assignment.

He will serve School District 564 as a substitute teacher, and other "appointed duties," according to Alger.

"I'm really excited about the opportunity," said Cullen by telephone from Rhinelander, Wisconsin Monday afternoon. He said his International Falls and Bemidji State background provides him with a knowledge of Thief River Falls hockey. "I've always wanted to get into coaching when my playing days were done. I'm looking forward to coaching in Thief River Falls."

An "offensive-minded" defenseman with the Broncos and Beavers, Cullen says he has a "good understanding" of the little things that have to be done on both ends of the rink to make a team successful on the ice.

Alger will confer with Cullen before filling the two high school assistant hockey coaching positions.

Bitzegaio will take over the boys and girls tennis programs that were led by Jay Forney, who gave up those positions this summer.

An instructor in the aviation program at Northwest Technical College-Thief River Falls, Bitzegaio has eight years of youth tennis coaching experience in Indiana.

Girls tennis practice begins Monday, Aug. 15, along with boys and girls cross country, girls swimming, and football.

Alger also announced that Joan Bolar will serve as junior varsity tennis coach and Charity Stautenberg will be the Franklin Middle School tennis coach.

In addition the naming of a baseball coach, Alger said a search continues for Lincoln High School cheerleading advisors.

USS swimmers complete season

Thief River Falls United States Swim Club had a third place finish Thursday at the annual Fastwater Conference Championship meet held in Grand Forks.

Combined totals for the 43 events for all age groups showed Warroad with 2,143.50 points, Forks Area Swim Team 1,027, Thief River Falls 884, Grand Forks YMCA 759, Crookston Crocs 702, Baudette 518, Roseau 436.50, and Fosston/Bagley 331.

It was the best showing ever for the Thief River Falls team in the seven year history of the Fastwater Championship meet, pointed out Thief River Falls coach Ryan Lokken.

The Thief River Falls summer swimming program features some 60 participants. Fastwater Conference meets are held each Thursday, but they are non-scoring affairs, designed for novice swimmers, pointed out Lokken. "It's designed for growth, not competition," he explained. The conference championship meet closes out the summer schedule.

Four Thief River Falls club members will accompany Lokken to the USS North Dakota state meet this weekend in Minot, including Teresa Giauque, Andrea Sorvig, Andrea Olin, and Zach Olson.

Football starting dates set

Thief River Falls head high school football coach Jeff Mumm reported that the Prowlers' coaching staff will issue equipment and conduct conditioning tests for players in grades 9-12 on Monday, Aug. 15.

Seniors are asked to report at 8 a.m., juniors at 10:30 a.m., sophomores at 1 p.m., and freshmen at 3:30 p.m.

Players in grades 10-12 will kick off their preseason practice schedule with the Iron Man drills. Ninth graders will be tested only in the shuttle run, 20-yard run and 40-yard run.

Student/athletes are asked to pick up the required forms at the office of Lincoln High School Activities Director Lee Alger, and, if necessary, to schedule a physical examination. (Physicals must be completed every three years).

A white clearance card administered through Alger's office, is required before you can begin practice drills.

The Prowlers will open 1994 season on the road against two-time defending Class A state champion Detroit Lakes Thursday, Sept. 1.

Mumm also said that football equipment will be issued at the Franklin Middle School gym from 3 to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 24, to eighth graders and on Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 24 and 25, for sixth and seventh graders.

Detroit Lakes beats TRF 10-9, 6-5...

Legion drops two one-run contests

Detroit Lakes came up with a pair of one-run wins over visiting Thief River Falls Friday in an American Legion baseball doubleheader at Washington Park.

The Lakers finished off a 4-0 regular season against Post 117 by winning 10-9 and 6-5 decisions. They won 11-8 and 5-3 in a June 14 twinbill in Thief River Falls.

"It was really tough losing two games like that," said Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "The kids were down after losing the first game, and didn't play that well at the start of the second game. But they fought back and we had our chances."

Thief River Falls scored three times in the top of the seventh inning to take a brief 9-8 lead, only to watch Detroit Lakes push two runs across the plate in the bottom of the inning to pull out a 10-9 Game 1 win.

Trailing 8-6 going into the seventh, Thief River Falls tied it on RBI singles by Chris Vanyo and Tim Barry, then went ahead 9-8 on a steal of home by Vanyo.

However, a double and two singles in the bottom of the seventh produced a 9-9 tie, and a wild pitch allowed the winning run to score.

Steve Burslie and Eric Bjorgaard both had three hits for the visitors. Burslie's efforts included a two-run third inning home run and two doubles.

Brian Minks pitched the first five innings for Post 117. The loss went to Barry, who worked the final two frames.

Trying to match the final-inning Game 1 rally in the doubleheader nightcap, Thief River Falls scored once to pull within 6-5 in the seventh, but lost what would have been the tying run at the plate on a missed one-out suicide squeeze bunt as Detroit Lakes held on for the win.

Tim Barry collected three hits and Joby Looker had two as Thief River Falls out-hit Detroit Lakes 7-5. But Post 117 also had five errors to sabotage Looker's four-inning pitching effort. Eric Bjorgaard pitched the final two innings.

Race officials at the Jaycee demolition derby didn't have to worry about the track being wet enough for competition Sunday in Thief River Falls. Everyone, spectators included, got a little muddy during the event. The demolition derby was one of the events held during the 1994 Pennington county fair.

Fargo sweeps TRF 8-4, 17-4

Two big innings netted Fargo a pair of wins over Thief River Falls Saturday in American Legion baseball at the winners' Jack Williams Stadium.

Fargo won 8-4 and 17-4 to finish a 3-1 season series against Post 117. Thief River Falls opened the 1994 schedule with a 6-4 win over Fargo at Irv Wilson Field before losing the second half of the June 7 twinbill, 14-3.

"We played okay in the first game," reported Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager, whose team was coming on a pair of one-run losses at Detroit Lakes the previous day. "We just ran out of pitching in the second game."

Fargo erased a 4-3 deficit with a five-run fourth inning in an 8-4 doubleheader-opening win.

A three-run third inning gave Thief River Falls a brief lead.

Chris Vanyo was 4-for-4 and Joby Looker had two doubles and two RBI as Thief River Falls out-hit Fargo 9-8.

Vanyo was the starting and losing pitcher. Steve Burslie pitched the sixth inning.

A four-run first inning put Fargo in charge, and a 13-run fourth made it a rout as Thief River Falls fell 17-4 in the five-inning second game.

The winners collected 11 of their 13 hits in that fourth inning outburst. Six Thief River Falls errors added to the spread.

Steve Burslie was the losing pitcher. He left in the midst of that 13-run assault. Adam Henney and Brian Minks pitched in relief.

Legion squads will start Ninth District tournament Aug. 3

Seeding positions will be announced this week for the 1994 Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament, scheduled to be played Aug. 3-7 in Fergus Falls.

Winner of the seven-team, double-elimination event will advance to the state tournament Aug. 10-14 in Northfield.

Roseau, Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, and Crookston make up the Ninth District North Half, while Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead form the South Half.

Thief River Falls took a 12-23 record into a scheduled Tuesday doubleheader against Roseau. The regular season-ending home stand at Irv Wilson Field also includes 5:30 p.m. twinbills against East Grand Forks Thursday and Devils Lake Saturday.

Poole lifts Thieves to 8-3 amateur win over Ada ball club

Corey Poole went 5-for-5 Thursday as the Thief River Falls Thieves beat the host Ada A's 8-3 in amateur baseball.

Mike Swanson was 3-for-4, Marc Haugen went 3-for-6 and Nathan Knotson hit a two-run first inning home run as part of a 2-for-5, 3-RBI day for the winners.

Mike Steen pitched the first five innings for the win. Mike Rokke struck out nine in four innings of relief.

The win completed a 14-5-1 regular season for the Thieves. They will face either Roseau or Warroad in a 2-out-of-3 game Northwest Border League playoff series that will advance the winner to the state-qualifying Region 12C tournament.

Playoff opponent, dates and sites will be announced later this week. Thief River Falls swept both Warroad and Roseau this summer.

Conservation Officers Honored

Turn In Poachers program officials announced recently that plans have been made to present a TIP Conservation Officer of the Year Award.

Five awards – bronze statues of a game warden – will be given away, one each year, to the conservation officer who has performed outstanding service to TIP over the years.

If you would like to nominate a conservation officer for the honor, call 612-922-5493 for a nomination form. Deadline for nominations is Sept. 1, 1994.

TIP is a private non-profit organization that funds educational programs and provides rewards for information leading to the arrest of poachers. Since 1981, TIP has facilitated the arrest of over 4,100 poachers, and has distributed $245,000 in rewards.

Anyone with information on Minnesota fish or wildlife violations should call 1-800-652-9093. You may remain anonymous, and be eligible for rewards up to $1,000. Approximately 70 percent of callers do not accept the money; stopping the poacher is their reward.

DNR Stamp Contests

Criteria for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources stamp contests are now available for artists considering submission of entries.

Contests are being held to select designs for the 1995 Minnesota Migratory Waterfowl Stamp, Pheasant Habitat Stamp, and Trout and Salmon Stamp. Revenues from stamp sales are dedicated to the development, restoration, maintenance and preservation of the respective fish and wildlife species and their habitats.

The stamp art contests, which are open only to Minnesota artists, offer no prizes. Winning artists, however, usually issue limited edition prints of the artwork and retain the proceeds.

Each contest will have a separate judging panel consisting of members with expertise in art, ornithology, hunting, angling, conservation, and/or printing. Judging for all three contests will take place at Wood Lake Nature Center in Richfield. Only the final stage of judging will be open to the public the day of judging.

Trout/Salmon Stamp contest opened July 25 and will continue until Aug. 5. Judging is set for Aug. 11.

Waterfowl (Duck) Stamp contest entries will be accepted beginning Aug. 15 and continue until Aug. 26. Judging is set for Sept. 1.

Pheasant Habitat Stamp contest artwork will be accepted beginning Sept. 6 and continue until Sept. 16, with judging set for Sept. 22.

For contest criteria, write: Minnesota DNR Information Center, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4040. The information is also available by calling the DNR took free in Minnesota at 1-800-766-6000.

Cancer Society to have fund-raising golf outing Aug. 4

The American Cancer Society's Pennington County unit is planning a "Longest Day of Golf". Two foursomes of golfers will play from sunrise to sundown on Thursday, August 4, to raise funds for the American Cancer Society.

Seven of the eight team members include: Stan Sjoberg, Jeff Wiltse, Kelly Cornell, Shelby Sorvig, Lori Sorvig, Janelle Schaefer, and Julie Rahl. They will participate in the Longest Day of Golf at the Thief River Falls Golf Club. Funds raised from those pledging a donation for each hole completed will support cancer research, patient service, and education in Minnesota.

According to Rahl, the Longest Day of Golf chairperson locally, the golfers will be seeking pledges from local citizens to support this cause. She urges anyone who wishes to support the American Cancer Society's cancer control programs to make a pledge. For more information about the program contact Julie Rohl at 681-8556 or 681-8380.

Spring wheat production to exceed 1993

Based on July 1 conditions, small grain production in the state will be higher than 1993, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

Spring wheat crop is estimated at 114.8 million bushels, up 65 per cent from last year although acreage is down four per cent to 2.6 million acres. Yield is estimated at 45 bushels per acre, up 14 bushels per acre from last year.

Durum wheat acres more than tripled from a year ago to more than 39,000 acres. Yield is expected to be 47 bushels per acre, up 17 bushels from last year and the total crop of 1,833,000 bushels is up 1,593,000 bushels from last year.

Barley production is estimated at 40.6 million bushels, up eight per cent from last year although the 650,000 acres planted is 10 per cent drop from 1993. Yield at 65 bushels per acre would be up seven bushels from last year.

Production of oats is forecast at 30.9 million bushels, up 30 per cent from 1993, although plantings fell 32 per cent this year to 575,000 acres. Yield at 65 bushels per acre would be up 15 bushels from 1993.

All sunflower plantings are up 28 per cent to 500,000 acres. Oil varieties are up 33 per cent and non-oil plantings up 11 per cent to about 100 [illegible]

Billy Lubitz of the Stainer 4-H club won a grand champion ribbon in the 4-H division of vetinary science at the 1994 Pennington county fair.

Wetland Reserve program enrolls 75,000 acres in U.S.

Minnesota farmers, and farmers and ranchers in 19 other states, soon will receive acceptance for enrollment in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wetland Reserve program, according to Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy.

Minnesota is projected to have 3,381 acres enrolled at a cost of $1,050,000, according to Watty Sparby, executive director of the Minnesota ASCS office.

"Landowners are selling permanent easements to USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to restore cropland and other acreage to productive wetland habitat for future generations," Espy said.

Landowners in Arkansas, California, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin are participating in the $66 million program.

Under the program, USDA will pay landowners for the acreage covered by the easement and up to 75 per cent of needed restoration costs to ensure wetland conditions prevail. Enrolled acreage will be kept permanently as a wetland with ownership remaining in the private sector.

Eligible owners in March submitted 5,775 intentions to participate, covering 590,000 acres. By law, only 75,000 could be accepted in fiscal year 1994 for a total cost not to exceed $66.7 million. The nearly 75,000 acres scheduled to be tentatively accepted by state ASCS committees provided the highest environmental benefits in the most cost-effective manner from the eligible acres offered, Espy said.

"Acceptance of the landowners' intentions is conditional on eligible owners complying with program provisions, including conveyance to ASCS of an easement for the area," Espy added.

Reemployment insurance rate cut

Minimum reemployment insurance rate for Minnesota employers will decrease 50 per cent beginning Jan. 1, 1995, dropping from 0.6 to 0.3 per cent, according to R. Jane Brown, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Economic Security. Reemployment insurance was formerly called unemployment insurance.

"We are estimating that employer savings will total over $70 million in calendar year 1995," Commissioner Brown said. "We credit this savings to careful management of the trust fund as well as stepped up efforts on the part of the department to help unemployed people become reemployed as quickly as possible."

The minimum rate for employers beginning in January will be 0.3 per cent plus 0.1 per cent for the dislocated worker fund. The previous rate was 0.6 per cent plus 0.1 per cent for the dislocated worker fund.

The minimum rate is the tax rate paid by employers who have no recent history of layoffs or claims charged to their account. The rate is adjusted annually based on the balance in the trust fund on June 30 of the preceding year. The maximum rate of 9.0 per cent will remain the same.

Cellular 200 instals new cell site

Cellular 2000 has constructed a new cell site bringing Cellular 2000 phone service to Greenbush and the surrounding area. The 420-foot high cell site tower, constructed by Rural Cellular Corporation, is located eight miles southwest of Greenbush on Highway 11.

Cellular customers in the area will now be able to make and receive calls from cars, boats, outdoor work sites, and agricultural fields. In addition to customers in the Greenbush area, the new cell site provides enhanced cellular coverage and service to customers traveling on Highway 32 between Greenbush and Thief River Falls and on Highway 11 between Karlstad and Roseau. Coverage even includes cellular users traveling to and from Canada on Highway 59.

For more information call 1-800-450-TALK.

Highway 11 construction now underway

Construction on State Highway 11 from Pelan to Greenbush began on July 20, according to Charles Magnusson, project supervisor for the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

Construction will consist of resurfacing the driving lanes, paving two feet of each shoulder and adding aggregate shouldering on the 11-mile road segment as well as replacing 64 feet of curb and gutter in Greenbush. Thorson, Inc., of Bemidji is the contractor and work is expected to be completed in 30 working days.

Traffic will be maintained on the road during the construction project. Mn/DOT asks motorists to slow down in the work zone for their own safety and the well-being of construction workers. Double fines for speeding in a work zone have been in effect since July 1. During paving operations a pilot car will lead traffic through the work zone.

Tax extension deadline Aug. 15

Persons who requested a tax filing extension are reminded by the Internal Revenue Service that the 1993 federal income tax return is due Monday, August 15.

Anyone who filled out Form 4868 and sent it to the IRS by the original April 15 deadline received an automatic four-month filing extension. Credit for any payment sent with the extension can be taken on Line 57 or Form 1040, Line 28d of Form 1040 A, or Line 7 of Form 1040 EZ.

According to the IRS, interest will be owed on any taxes paid after April 15. In some cases, a late payment penalty may also be due.

Persons unable to finish their return by August 15 can apply for an additional extension of up to two months by filling out Form 2688. Unlike the original extension, this second extension is not automatic. Those filing must explain why the extra time is needed and the IRS will inform the filer whether or not the request is approved.

If the return is completed and money is owed, the IRS urges filing on time, even if the amount due can't be paid. By sending part of the amount due with the return, the taxpayer will reduce the interest and late payment charges added to the bill later. Filers can request an installment payment agreement with the IRS by filling out Form 9465 and attaching it to the face of the return.

To get 1993 federal tax forms or the extension and payment agreement request forms, call toll-free 1-800-829-3676. To have tax questions answered, call 1-800-829-1040.

Team Penning provides participants with an interesting, but difficult challenge. A good crowd was on hand to watch all the action Friday evening at the Pennington county fair. The estimated 150 participants were riding for some big prizes.

Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

Be perfect

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

When the word of God says, "Be perfect," it means exactly what it says (Matt. 5:48; James 1:4; Heb. 12:23). But how can we be perfect?

First of all, let's realize that Jesus Christ was perfect, as His heavenly Father is perfect. He did the Father's Will instead of His own (John 6:38). That's what made Him perfect. He kept the Father's sayings and He lived exactly as He saw the Father live. Anyone who lives as God lives will suffer persecution, so Christ suffered persecution (2 Tim. 3:12).

The Bible commands, "Discipline yourself for the purpose of godliness" (1 Tim. 4:7). How do you do that? Keep God's Ways and do God's Will on earth as it is done in heaven (Matt. 6:10). Psalm 145:17 says, "The Lord is righteous in all His Ways, and kind in all His deeds." Then, it stands to reason that a disciple of Jesus Christ should strive to be righteous in all his ways and kind in all his deeds.

If you know Jesus Christ was righteous, you know that everyone who practices righteousness is truly born of Him (1 John 2:29). And this is the key! When you practice righteousness, you are righteous in God's eyes (1 John 3:7). You have begun the godly process that allows God the Father to make you perfect (Heb. 12:23).

By doing good deeds for God, you are practicing the truth which is according to godliness (Titus 3:8; 1:1; John 3:21). You have nothing to worry about now because you are a doer of the word as well as a servant of God (James 1:22; 1 Peter 3:13).

Very few people know that the word "perfect" used in Matthew 5:48 and Philippians 3:15 means "spiritually mature." Spiritually mature disciples do not practice sin in their lives. Instead, they overcome sin and its temptations by continually doing good for God.

No one who is truly born of God practices sin any longer in his life; and because he is born of God and God's Spirit (seed) abides in him, he cannot sin (1 John 3:9). Those who belong to Jesus Christ have crucified the flesh with its evil practices and desires (Gal. 5:24). With the help of God's Spirit, they put to death the things in their lives that are not pleasing to God (Rom. 8:13).

Now, they walk in the Spirit and no longer carry out the evil passions they once had (Gal. 5:16). Jesus crushed Satan's nature in them, with their help, and now they are new creations with His nature formed in them (Rom. 16:20; Gal. 4:19; 6:15) They are now perfect or complete (2 Cor. 13:9, 11). They are spiritually mature. They are truly born again and the evil one does not touch them (1 John 5:18). They have overcome the evil one (1 John 2:13-14). They are perfect because they have been perfected by God.

NRA Deals In Reality; Not Everyone Does

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

I have never been a member of the National Rifle Association, although I admit i would like to be. It stands for much of what I believe regarding guns and their ownership and, despite being vilified and misrepresented on television networks and the national and metro news media, it stands between me and a government that is more and more willing to be oppressive than objective.

I have not joined the NRA because I want to be able to express my personal views in editorials without writing from a membership perspective. I can honestly tell those who disagree with my views that I am not an enrolled member of what is often referred to as the "gun lobby." But I am thankful that the NRA exists, because it does for me and millions of other gun owners what we are unable to do ourselves—keep members of Congress informed on a factual and logical basis.

From what I have been able to observe for many years, the National Rifle Association deals in reality. Many others with special agendas do not. And it is precisely because of that appeal to truth and reason that it is an effective lobby and therefore detested by those with opposing views for its longstanding success. Those groups who count on hysteria and highly publicized unusual cases to promote their cause are often thwarted by the countering information provided by the NRA.

One thing that is rarely, if ever, noted in the national media is that the executive director of the NRA is not some underground para-military macho man, but a sensible and articulate woman, Tanya K. Metaksa. That might surprise some people who have been led to believe by the national TV networks and news services that the NRA is a collection of good old boys who want their guns to shoot up the town on Saturday night.

In an insightful opinion piece written earlier this year when there was a rash of people control (the national media called it gun control) legislation inundating the halls of Congress and state legislatures, Metaksa explained some of the views of the organization she directs.

"The NRA's unbending adherence to the principle of private ownership of firearms has been often mischaracterized (in the national media)," she wrote.

"The National Rifle Association directly represents the interests of over three million citizens who share a passion—private, peaceable ownership of firearms. Indirectly, we represent the rights and views of tens of millions more peaceful citizens. These are people who live quietly in your communities.....They own firearms."

Metaksa goes on to note that the word "peaceable" is a critical definition of what the NRA is.

"As an organization, we staunchly support the rights of peaceable Americans to own any small arms they wish for whatever peaceable personal reasons they wish.

"I can also tell you what we are not. We are not criminals. We do not commit violent crime. And we have never opposed enactment and enforcement of laws that would stem the violence that we all see nightly portrayed on the evening news.

"We do oppose, with every effort possible, laws that would make innocent, ordinary, peaceable people pay the price for criminal misuse of firearms. And that's what is at stake in any of the so-called gun control legislation pending before the Congress."

Here are some scattered points from her opinion statement:

- On possessing "assault weapons:" "It makes no difference whether an honest person possesses a Walker Colt, a Winchester 21 Grand American, an 870 Remington, a Ruger revolver....or something with a large magazine capacity, a Glock 17, or Beretta 92....or something from the Vietnam era—an AR-15 or an AK-47 semi-auto. Same passion. Same principle: If an individual possesses any gun for peaceable reasons, he or she is no threat to anyone else. And the number of guns owned? 10 or 100 or 500 guns possessed for peaceable reasons are still no threat to anyone."
- On crime: "Peaceable gun owners do not rob, steal, rape, murder. Criminals do that...and in America, criminals don't pay the price for their violence. Crime is a big-time, high-paying, low-risk job in our society. A violent offender has a one in 100 chance of ever seeing the inside of a jail. (Under law the NRA helped pass) every convicted criminal in America who picks up a gun could now be in prison. Congress can hardly make criminal possession of an assault rifle, or handgun, or any gun more illegal for those who commit criminal violence."
- On government abuses: "The Howard Metzenbaums, the Dianne Feinsteins, the Charles Schumers and the Sarah Bradys—they don't hate your guns—they hate you for owning them. They were silent when the BATF abused the civil liberties of thousands of peaceable Americans.... Imagine your guns, your heirlooms, being crammed into cardboard boxes by grinning federal agents. Ruined. Imagine your single most prized firearm, and then imagine an armed agent dropping it on a concrete floor, looking you in the eye and saying, 'Do something. I dare you.' Real events. They happened to nice people like us."
- On fair coverage: "In hearings, our friends on Capitol Hill presented horror story after horror story about peaceable people crushed by government. While a woman wept telling about a BATF raid that began years of legal nightmare, I saw antigunners smirking, laughing. The police-state was their sporting purpose. They enjoyed her misery, and a Washington Post reporter buffed her nails, never writing a word."
- On the reasons for speaking out: "Write a letter to your Congressman. Your own words are powerful. Keep it simple, civil. Tell him or her why you care. When the rights of one of us are threatened, the rights of all of us are in danger. What is at stake here is all gun ownership, and gun ownership for our children and grandchildren. Remember Bill Clinton's words in his State of the Union address: 'Let's give our children a future. Let us take away their guns....' Remember, when guns are banned, victims lose and criminals win."

What can anyone find that is subversive or threatening or frightening in anything Metaksa says? Why should anyone fear this "gun lobby" except those who would disarm private citizens and impose more government control? The NRA deals in reality; not every one does.

To The Editor:

Thank you for printing Abby Nabben's article on Knox school memories. It brought back a flood of wonderful memories from my years at Knox (1938-1941). I attended the third, fourth and fifth grades and my teachers were Misses Olga Bloomness, Joyce Tice and Adeline Erickson. The head of the vocal music in all the schools was the dynamic Miss Ruth Nelson.

Yes, the school colors were orange and black. I have an orange cloth banner with KNOX printed in black crayon. We wore these banners while cheering for our school (in competition against Washington and Northrop, no doubt).

I remember our school chorus singing at the downtown business places during Christmas. Someone made a recording and each of us received a record. I still have mine, but haven't tried to play it for years.

The three grade schools combined for certain musical events and I have a photo of the finale of the operetta "Jack and the Beanstalk." It was performed at Lincoln high school. I had written the date on the back—Nov. 27, 1940.

And so, be assured Knox will continue to live as long as old trunks and suitcases contain mementoes of bygone days. I would be thrilled to hear from former classmates.

Sincerely

To The Editor:

I would like to express my gratitude to a wide number of persons. I am a parent of one of the 94 local young people attending the ELCA National Youth Gathering in Atlanta, GA, this past week.

For close to a year now, parents, families, church memberships and general public have been saturated with fund raisers involving our local church youth. On Saturday, July 16, 94 youths from the Lutheran churches of Redeemer, Black River, Trinity, Zion, Newfolden, Holt and Middle River along with 11 chaperones left for their two-week bus excursion.

Judging by the absence of calls home (after conversing with other parents), they are having a great time. The gathering in Atlanta was five days and before they head back home they are going on to Disney World in Orlando, FL.

A special thank-you to Joanna and Berta (youth directors at Redeemer and Zion, respectively) and Pastor Ron from Trinity and all the other volunteer chaperones who gave their vacation times to spend two weeks of days and nights with our teenagers, not to mention the hours of extra meetings and planning. Thank you!

If you remember donating this past year to any one special youth or to the Atlanta bound youth in general, a huge thank you and God's blessings from myself, the other parents and especially our youth. Whether it was the purchase of an egg, Easter lily, candy, hamburgers, pizzas, stock certificates, a car wash, an item at a rummage sale or auction sale, or any other numerous items or way of giving—it all was greatly appreciated.

I know the young people will be sharing their "To Be Alive" gathering experiences with their church memberships. Please plan on attending and allow them to personally say "thanks."

Thief River Falls was not originally my home town, but I'm very pleased I can call it that now. I believe all our church memberships and general community of caring and sharing people make it what it is.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Lois Rohlf
Thief River Falls

"Harvest will commence in about two weeks. Indications are that we will have a good average crop of wheat except on the sand ridges. Oats and barley will be poor.

"The price of wheat struck the lowest point in the history of the country last Saturday when no. 1 northern, September delivery, was sold at Minneapolis at 53 1/4 cents. This would make the price here less than 40 cents a bushel. It seems almost incredible that wheat should decline in the face of the fact that crops will be very light all over the northwest."

TRF Riverwalk bridge to receive grant funds

ISTEA grant of $145,000 to be awarded for project

Thief River Falls has received preliminary notice that $145,000 will be available for construction of the Riverwalk bridge across the Red Lake River at Hartz Park.

The Riverwalk bridge was one of three projects funded with Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) funds. Ron Lindberg, city engineering services director, said he was fairly certain that the project will receive the full amount of the recommendation.

The total project cost was estimated at $225,000. If it receives final approval, it would be a 200-foot clear span arch bridge stretching from the northeast corner of Hartz Park and across the river to Columbio Drive. The walkway would be 8-feet wide. Other than the narrow crossing over the dam, the only other pedestrian crossing is along the north side of the busy First Street bridge.

In addition to the $145,000 in ISTEA funds, the project will be funded with the $80,000 already raised by the Zehlians, a General Federated Women's Club.

Mayor Robert Reeve said he was really excited about the project. He said it will be a tremendous edition to the city which has spent a great deal of time and effort to improve the look of the city.

The city's contribution to the project, Reeve said, has really been minimal as far as expenditures. Some city staff have put some time into the project, but that's really all the city has contributed.

Mayor Reeve also noted that it has been designed with pedestrians in mind — walkers, joggers and hikers — but will not be accessible to motorized traffic.

The city did hold a public hearing on the project and the city council later instructed city staff to prepare and submit a grant application for the ISTEA funds. The project, however, still has to clear a few hurdles before construction can actually begin.

The Riverwalk project really began in 1987 when the Zehlians learned that Nash Finch was proposing to develop a supermarket (Hugo's) on the site originally occupied by the Meehan Saw Mill and in close proximity to the dam and power plant on the Red Lake River on the south side of the Thief River Falls' Central Business district. (The old saw mill was one of the city's first major industries.)

The Zehlians felt strongly that the riverbank in this vicinity should remain open to the public and learned that the city had retained a buffer area between the river and the proposed supermarket development. Because many people had taken up walking and biking for health and recreation, the Zehlians decided to design and present for approval by the city council an extensive system of walks and trails which would link six existing parks and two nature areas and trail systems, and result in the development of a new park in the Millyard area, and create safe, pleasant routes to walk, jog or bike. With tourism on the increase in the region, it was

Firm selected to complete TRF multi-events center

The State Design Selection board has selected the architectural firm of Triebwasser Helenske & Associates, Ltd. to complete the Multi-Events Cultural Center. This firm, founded in Moorhead, is well known throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas. Their most prominent projects in our area include the $40 million Fargo Dome and the $18 million Radisson complex.

"We are pleased with the selection of this firm in order to guide our vision and create a center of which we can all be proud of," said Dr. James Haviland, president of Northland Community College.

Overseeing this project is the Joint Powers board made up of five different entities: Northland Community College, Northwest Technical College Thief River Falls, City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, and School District 564. Members of the Joint Powers board include: Dr. James Haviland, chairperson; Dr. Orley Gunderson, vice chairperson, Darla Twomey, secretary; Ken Murphy, board member; Jean Heinrichs, board member.

The Joint Powers board has appointed an advisory committee to work with the architect on formulating ideas regarding this structure. Members of the advisory committee include: Lee Alger, Bonnie Davidson, Paul Erickson, Katy Henke, Bruce Lawrence, Jane Mattson, Rick Nelson, Dan Olson, Don Stewart, Steve Stokke, Dave Strong, Vern Treat, Madelyn Vigen, Dale Wennberg, Bobbie Whitefeather, Bob Wold and Deb Zak.

A group consisting of members from both of the Joint Powers board and advisory committee recently toured recreational facilities at Becker high school, Concordia College in St. Paul, Bethel College in Arden Hills, and the National Sports Center in Blaine. This tour was coordinated by the executive director of the Minnesota Amateur Sports commission, Paul Erickson.

According to the group, one of the highlights of the tour was the Blaine National Sports Center. The group toured the facility while the United States Soccer Cup tournament was in full swing. This international soccer tournament is the fourth largest in the world and the largest in the United States. It draws over 630 teams from 16 different countries.

TRF City Council approves council committee structure

Thief River Falls city council approved new committee assignments under the new council committee structure Tuesday night during a regularly scheduled city council meeting. The new committee structure is part of the overall plan to restructure city government in Thief River Falls.

Instead of seven council committees there are now four — administrative services, public works, park and recreation/public safety, and utilities. Each committee consists of four city councilmen.

The park and public safety committee has responsibility for the park and recreation department, the police department, and fire department. The public works committee has responsibility for engineering services, streets, sanitation, airport and government buildings. The utilities committee has responsibility for the management information system, electric, wastewater, water plant, and billing office. The administrative services committee has responsibility for the municipal liquor store, community development and economic development, planning and zoning, and the building official.

The following committee appointments were approved by the council Tuesday night:

Administrative Services — Don Barron, chairman, Frank Hamerlinck, Jean Heinrichs, and Dave Carlson.

Parks and public safety — Dale Wennberg, chairman, Dave Carlson, Ken Schmalz, and Robert Reeve.

Public Works — Milt Burstad, chairman, Dale Wennberg, Ken Schmalz, and Robert Reeve.

Utilities committee — Frank Hamerlinck, chairman, Don Barron, Jean Heinrichs, and Milt Burstad.

These committee assignments are from August 1, 1994 to July 31, 1995.

■ The council took steps to move ahead with plans for the Soo Line Depot preservation committee.

The council used donated funds to continue plans for the Soo Line Depot preservation committee. They authorized a legal topographical site survey by Widseth Smith and Nolting at a cost not to exceed $1,888. They authorized phase I and II environmental site assessments by Widseth Smith and Nolting, at a cost not to exceed $6,504. They also authorized an expenditure of up to $1,000 for fund raising and promotional activities. All of the funds came from private donations.

■ A private citizen appeared before the city council to express his dislike for a new policy to handle junk vehicles.

Mox Lemky, 829 Kendall Avenue South, appeared before the city council to complain about the city's new policy of handling junk vehicles. Lemky has a number of vehicles on his property which he has restored or is in the process of restoring and collecting. He had appeared earlier to request the council change its policy handling junk vehicles because it required that each vehicle be licensed. Partially as a result of his complaints, the city council reached what it termed was a "compromise" solution — an application for waiver.

The application for waiver notes that by city ordinance, all vehicles parked or stored on public or private property to be currently licensed. The waiver application form asserts the following: "that some residents collect, store and keep automobiles as a hobby.

TRF Dam to close gates temporarily

Due to construction requirements below the dam in Thief River Falls, the water level of the reservoir in Thief River Falls will be lowered temporarily. Several other lakes and reservoirs that contribute to the water flow in Thief River Falls will also be temporarily lowered.

The Red Lake Watershed District and the City of Thief River Falls have current construction projects below the dam which require contractors to work in the stream bed of the Red Lake River.

The Watershed's contractor, Pahlen Construction of Plummer, is to remove part of an existing river island, and the city's contractor, Wagner Construction, was to have installed a watermain river crossing by August 1. Because of above normal rainfall in the region and high river flows, the contractors have not been able to accomplish their objectives.

Monday, Ron Lindberg, engineering services director of Thief River Falls, issued a memorandum outlining an agreement. The memorandum involves Brent Johnson of the Red Lake Watershed District, Jeff [illegible] of the Army Corps of Engineers, Dave Bennett of Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, Paul Telander of Thief Lake Wildlife Refuge, and Arlo Rude, superintendent of utilities in Thief River Falls. The agreement as outlined in the memorandum, calls for the Moose River compound to close at 8 a.m. on August 4 and re-open at 8 a.m. on August 7; the Red Lake Dam to close 8 a.m. August 4 and re-open at 8 a.m. on August 7; the Thief Lake dam to close at 8 a.m. on August 5 and re-open at 4 p.m. on August 8; and the Mud Lake dam to close at 8 a.m. on August 6 and re-open at 8 a.m. on August 9. If waterflow projects are correct, if the Thief River Falls dam is opened at 7 a.m. on August 8 and closed at 7 a.m. on August 9, the contractors should have 8 to 10 hours to complete their projects. Lindberg said residents might observe a three-foot drop in water level. The timing of the temporary reduction will also allow the fishing clinic sponsored by the Department of Natural Resources and the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation department to be conducted as scheduled on August 11.

Arctco notes profits in first quarter

Net sales increased 50 per cent to $56,0007,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1994, from $37,393,000 for the same period last year. Net earnings increased 38 per cent to $3,583,000, or $0.18 per share, for the quarter, compared with net earnings of $2,596,000, or $0.13 per share, for the first quarter of fiscal 1994.

Christopher A. Twomey, president and chief executive officer, said, "We are pleased with our strong first quarter results. Our net sales increase is primarily attributable to earlier shipments of Arctic Cat snowmobiles to dealers and distributors. With the strong economy and increased consumer confidence as well as an exciting 1995 product lineup, we remain optimistic about the upcoming retail snowmobile selling season."

Twomey added, "The first quarter concludes the second year of production and shipment of the Tigershark personal watercraft, which was expanded to five models, covering all major market segments. Initial indications of 1994 retail sales from Tigershark dealers have been very positive."

Arctco Inc. designs, engineers, manufactures and markets snowmobiles under the Arctic Cat brand name and personal watercraft under the Tigershark brand name, as well as related parts, garments and accessories.

Phase I of the downtown street and utility reconstruction project is progressing quickly. A change in plans was approved last week. The change allowed the contractor to jump over Third Street and begin work on that stretch of Horace Avenue from Third Street to Fourth Street. That portion of the project had been included in a separate phase. It will allow the contractor to put the sewer in on Horace Avenue and get rid of all the bypass sanitary sewer equipment in the middle of Fourth Street. Work on LaBree Avenue could begin next week.

S.D. 564 auditorim committee identifies 12 area for study

Lincoln high school auditorium advisory committee has identified 12 areas at the auditorium that need further study.

In the spring of 1993, a Lincoln high school auditorium project advisory committee was formed for the purpose of reviewing the adequacy of the auditorium and making recommendations regarding improvements that should be considered. Serving on this advisory committee were the following: Lee Alger, Gretchen Beito, Bob Duncan, Heidi Hoks, Marie Hvidsten, Cliff Larson, Jean Larson, Mary Morken, Jane Olson, Melba Penning, Jan Peterson, Terry Soine and Les Torgerson.

The advisory committee reviewed all aspects of the auditorium and received additional input from the following people who utilized the auditorium in different ways: Bruce Felt, high school band director; Bonnie Knapp, district orchestra director; Ev Marshall, stage, sound and lighting coordinator; Darcy Reese, vocal music director; Terry Soine, school assemblies and symposiums; and Connie Stock theatre productions.

The advisory committee met a number of times and identified 12 areas they felt needed further review. A review of these areas was requested of the architectural firm of Dana, Larson, Roubal and Associates of Minneapolis who are the architects on the Challenger, Franklin, Lincoln and District Service Center projects. The architectural firm analyzed each of the 12 areas and identified an approximate ballpark cost to do each area. They further recommended that the district utilize specific consultants particularly in the area of acoustics and theatre seating before proceeding with the project.

Conclusions:

The Lincoln high school auditorium is basically unchanged since the time it was constructed in 1941 and has served the public well for over 50 years. It is beginning to show its age and does not have infrastructure to handle the new electronic lighting and sound systems that are presently needed.

The advisory committee identified the following 12 areas as in need of further review:

- Auditorium seating both for comfort and leg room;
- Sound system;
- Electrical system;
- Stage lighting system;
- Air quality both for heating and cooling;
- Aisle lighting and house lights
- Lobby area that would handle concessions, tickets and an area for people to congregate during intermissions and before and after performances;
- Interior decor which would include such things as painting of walls, treatment of ceiling;
- Hydraulic stage floor, which would enhance the variety of performances that could be staged;
- Fly system — This would allow sets to be put in place more quickly as you change from one scene to another during performances;
- Dressing rooms for people who are going to perform on stage (This is being built with the present remodeling project at Lincoln high school);
- There is a need for access through the back of the stage (This is also being addressed through the present remodeling project where exit and entry on stage will come through the new theatre classroom that is being built).

The committee found a number of advantages to having an auditorium. The Lincoln high school auditorium is an amenity for the community of Thief River Falls. It hosts a great variety of events both local and regional. With attention to some of the areas identified by the committee, the auditorium could be utilized even more often than it is for both local and regional events. To some degree it could serve as economic development by staging events that would attract people to the community. This great resource is something the board of education feels should become a community project since it does belong to the community and is heavily utilized by various groups in the community.

The raising of dollars to complete the project is a critical component. The Lincoln High School Auditorium Improvement Association has been formed to oversee this project. Presently, articles of incorporation and bylaws are in the process of being finalized. This association's purpose would be to oversee the project as well as conduct the raising of the finances needed to complete it.

The Thief River Falls Centennial Commission is interested in tying this project into the Centennial Celebrations which are scheduled for 1996 with the hope of having a majority of the auditorium improvements completed by that time. A grand opening would be staged during these celebrations in 1996.

Anyone who is interested in being a part of this project as a member of the association board and or a member of the association is asked to contact Bob Duacan, superintendent of schools, at 681-8711.

Jim Blix moved to Thief River Falls a year ago and has now opened a photography studio in his home. He will take graduation, wedding photos and photos of other important events. In addition to studio shots, he also has an ideal outdoor setting, which he plans to further develop. Blix said it has been great doing business here. He used to be a graphic arts and commercial arts illustrator but decided to move to Thief River Falls. His wife, Sara, grew up here and they now plan to raise their three children, a 14-year-old and two 5-year-olds, here in Thief River Falls. Blix said he can be reached by calling 681-3293. He said his hours are accomodating. Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors, represented by Norm Waasinck and Pat Swanson, presented him with a First Dollar award.

the tour was very beneficial. "We are only in the idea stage. This tour gave us some valuable insight, not only in how a facility can look, but also the economic impact it can have in a community by creating tourism," said Nelson.

An organizational meeting of the Joint Powers board and advisory committee and architectural representatives will take place on August 3, 1994. Tentatively, the Multi-Events Cultural Center will be located on Highway 1 East next to the Northwest Technical College.

also felt that this would provide another amenity of interest to visitors.

An extensive plan called "Follow The Rivers" was presented to, and approved by, the city council. The Zehlians then began to solicit local organizations for donations and to organize volunteers to help make the project become a reality. The first segment of the project, which will eventually become 7.3 miles in length, was under construction in 1989. This construction involved that area near the dam and the new supermarket.

Since the first segment, there have been many more additions. A section behind United Methodist church in Thief River Falls is one of the newest segments, but there are equally impressive segments that go through Elks Park and Chief Red Robe Park. Those segments have also included lighting, landscaping, park benches, overlooks, and historical pictographs which help tell the story of Thief River Falls.

Components which may be added in the future would include a small footbridge across a coulee and an additional segment of natural trails on Northland Community College property north from the Ojibwe Village - Fur Trading post site to Long's Bridge and then back south to Chief Red Robe Park. Prior to the city's Centennial, which is in 1996, the Zehlians would also like to see a focal feature such as a sculpture or fountain erected in the vicinity of the dam and power plant. A second pedestrian bridge to link Oakland Park with the Greenwood Recreation Trail area is also included in the long range, future plans.

In addition to providing a safe, pleasant place to walk, jog and bike, the Riverwalk project has also encouraged other improvements. In 1991, the Red Lake Watershed District, in cooperation with a number of other governmental entities, completed 1,200 feet of riverbank stabilization, removing hastily thrown up concrete rip-rap below the dam which was not only unsightly, but also dangerous. A second riverbank restoration project was completed in 1992 at the Centennial Park boat launch area across the River from Chief Red Robe Park. A third segment of bank stabilization below the dam, along the east riverbank should be completed in 1994.

The next step in the project is to prepare a project memorandum, which must be approved by State and Federal agencies. Plans will be submitted in September of 1994. Bids could be opened in March of 1995 and construction completed in October of 1995.

The three projects in the region funded this year include the Riverwalk bridge in Thief River Falls, $86,000 for the Riverfront in East Grand Forks, and $160,000 for the Bottineau Trail.

Since these vehicles are in operating condition and are not junk (missing major component parts, broken glass, unpainted, etc.) the city will issue a waiver of the license requirements of the ordinance. Application shall be in writing and filed through the Chief of Police or his designee. The application shall contain a description of each vehicle stored and the address where the vehicles are stored. The waiver shall be for one year and can be renewed with a new application.

"The property owner agrees to maintain the property under and around the vehicles in such a manner as to not cause an eyesore or blight to the neighborhood and community. Grass shall be mowed around and under the vehicles, weeds shall not be allowed to grow around or under the vehicles, spare parts and any other material shall not be allowed to accumulate under or around the vehicles, and spare parts and other material shall not be piled on top of the vehicles."

The policy further allows for an appeal process in case the waiver is not granted or is revoked. It was approved by the council on June 14. The waiver can be purchased for $25, but costs only $10 to renew.

Lemky said Tuesday that he opposes the fee, the waiver, the limit on the number of cards, and the intrusion upon private property rights by the city. He referred to the policy as "starting down the road to a police state." He said the waiver was not a realistic solution, and that the council should not put itself in a position to judge what a person's hobbies should be or to what extent they can pursue those hobbies. He suggested that the council review its policy.

No action was taken by the council.

■ The council approved a number of requests for variances and planning.

The board of zoning appeals recommended approval of a request by David and Eunice Grothe for the construction of an addition to their apartment at 316 Horace Avenue North. The addition would contain four two-bedroom apartments.

The planning commission recommended approval of a replat of property located in lots 1-9 in block one and lots 1-8 in block two of TRF Dev Co first addition, and 10 feet in lot 41 of Rustad's subdivision. This area is located near Oak Avenue North. Stipulations were also approved by the council.

After discussion, the council also approved a planning commission recommendation approving the preliminary plat submitted by Elaine Loberg-Kendall and Roy D. Kendall, for construction of residential duplexes near Belmont apartments. Conditions were attached to the approval.

In other business, the council: referred the proposed purchase of land south of Thief River Falls to the Administrative Services committee; granted permission to Northern Minnesota Utilities to install services lines at the regional airport; approved the wastewater ordinance; submitted uncollectible utility accounts to the Credit Bureau; learned that the hydro-electric facility was not eligible for the historical preservation register; and approved an extension of reservoir bids to August 24.

Four enviornmental learning labs identified in TRF area

When the Thief River Falls Environmental Learning Laboratory Exploratory committee for School District 564 met for the first time on November 30, 1993, it was with a vision to develop an environmental learning laboratory in or around the Thief River Falls community. When the exploratory committee completed its work, they had identified not one but four possible environmental learning labs that could be developed. These labs were the Challenger Environmental Learning Lab, the Greenwood Trails Environmental Learning Lab, the Franklin Middle School Environmental Learning Lab and the Sanders Site Environmental Learning Lab.

Specific committees were formed for each of the four possible laboratories. A steering committee was formed to coordinate the development of all four sites. Terry Meyer and Ryan Lokken are the co-chairs of the steering committee. Other members include Chuck Walroth, Gordy Forester, Jeanne Olson, Karen Biever, and Bob Duncan. Two of the committees have been meeting on a regular basis during the spring of 1994 and through this summer. Considerable work has been completed by these committees.

The Challenger Environmental Learning lab committee is co-chaired by Chuck Walrath and Karen Biever. Also on that committee are Joyce Kopari, Gary Tischer, Dave Peterson, Al Buhl, John Johnson, Ken Beauchane, Kathy Olson, Glenn Espe, and Terry Meyer. The immediate task that this committee has been working on is the landscaping in and around the Challenger Elementary school building. The committee has worked closely with Troy Miller, the architect representing Dana, Larson, Roubal and Associates who are the architects for the Challenger building. Troy Miller has indicated that he has been extremely impressed with the dedication, expertise and enthusiasm that this committee has for landscaping around Challenger Elementary school. He indicated that it is rare to find a community that has this much interest in the landscaping around a new school.

On July 26 the committee met with Troy Miller and approved the final plans for landscaping around Challenger. The second phase of that will be further development of landscaping beyond the areas that are adjacent to the Challenger Elementary school as well as developing a master plan for the rest of the environmental learning lab throughout the 59 acres of land that comprises the Challenger elementary site.

A very large number of ideas have been generated as to what the environmental learning lab would look like and how it could best serve not only the children attending Challenger elementary but all other people within Thief River Falls and the area. Anyone that is interested in serving on this committee is certainly welcome to do so and can contact either Chuck Walrath or Karen Biever indicating your interest. There is a tremendous amount of planning to be done as the development of this learning laboratory is a long-term project.

The Greenwood Trail site, which is adjacent to the Greenwood Cemetery and the Red Lake River, have been meeting regularly since March of 1994. Bill Fogarty is the chair of this committee and other members include: Sarah Huschle, Martha Michak, Shelly Steva, Daniel Johnson, Maggie Leach, Ryan Lokken, Terry Wiseth, John Johnson, Linda Ronchetti, Becky Ptacek, Billy Fogarty, Deb Zak, Al Buhl, Al Krause, and Vern Isaacson.

This group has been divided into subcommittees to work on various components of the environmental lab such as:

- Flood plans and soil;
- History of the site;
- Savannahs and bird life;
- Fungi, diseases and control burns;
- Interpretive games;
- Tree identification and anecdotal information;
- Ecology and specific plants and animal information;
- Nesting box placement.

The purpose of this environmental learning lab will be to serve students at Lincoln, Franklin and Challenger and also to serve as a laboratory for community groups and people in the area.

There is considerable work to be done on the development of the Greenwood Environmental Learning lab. The committee has been working diligently and has made great progress. This, too, is a long-term project but should be in a position to be utilized relatively soon at least for some preliminary educational experiences. To assist with this project, the Rotary Cub has donated $50. This committee is also open to additional members and anyone with an interest in environmental issues in the development of this laboratory can contact Bill Fogarty.

At the other two sites, Franklin Middle school and Sanders, the committees have not begun work. Plans are to get the Challenger and Greenwood laboratories along their way before getting involved in additional laboratories.

These environmental learning laboratories are an amenity for the community and for the schools to include our colleges. Not only will they be utilized by students and staff, but can be used for things such as people who come to our area to observe birds and other forms of wildlife, plants and trees. The many individuals involved in these committees believe environmental learning laboratories should prove to be a wonderful addition to our community and to our region.

FAMILY HEALTH

Staying Clear of Lightning

In the United States, an average of about 400 people are injured or killed by lightning strikes each year. Most deaths occur out in the open or under trees.

To protect yourself:

- Avoid isolated trees or tall structures — They are lightning targets. If they are hit, you may receive the jolt directly via a side flash or through the ground.
- Get down — Go to the bottom of a hill or ravine.

If you are the highest point in an open field, make yourself a small target.

Sit or kneel, put your hands on your knees and tuck your head.

- Seek safety in a closed car — The metal frame will carry the charge around you.
- Do not mix water with lightning — In a storm, get out of and away from water. It provides a good contact with any lightning current in the ground.
- Stay inside your home or a building — Keep away from open doors and windows.
- Turn it off and hang it up — Do not use electrical appliances or talk on the phone. Lightning can follow electrical wires and phone lines into your home.
- Get out of the shower or tub — Lightning can also follow the plumbing into your home.

Denise Klaus weds Jeffrey Michalicek

Parents of the couple are Ron and Diane Klaus of Washington, IL, and Robert and Dianne Michalicek of Thief River Falls.

Vocal selections were provided by sister of the bride, Debbie Solum, and sister-in-law, Leanna Klaus. Organist was Julie Ahlgren, Betty Johnson played guitar and Julie Anderson, flute. All are friends of the bride and groom.

For her wedding the bride chose an ivory gown of Versailles brocade. An off-the-shoulder portrait neckline highlighted the fitted bodice, which tapered to a Basque waistline. The softly gathered, full, floor-length skirt featured a detachable chapel-length train with fabric roses at the back waist.

The bridal veil was a crescent-shaped wreath composed of ivory silk roses, ropes and clusters of baby seed pearls and scattered iridescent sequins. Two tiers of illusion net fell to the bride's fingertips. Her cascading bouquet featured fresh ivory roses, freesias, babies' breath and ivy.

Matron of honor was Debbie Solum of Bemidji, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Janet Boyd, Hinckley, IL, cousin of the bride, Janet Bell, Washington, IL, friend of the bride, and Misty Michalicek, Bemidji, sister of the groom.

Flower girl was Brittany Klaus, Hanna City, IL, niece of the bride. The bride's personal attendants were Joy Stoltzfus of Casper, WY, and Julie Anderson of Edmonton, Alberta, both friends of the bride.

Serving as his brother's best man was Stuart Michalicek, of Breckenridge. Groomsmen were Robert Michalicek, Thief River Falls, father of the groom; and Todd Solsten, Seattle, WA, and Brian Hernandez, Thief River Falls, both friends of the groom.

Nephews of the bride, Joseph Klaus of Washington, IL, and Taylor Klaus of Hanna City, IL, were ring bearers.

Ushering the guests were Thane Espe, Thief River Falls, friend of the groom, and Brian Solum, Bemidji, brother-in-law of the bride.

Andrea Michalicek, cousin of the groom, presided at the guest book.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Whine, Whine, Whine

Whine, whine, whine!

Sound familiar? In case you have been staying in all summer with your doors and windows closed and don't recognize the sound, it's Minnesota's favorite insect – the mosquito.

And have you noticed – this year we seem to be extra lucky because we do not have the old, ordinary, wimpy type of mosquito, either. We have Super-Mosquitoes.

Super-Mosquitoes bite harder, leave bigger bumps that itch for weeks, can zip along and bite and disappear before you can even catch a glimpse of them, and do not die when the mosquito sprayers come around. They just get bigger and stronger every time they get a dose of spray.

Super-Mosquitoes have babies that are Super-Duper-Mosquito babies and they are even worse than Super-Mosquitoes. They are those little bitty mosquitoes that make you squeal in pain when they bite you.

The mosquitoes around my house like to hide where it is wet – like in the bathroom and around the kitchen sink, for instance.

There is nothing worse than going into the bathroom for my morning shower and being attacked by some of the Super-Mosquitoes or their babies, the Super-Duper-Mosquitoes, who have been hiding in there all night and have gotten dreadfully hungry. I can hardly see the little things, but I can tell they are there because I hear the whine, whine as they zero in on what they think is the most delectable part of my anatomy.

It is a waiting game. I hear them – I know they are coming – but I do not know which part of me they are going to attack. Eventually, usually when I am somewhat disabled in one way or another, they bite. I retaliate with a swat, swat which is almost always too late to hit the little buggers. Who would have thought that a morning shower would be a battle ground?

The mosquitoes in the kitchen seem to be smart enough to wait around until my hands are busy, like in the dishwater or stuck in dough – then they do their dirty work. Isn't it sad that I can get a whole passel of mosquito bites in my own kitchen?

Just letting the dog out in the morning is dangerous. I suppose the mosquitoes have gotten hungry overnight, especially if they have had their invigorating dose of spray the evening before.

They seem to lie in wait outside the back door – perhaps they can smell people inside and their nasty little mouths are watering in anticipation of a meal. Like little demons, they are clustered there outside the door when I open it to let the dog out.

Naturally, I am usually doing this in my nightie because, as I told you last week, the dog is a puppy yet, and quite small, and does not have the capacity for lengthy bladder control, so I let him out first thing in the morning.

The mosquitoes attack me immediately in all of my tender places that are exposed. They even attack through the nightie. Those who are not quick enough to get a bite of me swarm inside to wait for even better opportunities.

Walking out to the car in the morning is another experience. I always keep to the sidewalk and never walk in the grass, but the Super-Mosquitoes seem to sense when I am walking past. They immediately swarm up from the grass and bushes as I pass and proceed to bite me in several places before I can reach my car, which is only a few yards away. I always come to work with several new bites that must be scratched throughout the day.

And the bites are really in strange places, not on the usual exposed areas, like arms and legs. These Super-Mosquitoes love to bite my ears and neck. They also bite places that are hard to reach, like the backs of my arms and behind my knees, and they even bite through my clothing to the place I sit upon. It is very embarrassing to have those bites itch while I am at work, because it just would not look right to be scratching in some of those places while sitting in public.

The only thing we can do is load up with mosquito spray, that old "Eau de Off." Do any women in northern Minnesota wear perfume or any Minnesota men wear cologne any more? I don't think I've noticed anyone smelling like anything but "Eau de Off" for several months now, including me. But it is certainly getting pretty bad when we have to apply the "Eau de Off" inside the house as well as when we go outside.

Host families needed for students

Maneke Wikesjo from Sweden and Krischan Kuntel from Germany are two exchange students hoping to spend the 1994-1995 academic year in northern Minnesota. Earlier this year they were accepted to a program offered by EF Foundation for foreign study, a non-profit international student exchange organization. Since then, they have been anxiously awaiting news of a family who would like to host them for the coming school year.

Sharon Pratt, the local coordinator for EF Foundation, hopes to find families for these two students soon. "Host families come from all backgrounds and all walks of life," Sharon said. "Sharing your family life with an exchange student is a wonderful way to learn about other cultures, to make friends all over the world, and to bring intercultural understanding to our schools and communities."

Host families provide students with a bed, meals and a loving environment. EF Foundation students speak English, are fully insured and provide their own spending money for the 10 month stay.

For more information call Sharon Pratt at 1-800-290-5152.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

It's amazing, isn't it that this time of year, summer, is the time that we long for during the long winter months we endure here in Northern Minnesota. As we sit in the warm comfort of our homes on a stormy winter day and night, we fondly dream of summer. We dream of green grass and greener trees. We dream of warm days and cool, one-blanket, sleeping nights. We dream of picnics and fishing from a boat, not through an ice hole. We dream of being able to be out-of-doors without bundles of warm clothing on. We dream of summer as we would like it to be.

We forget about the evil of summer. That living creature that creates house-bound people out of us even when the weather beckons us to come on out. We forget about the MOSQUITO!! It's been rumored that the mosquito is the state bird of Minnesota. I do believe that it is definitely reaching that status. The quantity of these creatures flying about as well as the size of them could qualify them for bird status. Everywhere we go there are mosquitoes. We cannot escape them, even though we try.

There are many ways in which we try to escape these pesky creatures. Our town tries to rid us of them by spraying for them. I wonder how many there would be if the town didn't spray for mosquitoes? It seems that after a spraying, maybe, if we are lucky, there will be one day that will have a limited number of these creatures to annoy us. Even our best efforts at eradicating them can't stop them. I have read that one female mosquito can produce as many as 100 to 300 eggs at a time, and as many as 1,000 eggs in a year. No wonder mosquitoes are so abundant!

We try to rid ourselves of mosquitoes through our town's efforts, but we also need a personal attack plan against these critters if we expect to have any peaceful time out-of-doors during prime mosquito season, summer. So, we try to keep them at bay by a variety of means. We spray a multitude of products on ourselves and on our clothing. We spray our yards before we want to spend any time in them. We eat foods that supposedly will not cause us to be attractive to the mosquito. We take vitamins that will also cause them to dislike us. We use lotions with or without bug repellent in them to keep these creatures from finding us a culinary delight. We buy bug lights to keep them from accumulating near our porches. We buy bug zappers to attract and kill the mosquitoes. We wear long pants and long-sleeved shirts. We try, but never succeed in keeping mosquitoes away from us.

There are good reasons for us to not like mosquitoes. They bite us. They are persistent in finding us. They don't shoo away like a fly or a bee might. They delight in our blood. They leave behind after they feed on us, an itchy mosquito bite which makes us miserable. We try to rid ourselves of the itchy feeling by applying a variety of anti-itch products. These have a limited success in easing our misery. Mosquitoes not only bite us, but as they bite us they are prone to spread diseases among us. We do not need to feel too sorry for them as we attempt to eliminate them. They are our enemy!!

Mosquitoes do have one good thing about them – they cause us to realize that summer is not all that we dream about. They cause us to dream about the beauty of winter – its coziness, its gorgeous snow, its fires in the fireplaces – and most of all its lack of mosquitoes. Ah, if winter were only here, we wouldn't be bothered by the pesky mosquito!! I guess there have to be a few trade-offs in life – a cold winter and no mosquitoes, or a pleasant summer with an abundance of mosquitoes. Today, I'd opt for winter. Next January, mosquitoes will be forgotten again as I dream about summer.

Dear Readers,
Flowers can make an important contribution to the funeral service. Not only do they denote respect for the deceased, but flowers can be a sort of personal messenger of sympathy and understanding to the survivors. Their presence tells the family that their friends are thinking of them and sharing their sorrow during their bereavement.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Candidates for office sought

Oliver Howland, long-time supervisor of the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD), has announced plans to retire at the end of the year and is not seeking re-election. Howland represents Area IV of Marshall-Beltrami SWCD.

Although the supervisor is nominated from a specific nominating area within the SWCD, they are elected at large, meaning that every eligible voter in the district may vote for the open supervisor position in the November 8 general election. Supervisors are elected on a non-partisan basis to a six-year term. Anyone interested in running must be from the Area IV nominating area, which is comprised of the townships of Spruce Grove, Minnie, Steenerson, Hamre as well as T157N-R36W, T157N-R37W, T158N-R36W and T158N-R37W. The deadline for filing is September 8.

The responsibilities of an SWCD supervisor include attending one board of supervisors meeting each month plus additional meetings and conservational events. Supervisors are paid per diem plus expenses.

Supervisors play an important role in how our community deals with a wide variety of resource management issues, including, water quality, wetlands, soil erosion. Serving as a supervisor is an opportunity for people who want a voice in how we use our environment.

SWCDs are special purpose local units of government that manage and direct conservation programs, such as the state cost-share program and Reinvest in Minnesota Reserve Program. Each of Minnesota's 91 SWCDs is governed by an elected five-member board of supervisors.

Anyone interested in filing to run for supervisor should contact the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District at 294-6144, before September 8.

ACTIVITIES

Worm Farm

Young children are fascinated with worms. So let your child create a worm farm. You will need a glass jar, dirt and worms. Fill the jar about half full with dirt. Put the worms in the jar and let them tunnel into the dirt. You will be able to see how they tunnel and move around in the jar. When the soil gets a little dry, be sure to water the worms. Have a good time watching what goes on under our feet on a regular basis.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need flour, sugar, cocoa, salt, soda, oil, vinegar, vanilla, water and a 9" cake pan.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Tusa, Tricio. The Family Reunion. Discover how Esther and Fester fit in to the Beneadas family, a close-knit (maybe even double-knit) clan with many far-flung relatives.

Henkes, Kevin. Owen. Owen's mother thought he was too big to carry his fuzzy blanket to school so she thought of the perfect solution.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Lorax. This tale of progress gone amok portrays a lovable creature who speaks for the trees and tries to stop the profit-greedy Onceler from destroying the forest.

PARENTING TIPS

Sand and Water Play

A child's daily life is full of potential learning activities. During the summer most young children have access to sand and water for play. There are many important concepts that children can learn from these materials. Sand and water are particularly valuable in play-learning because they have no form of their own. They assume the form of the container which holds them.

What are children learning when they play with sand and water? As they fill their pails with sand, they learn about adding small quantities to make a large quantity. They have no difficulty lifting a small shovelful of sand, but have difficulty lifting a full pail. Weight begins to have more meaning. Likewise they learn that wet sand is different from dry sand and that if sand is poured into a pail of water, it will settle to the bottom.

Even though it may be a long time before a child understands the why of all these things, experience will tell him it happens over and over. This new knowledge then becomes the foundation on which later learning, such as the laws of gravity, can be built.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Use words to describe what your child sees and is experiencing as he/she plays, such as wet, dry, empty, full, heavy, light, etc.

TRF teacher honored

Robert Michalicek was among 27 Minnesota educators honored by the Minnesota Education Association for being named Teachers of Excellence in the 1994 Minnesota Teacher of the Year program.

The 27 teach a variety of subjects, ranging from elementary grades to business education, physics, special education, English as a Second Language, and math. They were selected from 77 nominees by a panel of 31 judges. Judges evaluated each candidate based on philosophy of teaching, professional preparation and development, and letters of recommendation.

"These 27 educators, who represent teachers throughout the state, possess many admirable qualities," noted Judy Schaubach, president of the Minnesota Education Association (MEA). "However, the most important quality they share is a deep respect for the students they teach. Their dedicated efforts help students achieve their highest potential and, for that, all Minnesotans are grateful."

MEA sponsors the Minnesota Teacher of the Year program. The program receives support from McDonald's restaurants of Minnesota, the MEA Credit Union and Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc.

In September, judges will select Honor Roll Teachers, or finalists, from the Teachers of Excellence. The 1994 Minnesota Teacher of the Year, who will be selected from the Honor Roll Teachers, will be named at an October 16 luncheon and will be nominated for 1995 National Teacher of the Year.

SWCD receives grants from state

The Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) recently received about $18,650 from the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR) for conservation projects and administration.

About $4,250 is for the state cost-share program, under which the district pays up to 75 per cent of a landowner's cost to install erosion control and water quality practices, including erosion control structures, grass waterways, and field windbreaks, among others.

"This program helps provide the extra incentive landowners may need to get some problem areas taken care of," said Lloyd Wiseth, chairman. "The state basically allows us to distribute the funds according to our own local priorities, so we can genuinely help meet the resource needs of our area," Wiseth said.

Last year, even with the wet weather, the state cost-share program assisted five landowners install 10 erosion control structures in the district.

The remainder of the $18,650 is for administration of the Reinvest in Minnesota Reserve Program, a land retirement program that pays landowners to remove certain marginal agricultural lands from production; and for general SWCD administration, such as staff and office space.

SWCD's receive funding from the BWSR for other conservation programs at various times throughout the year.

Anyone interested in cost-share funding should contact the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District at 294-6144.

Rep. Jim Tunheim

Rep. Tunheim to make bid for reelection

Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy, who was first elected from District 1A in 1982, has filed for reelection with the Secretary of State's office in St. Paul.

During the 1994 session, Rep. Tunheim chaired the Commerce and Economic Development –Tourism and Small Business Division committee. He also served on the Education—K-12 Education Finance Division and Ethics—Member Conduct Division and Regulated Industries and Energy committees.

Rep. Tunheim said this year's session was very important because of juvenile justice reform, property tax relief and K-12 funding that passed into law, but a lot of work remains to be done.

"I will continue to work for transportation funding and changes in wetland legislation," he said, "and schools in northwestern Minnesota must not be forgotten. I was extremely pleased that funding was made available to re-open the Northwest Angle School and that sparsity aid was increased."

Rep. Tunheim and his wife Diana have three children.

River Valley

Twenty-one young people from northern Belgium ranging in age from 15 to 25 years old, who are on a cycling tour, camped at the Lyle Mandt home last weekend. They began their tour in St. Paul and will end up in Denver on August 24. They are with the Youth Organization for Nature Study and Environmental Protection and were looking forward to traveling through the Agassiz Wildlife Refuge. They travel about 40-45 miles a day. Visiting with them we heard them talk of the beauty of their country, Belgium, with the 12th and 13th century buildings, the tiled roads and lunch countryside. But they also commented on the pollution they have there. They thoroughly enjoyed their stay at the Mandt's because they got their country's staple, potatoes, for supper and a dip in the pool. They also met several young people from this area. Visiting with them were Angie and Adeline Chervestad, Melanie and Lisa Olson, Jared and Robbie Hafstad, Paul Peterson, Jimmy Dulka, Sylvie and Frances Hilgeman, Karl Reinbold, Kyla, Quentin, Tylar, Chris and Brent Nelson.

Visitors over the weekend at the Jim and Kathy Dulka home were Jeanne and Jan Lindquist and children, of Grand Forks, ND and Julie, Jessica, Beth and Josh Dulka of Colorado Springs, CO. Also Andy Dulka of Collegeville and Annie Wittrock of St. Joseph. On Sunday all of the above were supper guests at the Jeanne and Jon Lindquist home in Grand Forks to help Emily celebrate her 3rd birthday. Other guests were Rick, Marcia and Paul Lindquist of Fargo, ND.

Warroad sweeps baseball playoff series from TRF

Thief River Falls out-scored Warroad 45-17 in sweeping a four-game regular season amateur baseball series. But a post-season match-up went the other way as the Muskies eliminated the Thieves with back-to-back wins in the 2-out-of-3 game Northwest Border League championship playoff series completed Monday.

Warroad, a winner over Roseau to start the three-team league playoffs, opened the championship series with a 6-1 Sunday afternoon win at Irv Wilson Field.

Thief River Falls needed a win Monday in Warroad to force a third and deciding game at home Tuesday night, but the Muskies avoided a return trip with a 7-6 series-ending decision.

Warroad will now move on to the state tournament-qualifying Region 12C tournament at Concordia College in Moorhead. The Thieves' first season ended at 14-7-1.

Mitch Bernstein was a rival instead of a teammate Sunday as he turned in a complete game nine-inning pitching performance to lead Warroad past Thief River Falls 6-1 in the pivotal start of the 2-out-of-3 game championship series.

A Grygla graduate, Bernstein was a teammate of many of the Thieves in high school, where he helped lead Thief River Falls to the 1993 Section 8AA finals, and in college, where he earned National Junior College All-America recognition as the Pioneers reached the NJCAA Region 13 and the Minnesota Community College Conference state tournaments.

This time he was in the visitors' dugout, giving up just a single unearned run. He scattered nine hits and struck out five.

Barry Dowers led the Thieves' offense with 3 hits in 4 at-bats, including a double. Marc Haugen was 2-for-4. The lone run came on an RBI single by Mike Swanson in the first inning.

Marty Dick and Jack Lian both had a pair of hits for the Muskies.

Thief River Falls starting pitcher Mike Steen took the loss, giving up eight hits and five earned runs in 6 2/3 innings. He struck out three. Jared Erickson gave up two hits and struck out three in 2-1/3 innings of scoreless relief.

Looking for a series-tying second-game win, Thief River Falls instead ran into early trouble that led to a season-ending 7-6 loss at Warroad Monday.

A 1-0 Thief River Falls lead in the top of the first promptly became a 5-1 deficit in the Muskies' first at-bat.

The Thieves' game-long comeback effort, which included an 11-5 base hit edge, narrowed the gap to 7-6 in the top of the ninth, but couldn't come up with the equalizer.

Corey Poole was 3-for-5 and Dave Stengrim went 2-for-4 with a pair of doubles and three RBI to lead the Thieves' hit parade. Marc Haugen and Nathan Knutson both had 2 hits in 5 at-bats.

The loss went to starting pitcher Jeremy Olson, who was tagged for seven runs and five hits in 3 1/3 innings. He struck out three. Mike Rokke kept the Thieves in the game with 4 2/3 innings of no-hit, no-run ball that included five strike-outs.

Winning pitcher Sean Stodgell struck out 10 in a route-going outing.

Area Sports

RLF Softball

Entry fee is $80.

Tournament director is Bob Philion, P.O. Box 111, Red Lake Falls, MN 56750-0111; telephone 253-4372.

A Minnesota state flag with Thief River Falls connections will be on display in Atlanta, Georgia, this week during the opening and closing ceremonies of the 1994 National Kidney Foundation United States Transplant Games. The flag, which has flown over the state capitol building in St. Paul, was presented by State Senator LeRoy Stumpf to John Michael Anderson, representing Transplant Recipients of Minnesota (TROM), a newly-formed organization designed to promote public awareness of the need for organ donation.

TRF ends regular season schedule

■ Legion team finishes 16-25

A season-ending Thief River Falls American Legion baseball homestand was completed Saturday when Post 117 split a doubleheader against Devils Lake, ND.

Thief River Falls won a 9-8 nine-inning opener, but Devils Lake came back to win a 17-10 nightcap.

Thursday, Post 117 came up with a late-reported 7-5, 5-3 twinbill sweep over East Grand Forks.

Coupled with a Monday split against Roseau, Thief River Falls finished a 4-2 homestand that sends Post 117 into Ninth District tournament play at 16-25 for the year.

"We had a good week," said Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. It was a good way to finish the regular season. The kids are playing pretty well right now. I hope they can carry it into the tournament."

The two wins over East Grand Forks represented just the second doubleheader sweep of the year for Thief River Falls.

Because of the busy schedule, Post 117 called on its corners to do the pitching Thursday as first baseman Joby Looker started on the mound in Game 1 and third baseman Andy Peterson took over in Game 2. Both picked up wins. Looker got relief help from Chris Vanyo, who earned a save. Peterson turned in a complete-game effort.

Steve Burslie and Eric Bjorgaard continued their strong hitting for the winners with two-run home runs in the opener. Tim Barry came up with a go-ahead RBI single in the fourth as Thief River Falls erased a 3-1 second-game deficit.

Saturday, Thief River Falls scored runs in the seventh and eighth innings to keep Game 1 going, then pushed two runs across the plate in the bottom of the ninth to outlast Devils Lake 9-8. Burslie and Jason Jensen both had a pair of hits and Vanyo pitched all nine innings for the win.

Post 117 jumped on Devils Lake for a quick 6-2 second-game lead, but it was tied at 10-10, and the visitors scored the final seven runs for the split. Bjorgaard was the starting pitcher. The loss went to Brian Minks when Devils Lake scored five unearned runs in the sixth. Burslie had a three-run home run.

National Kidney Foundation Transplant Games...

Atlanta event has TRF connection

Thief River Falls has a pair of connections to the 1994 National Kidney Foundation United States Transplant Games being played Aug. 3-7 in Atlanta, Georgia.

Drawing an anticipated 1,200 transplant athletes from across the country, the event is expected to be the largest-ever gathering of transplant recipients.

Chuck Provost is member of Team Upper Midwest that will participate in the Games on the campus of Emory University. John Michael Anderson was scheduled to be on hand as a volunteer official and a competitor in the bicycle events, but recent health problems forced him to cancel the trip. Provost and Anderson are both from Thief River Falls.

The Games are open to anyone with a life-saving organ transplant – including kidney, liver, heart, lung, pancreas, and bone marrow recipients – with a doctor's approval. Competition will be offered in bicycling, badminton, bowling, 3-on-3 basketball, golf, racquetball, swimming, track and field, road race, volleyball, table tennis, and tennis.

"The Games give transplant recipients more than the thrill of victory, and they prove to the country that transplantation works and these individuals return to full, productive lives," said Tom Cook, team coordinator for Team Upper Midwest. "The Games also call attention to the thousands of Americans waiting for an organ transplant."

Representing the newly-formed Transplant Recipients Organization of Minnesota (TROM), Anderson recently accepted a Minnesota state flag that will be displayed during the Games' opening and closing ceremonies. The flag, which had flown over the Minnesota state capitol building, was donated by State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls, and his wife Carol.

TROM, pointed out Anderson, is comprised of individuals who have received a life-saving organ transplant, and are currently residing in Minnesota. Goals of the organization include public speaking and distribution of educational material to promote public awareness of the need for organ donations; patient support service for transplant recipients and their families; and participation in the National and International Transplant Games.

More than 33,000 Americans are currently waiting for transplants of vital organs, with more than 2,000 being added monthly. Six or seven people die each day awaiting transplants. Due to the shortage of organs, patients may be forced to wait from two to four years before an organ match becomes available.

It is much more cost-effective, explained Anderson, to perform a kidney transplant than to maintain a patient on a long-term dialysis. In the United States, he pointed out, more than 20,000 people suffer brain death from trauma, yet only 3,000 of these become organ donors. It is a goal of TROM, he said, to educate the public of the extreme need for organ donors.

Anderson, who received a kidney transplant in 1988, said there is a need to help transplant recipients and their families deal with the many special issues they face. And there is a need for recipients and their families to celebrate the success of the transplant and improved health of the recipients. Helping to accomplish that goal, said Anderson is participation in the National Kidney Foundation United States Games, where transplant recipients have the opportunity to meet others for support and encouragement, and show the world that organ donation and transplantation save lives.

Becoming an organ donor can be done by signing an organ donor card, designated on a driver's license. National officials urge potential donors to talk to their family members about the decision and discuss feelings on organ donation.

Starting dates listed for NCC football, volleyball

Start of practice times and physical assignments for fall sports have been announced at Northland Community College.

Those interested in participating in intercollegiate athletics at Northland are to report Friday, Aug. 26, for orientation, when they will receive an athletic physical and fill out health history and insurance forms that are required by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Football practice will begin Saturday, Aug. 27. Volleyball practice starts Monday, Aug. 29.

Students attending either Northland Community College or the Northwest Technical College-Thief River Falls are eligible to participate in the Pioneers' intercollegiate athletic programs.

Volleyball players are to report to the Northland gym at 8:30 a.m. on Aug. 26. Head coach Deb Jacobson reminds players the cost of the athletic physical, locker rental and practice gear is $15. Each athlete should bring the fee with them when they report to the gym that morning.

Head football coach Gene Klinke mailed assigned reporting times to prospective team members. Anyone not contacted is encouraged to call Klinke at 681-2181.

"We are very excited about the beginning of the 1994-95 season for the Pioneer athletic teams," said Northland Athletic Director Rick Nelson. "We are also proud of the fact that we have continued our working relationship with the Northwest Medical Center and Dakota Clinic, Thief River Falls branch, in providing this sports medicine team to our program."

Athletic trainer George Judd, along with Dr. James Langeland and physical therapist/head of sports medicine Bonnie Davidson, will again be providing services for the Pioneers teams through the 1994-95 season. "These individuals are quality people who will help ensure that our athletes are getting the proper coverage to prevent injuries and to help rehabilitate those who have been injured in competition," added Nelson.

The Pioneers will begin their 1994 volleyball season with a Friday, Sept. 9, dual vs. Mesabi in Virginia, followed by the Saturday, Sept. 10, Vermilion Northeast/Northwest Invitational in Ely.

Northland will kick off the 1994 football season Saturday, Sept. 10, at Worthington.

Controlled hunt drawings will be held for Thief Lake

Hunters may apply again this year to reserve goose hunting stations within the controlled hunt zones at the Thief Lake and Lac qui Parle wildlife management areas, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced recently.

Applications will be accepted on the basis of the earliest postmark between Aug. 22 and Sept. 15. Applications postmarked prior to Aug. 22 will be rejected. Although waterfowl season dates will not be officially set until early September, the Minnesota goose season is expected to open Oct. 1.

Hunters may apply to reserve one of the stations within the controlled hunting areas of Thief Lake and Lac qui Parle. Applications must be made on a standard 3 1/2 by 5 1/2-inch postcard (available at post offices) bearing the applicant's full name and address. Applicants should list their first, second and third choices of dates, and indicate whether they will accept an alternate date if none of their choices are available.

Only one postcard per hunter may be submitted to each area. Those submitting more than one application per area will have all of their applications rejected.

Applications should be sent to: Controlled Hunt, Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area, HCR 3, Box 17, Middle River, MN 56737; or Controlled Hunt, Lac qui Parle Wildlife Management Area, 14040 20th Street NW, Watson, MN 56295.

Successful applicants will receive reservations by mail designating the date of their hunt. Only successful applicants will be notified. Goose hunting stations will be assigned through a drawing held on the morning of the hunt. Reservation holders may be accompanied by one or two guests. However, persons participating in the hunt will be limited to three trips either as guests or as successful applicants.

At Thief Lake, the reservation system will be in effect only through Oct. 24. After that date, stations will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. The system will be in effect at Lac qui Parle for the entire goose season.

At Lac qui Parle, all hunters using hunting stations in the controlled hunt zone who are 18 years of age or older will be charged a $3 fee on the day of their hunt to partially cover controlled hunt special expenses.

A six-shell limit, shooting hours, and steel shot restrictions will be strictly enforced, according to DNR wildlife officials.

Dalager ending coaching career

Howard Dalager hopes to stretch it out as long as possible, but his six-year career as Thief River Falls American Legion head baseball coach will be entering its final stages this week when Post 117 takes part in the 1994 Ninth District tournament at Fergus Falls.

The seven-team, double-elimination state tournament-qualifying event starts today (Wednesday).

Thief River Falls won it in 1992 and was a top contender in 1993. But a 16-25 regular-season finish and a No. 6 seed puts Post 117 back in the pack when picking the 1994 favorite.

That role belongs to No. 1 seeded Moorhead. The Blues have won the tournament seven times in the past eight years.

Dalager, who has worked with Thief River Falls baseball program at both the Babe Ruth and Legion level over the years, indicated earlier that 1994 would be his final year as Post 117 coach. Many of the on-field duties were handed over to assistant coach Corey Poole – his heir apparent – this summer. He made his decision public during last week's regular season-ending Thief River Falls homestand.

"I finally got the cloud lifted," said Dalager," after making the announcement. "I've really enjoyed working with the kids, but it's time to move on. I've thought about this (resigning) for a long time, and after announcing it, I feel relieved."

Thief River Falls takes on Roseau today at 3 p.m. in first round post-season play. A win will find Post 117 playing the Fergus Falls vs. East Grand Forks winner at 3 p.m. Thursday. A first round loss would match Thief River Falls against the Fergus Falls vs. East Grand Forks loser at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Fergus Falls is seeded No. 2 behind Moorhead, followed by No. 3 Roseau, No. 4 Detroit Lakes, No. 5 Crookston, No. 6 Thief River Falls, and No. 7 East Grand Forks.

Minnesota's unemployment rate shows decline in June

Commissioner R. Jane Brown of the Minnesota Department of Economic Security has announced that Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate increased slightly from 3.5 per cent in May to 3.6 per cent in June. This is well below the 5.9 per cent rate of a year ago. National rates remained at 6 per cent in June from May, down from 6.9 per cent a year ago.

The unadjusted rates for Minnesota increased from 3 per cent in May to 3.9 per cent in June, down from 5.5 per cent a year ago. Typically, Minnesota experiences an increase in its unadjusted unemployment rate from May to June. The U.S. unadjusted rate increased from 5.9 per cent in May to 6.2 per cent in June, down from 7.1 per cent a year ago.

These are the lowest June unemployment rates, seasonally adjusted and unadjusted, since June 1978. In 1978, the unadjusted rate was 4 per cent and the seasonally adjusted rate was 3.6 per cent.

"Minnesota's unemployment rates continue to be well below the national rates," said Brown. "The growth in jobs appears to be occurring in most areas of the state."

The seasonal increase in unemployment from May to June was spread among the regions of the state. There was no change in the regions having the highest and lowest average unemployment rates. The highest average June rate was 7.1 per cent in the northeast region, up from 5.9 per cent in May. The lowest average June rate was 3.2 per cent in the southwest region, up from 2.4 per cent in May.

Among the counties, Red Lake county had the highest unemployment rate at 14.7 per cent in June, up from 11.5 per cent in May. Houston county continued to have the lowest unemployment rate. Its rate increased from 1.7 per cent in May to 2.3 per cent in June.

In Region 1, which includes the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau, the rate of unemployment in June was 5.9 per cent. That's down from 7.6 per cent recorded in June of 1993. It's up, however, from the unemployment rate measured in May of 1994, which was 4.7 per cent.

By county, the unemployment rate was 5.3 per cent in Kittson county, 9.1 per cent in Marshall county, 5.3 per cent in Norman county, 4.8 per cent in Pennington county, 6.1 per cent in Polk county, 14.7 per cent in Red Lake county and 2.8 per cent in Roseau county.

From a separate monthly survey of employers, the number of non-farm wage and salary jobs in Minnesota was up 2.7 per cent in June from a year ago. This increase of 62,300 jobs is over 16 per cent greater than the average June-to-June increase over the last 10 years. The national increase for June from a year ago was also 2.7 per cent. On a seasonally adjusted basis, Minnesota's non-farm wage and salary employment is up 2.8 per cent compared to an increase of 2.7 per cent for the U.S.

Services continue to be the industry group with the greatest job gain, 28,700, over the past year. Business services, up 9,400 jobs, and amusement and recreation services, up 5,100 jobs, were the service areas with the greatest growth. In Minnesota, 46 per cent of job gain was in services compared to 54 per cent for the nation. The other major industry groups with large job gains were trade with an increase of 10,500 jobs, government with an increase of 8,300 jobs, and manufacturing with an increase of 7,900 jobs.

The number of non-farm wage and salary jobs grew by 17,300 from May to June. This is greater than the 10-year average job increase from May to June. Among the industry groups, the largest gains were in manufacturing, up 7,600 jobs, services, up 5,900 jobs, construction, up 5,900 jobs, and trade, up 5,400 jobs. Government employment dropped by 8,400 jobs reflecting the seasonal decline in educational services at the state and local level.

Long's bridge, Hwy. 59 bypass in county plan

Pennington county board of commissioners accepted a five year road and bridge construction program report presented by Delton Schultz, Pennington county engineer Tuesday afternoon.

The five year road and bridge construction program is formulated annually to assist the county commissioners and the engineering department, to evaluate and fulfill the county's needs and objectives.

Included as part of the five year plan this year is replacement of Long's Bridge and construction of a Highway 59 "bypass" or connector.

Schultz said Tuesday that an engineering firm had been hired to come up with plans and specifications for replacement of Long's Bridge. The bridge had been scheduled for replacement in 1998 but after examining the bridge more closely last winter they discovered that it was in worse shape than previously believed. Replacement of the bridge, which will not take place at its current location but north of its present location and near the abandoned electric train railroad route, is expected to begin in 1995. Erickson Engineering has been hired to provide plans and specifications and W.S.N. of Crookston is currently conducting a site survey.

Schultz said Long's bridge will remain in place until the new bridge is finished.

According to the five year road and bridge plan, the project is expected to cost around $2.5 million, $1.2 million of which is expected to come from Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) funds.

Selection of bridge replacement and or revocation was made based on the individual bridge sufficiency rating, however circumstances can dictate a program change, as occurred in this instance.

The Highway 59 "bypass" or connector, which will be located west of Thief River Falls at the intersection of Highway 59 and 1 and connect Highway 59 to Highway 32 south of Thief River Falls, is still in the works. Schultz said the route has been selected, but the funding and the land have not been secured.

Pennington county and the City of Thief River Falls took a step closer to completing the project Tuesday.

City Attorney Paul Ihle presented terms of a purchase agreement for about 136 acres. The county and city agreed to an all or nothing proposal and will pay about $1,000 per acre. SwisCorp, the new solid waste contractor in Thief River Falls that will soon take over Future Fuel's role, would purchase 10 acres. Twenty-four acres would be purchased with state aid for the Highway 59 roadway, and the city and county will split the remainder, which amounts to about 50 acres each.

The city council referred the matter to the finance committee, which is now included in the Administrative Services committee.

Criminal sexual conduct charge placed Monday

John Edward Garner, 22, was arrested Friday by the Pennington county sheriff's department following a complaint of criminal sexual conduct.

Garner appeared in a Pennington county district courtroom Monday and was officially charged with criminal sexual conduct in the second degree. Band was placed at $50,000.

Charges against Garner stem from an alleged incident in Rocksbury township with a juvenile male under the age of 13. Garner's official address is unknown. It was revealed in court Monday, however, that Garner was on probation for a similar crime that occurred in Itasca County.

NCC President takes sabbatical to do research

Northland Community College President Dr. James Haviland, will take a one year sabbatical leave during the 1994-1995 academic year to continue his research in management communication with specific focus on the power of humor as it relates to visionary leadership.

To Haviland, humor is not a joking matter. In fact, he takes humor quite seriously, having studied it throughout the last decade. Haviland's first contribution in this area of study was in the early 1980s when he was asked to present his paper entitled "Humor in the Workplace" at a national conference.

Since then, his interest and intrigue in this subject have motivated him to further investigate this topic. "I have always been intrigued with successful leaders and have examined why some are more successful than others," remarked Haviland. "Humor seems to play a key role in their success," he added.

According to Haviland, one needs to distinguish between humor and comedy. Haviland defines someone with a sense of humor as one who is sensitive and accepting of others and their ideas. "Comedy," Haviland says, "is merely a vehicle to provoke laughter."

The origin of the word humor is quite interesting. Borrowing from the Latin words for liquid (humor) and mixture (temperamentum), ancient philosophers believed that the mixture of four fluids, or humors, made up a person's temperament. These four fluids were blood, phlegm, bile, and black bile. If one had to much blood, one was considered optimistic and too much phlegm caused one to become slow or unexcitable. An abundance of yellow bile meant one became short tempered, and too much black bile caused one to be melancholy. In the early stages, a healthy person was considered to be of humorous temperament.

In practical terms, Haviland describes humor as an openness and receptiveness to others' ideas. "A lack of humor is found in defensive behavior, and it's this defensiveness that builds obstacles to communication," said Haviland.

Haviland started writing his book "Cultivating Executive Humor" a year ago. Since that time, he has studied world leaders that support his thesis that a sense of humor is essential for effective communication to take place. According to Haviland, this sabbatical will allow him the opportunity to complete this manuscript, along with three articles relating to effective communication. Once the book is complete, Haviland will convert it into a high-tech multimedia presentation with plans to present it on a national circuit.

In addition to the awareness of the power of humor, Haviland's book will address the following three critical issues: Where does a sense of humor come from? What happens to our sense of humor; and how can we enhance our sense of humor in order to communicate more effectively?

While on sabbatical, Haviland also plans to review several books relating to management, meet with successful political and industrial leaders, and work with five other industries that have merged successfully. As educational institutions are headed towards merger, Haviland feels his research will enhance local consolidation, as well as merging at the state level.

"This is an opportunity of a lifetime," commented Haviland. He added, "I will be able to devote all of my attention to this one project which is educational, academic, and professional in nature."

NCC Dean of Students, Susan Minick, will serve as Acting President, and Walter Cullen, director of faculty development for the Minnesota Community College System, will serve as Acting Dean of Instruction, while Haviland is on sabbatical.

Northland Community College President Dr. James Haviland, will take a one year sabbatical leave to continue his research in management communication with specific focus on the power of humor as it relates to visionary leadership.

Pennington Co. DARE program receives $2,000

The DARE program in Pennington County has received a $2,000 grant to expand its DARE program to the Junior High School level.

Attorney General Hubert Humphrey III announced recently that 58 school districts and police department were awarded $119,337 to help bring the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program to area schools. The money was awarded by Minnesota DARE, Inc., and the Minnesota DARE Advisory Council.

Attorney General Hubert Humphrey III, chair of the DARE Advisory Council, commended more than a dozen groups present for a grant awarding ceremony at the Capital for their commitment to drug education for young people. "By bringing DARE into their community, citizens are making their children a top priority," Humphrey said. "DARE gives kids the skills and support they need to live drug-free lives."

According to Humphrey, the grants were made available by a bill approved by the Minnesota Legislature. DARE is a drug prevention program in which specially-trained, uniformed law enforcement officers enter fifth and sixth grade classrooms to teach a 17-week curriculum designed to promote self-respect and to give young people the ability to say "No" to drugs and alcohol.

The DARE curriculum is being expanded to junior high students by including lessons on violence and gangs. The first police officers were trained on the curriculum in June. The DARE program has grown in Minnesota from only one DARE officer in 1987 to over 400 in 1994. Approximately 163 police departments, along with 30 sheriffs' offices and three Bureau of Criminal Apprehension officers, teach DARE in more than 500 Minnesota schools to almost 60,000 children. DARE began in Los Angeles in 1983 and has since expanded to all 50 states.

Counties lead government payroll increases

Minnesota has more government now than it did in 1980, judging by growth in payroll, number of public employees and a sample of managers' salaries, and counties, more than any other level of government, are in the lead, according to a news release from Minnesota Planning.

In its July Line Item, Minnesota Planning reports a 108 per cent increase in public payroll for cities, counties, school districts and state government between 1980 and 1991; adjusting for inflation, the increase was 26 per cent.

Payrolls in Minnesota counties rose 42 per cent, adjusted for inflation, between 1980 and 1991, which was greater than the 38 per cent increase for counties nationally.

Minnesota counties also showed larger gains in the number of public employees per capita than cities, school districts or state government. In counties, the per capita number of public employees rose about 22 per cent — almost three times as fast as counties in the nation — between 1980 and 1991. Total per capita employment for all levels of Minnesota government grew 7 per cent, similar to the rest of the country.

County payroll and employment growth was driven largely by increased spending for corrections and human services. Between 1980 and 1991, correction costs rose 65 per cent and became the fastest growing part of county budgets.

Growing at a slower pace than public payroll and the number of employees, were top managers' salaries. In state and local government, top managers' salaries equalled or slightly exceeded inflation, which was eight per cent between 1989 and 1991. Beginning in 1991, the trend reversed and increases in managers' salaries for state, county and city government stayed below increases in inflation.

This report is the second in the Line Item series, which is part of a larger Minnesota Planning study that examines the driver forces behind government spending.

"The purpose of this study is to look at government spending and revenues and forecast what is expected to happen over the next five to 10 years," said John Hustad, acting director of Minnesota Planning. "The project will examine the driver forces behind government revenues and spending and identify options for future policy decisions."

Governor Arne H. Carlson recently created an advisory board to the government spending study, which includes: Sen. Gene Merriam; Rep. Jim Girard; Judy Pattison, Big Stone County auditor; Hazel Reinhardt, former state demographer; Dan Salamone, Minnesota Taxpayers Association director, Tom Stinson, state economist; and Samuel Myers Jr., Humphrey Institute."

Just as citizens have learned to live within their means, so must government," Governor Arne H. Carlson said. "We simply must keep the lid on government spending so that future generations will not be saddled by our lack of control."

Area students top achievers for Readathon

Top achievers in the 1994 Readathon were honored recently at Valleyfair Family Amusement Park in Shakopee.

Area students who won tickets to Valleyfair, but were unable to attend Readathon Day, included: Cody Frame, Thief River Falls, student at Seventh Day Adventist School; and Ben and Danny Saylor, Thief River Falls, who are home school students.

The Readathon is a motivational reading program sponsored by the Minnesota Multiple Sclerosis Society. More than 15,000 Minnesota and western Wisconsin students read over 300,000 books this year while raising $350,000 for programs, services and research for the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

BIBLE STUDY
How to be spiritually in tune with God

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Have you ever telephoned someone you had on your mind and discovered that person was also thinking of you just before the phone rang? How much more spiritually in tune is God to our every thought (Psalm 94:8-11; 125:4; 1 Cor. 3:20)?

There is a way to become spiritually in tune with God, just as there is a way to become spiritually out of tune with God. When we live in sin, we are spiritually out of tune with God. We are in tune with Satan's wavelengths and we are doing Satan's will (2 Tim. 2:26). When we repent and come out of a life of sin by living a life of righteousness, we become in tune with the Father, who is righteous (Psalm 11:7; 145:17).

All unrighteousness is lawlessness or sin (Rom. 3:23; 1 John 3:4; 5:17). This is why the one who repents is to imitate what is good by doing good (3 John 11). We are to imitate God daily instead of Satan (Eph. 5:1). We are to do good daily instead of evil.

Instead of being slaves to unrighteousness, God wants us to repent and become slaves to righteousness (Rom. 6:13, 17-19). God's Will is righteousness (Psalm 106:3). Satan's will is lawlessness or unrighteousness. God is righteous and He wants us to imitate Him by practicing righteousness daily (Eph. 5:1). He wants us to glorify His name with good works (Matt. 5:16). Jesus laid out those works in the parable of the sheep and goats found in Matthew 25:33-46.

Satan is an enemy of all righteousness and good works when they are done in secret for the glory of God (Matt. 6:1; Eph. 6:6). Why? Because that is how he is crushed in our natures and put under our feet by God (Rom. 16:20).

Good works and righteous deeds are God's Will. When we do good works daily on earth as they are done in heaven, we are in tune with God (Matt. 6:10). Now, all we need to do is stay in tune with God (Matt. 24:13). We will have Jesus' nature formed in us (Gal. 4:19). We will overcome the evil in our lives by continually doing good toward others for God (Rom. 12:21; 1 Peter 3:10-11, 13). We will have our prayers answered because we are doing God's Will and pleasing Him in all we do (1 John 3:22; John 8:29; 9:31). Not only that, because we are seeking first God's kingdom by practicing righteousness for God, the Lord will give us all the things we need (Matt. 6:33; John 8:51).

So, what are you waiting for? The Lord is waiting for you to become spiritually in tune with Him.

This is Omann's second attempt at gaining the office. In 1992 he received 49.3 per cent of the vote in a close loss to incumbent Rep. Collin Peterson.

Omann said a major issue in the campaign will be Peterson's support for the policies of President Bill Clinton which Omann calls "out of step with the values of the people of the Seventh District."

He also said issues he intends to concentrate on include term limits, fair tax policies, health care, crime and foreign policy. "Our goal is to give future generations the opportunity to succeed," he said.

Government growth and responsibility

by David Hill
Associate Editor

It's interesting to note that during a period of "downsizing" in the private sector that government employment is growing. Actually, it's more than interesting, it must be down-right frustrating to able-bodied individuals who have lost jobs because a company decided to "down-size".

Notable exceptions abound to the "down-sizing" theme, especially in northwest Minnesota. There has been job growth at such major factories as Arctco, Digi-Key, Polaris and others. Nevertheless, overall job growth really hasn't changed much in the past decade. Recent statistics from the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training indicate that for example, unemployment in Region 1, which includes Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties, has remained at 4.7 per cent, a seasonal low. Minnesota's seasonal low was 3.6 per cent.

Government employment continues to grow. In fact, according to Sen. Roger Moe, the overall number of state, local and school employees in Minnesota increased at a rate that mirrored the entire country between 1980 and 1991. The 11-year increase in employees per capita was 7 per cent in Minnesota, and the rate for the entire United States was 7 per cent, as well.

Sen. Moe also noted that Minnesota's experience was similar to its close neighbors. Wisconsin saw an 8 per cent per capita increase in public employees, while Missouri managed to limit its employment increase per capita to 3 per cent. Iowans saw its public employment rate soar 16 per cent per capita between 1980, and 1991. Doesn't all of this just reinforce the public perception of government waste?

Sen. Moe offered several specific answers, attributing job growth in the government sector to mounting social ills, increased demand for better and more effective law enforcement, demand for better education, demand for better health and human services (welfare), and a private sector that is unable or unwilling to meet the needs of the public.

As a witness to countless city council meetings, I can tell you that any new job added to local government is met with stiff resistance. Members of the city council are quick to ask whether this job is really needed, and "can't we just assign those duties to someone else".

When they began looking at restructuring local government, they looked at it not with an eye toward eliminating jobs, however. They looked at the task as an effort to make government more efficient.

The difference is that they realize why government job growth exists — citizen demand for increased government services. They know that to cut employment would be to cut services. They also know that when you cut services voters get upset.

Could the local voter put up with garbage collection once every two weeks instead of once a week? Would the voter support a measure to cut a police officer from the police force if they knew that it would mean that a burglary of their store might go unsolved? Would the local voter put up with a 15-minute wait if their house was on fire?

Like capitalism, government is somewhat driven by demand. If the public wants a service they must understand that it will cost someone some money and that someone is you.

So the next time you wonder why something isn't being done about job growth in the government sector, don't forget to point the finger at yourself.

WHEN "REALITY" IS BOTH IRRATIONAL AND IRRESPONSIBLE

By Jim Langland M.D.

The Times editor recently published an endorsement of the National Rifle Association (NRA). This editorial quoted extensively from NRA propaganda which allegedly "deals in reality." When viewed from a medical and public health perspective this reality appears both irrational and irresponsible.

Firearms are the 8th leading cause of death in the United States. Homicide is the leading cause of death for young black men between the ages of 15 and 34 years and the second overall leading cause of death nationwide for all males age 15 to 24. The U. S. spends over 20 billion dollars a year for medical care of gunshot wounds alone. All Americans can agree that we face an epidemic of firearm violence in this county. A responsible government has a duty to respond to this epidemic and help secure the health and safety of its citizens.

How should we respond to this epidemic? As a physician I feel that public health principles can and should be applied to this epidemic as they would to any other epidemic. When dealing with widespread fatal diseases whether it be AIDS, cancer, Cholera or firearm violence the best public health approach is prevention.

The NRA chooses to ignore prevention and focus on keeping criminals in prison. This is akin to treating the Rawandan cholera epidemic with only antibiotics and making no effort to clean up the water supply. It is an irresponsible public health policy.

There are other problems with the sole emphasis on prisons as the only solution to violent crime. The U. S. already has the highest incarceration rate in the western world. We have a higher percentage of our population behind bars than almost every other country on earth. Our prisons are currently full and over crowded yet the violence continues to escalate in our society. If Mr. Lundeen's editorial is correct and that violent offender has only a 1 in 100 chance of being imprisoned then we would need a 100 fold increase in prison capacity to accommodate all these criminals. It is irrational to claim that more and bigger prisons are the only solution to the epidemic of firearm violence, what are the best preventive strategies? Thief River Falls probably has as high per capita gun ownership as anywhere in the country. Despite the number of guns in our community we feel safe in our homes and on our streets. It is because of our commitment to family, church and community that we don't share in the U.S. epidemic of violence. These commitments are sadly non-existent in many parts of this country particularly many urban areas. Until these commitments can be restored to these areas other preventive strategies are necessitated.

Writing in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association public health authorities have recommended the following measures to help stem firearm violence:

1) Implementing a national licensure system for firearm possession. Just a as we license automobile and motorcycle drivers we should license firearm owners. To its credit the NRA has protected training in the safe use, storage and handling of firearms. Completion of a nationally recognized course such as this should be required to obtain a firearm license. The licensing procedure should also include verification of a lack of criminal record through national and state databases.

2) Limiting the manufacture and sale of military style assault weapons. Although these weapons account for only a small number of firearm deaths there purpose and design is to kill humans. The shear destructive power of these weapons and the fact that they do the most tissue damage per shot justifies federal legislation to ban civilian access to them. The precedence for this type of legislation was established in the 1930's with the ban on machine guns.

3) Increasing taxes on firearms and ammunition. These taxes would served two purposes. Some gun sales would be discouraged thereby decreasing availability of guns. The money collected through the tax could facilitate the education and training programs required for gun owner licensure. It seems justifiable to also use theses taxes to help off set the high cost of medical care firearms inflict on our society.

4) Tightening federal licensing requirements for gun dealers. Over a quarter of a million individuals own licenses to sell guns. The licenses are easy to get for a minimal fee. The license fees collected do not even cover the governments cost in administering the program. It is time to end taxpayer subsidies of gun dealers and substantially increase these licensing fees.

S) Limiting the number of handguns an individual can buy. Virginia has enacted a law that limits to one a month the number of handguns a person may buy. National legislation such as this could help limit the availability of guns and provide consistency across state lines.

6) Implementing a gun return program. Minneapolis recently ran a successful gun return program. Programs such as these can help reduce the number of guns on our streets.

7) Implementing a national firearm fatality and injury reporting system. The best public health measures to help reduce firearm deaths and injuries can be determined when good data is available. A national reporting system could provide information on the type of weapon and circumstances under which any firearm injury or death occurred. The system could be modeled on the Federal Ancient Reporting System which collects information on motor vehicle fatalities and has led to major improvements in motor vehicle safety and a lower facility rate.

Clearly these measure fall far short of the ban on guns which the gun lobby fears. We can expect that the NRA will oppose every one of them. It is useful to remember their opposition to the Brady Law. In just the first few months that this law was in effect over 70,000 handgun sales to convicted felons were denied! By challenging the law in court the NRA appears to be trying to put guns in the hands of these criminals. It exposes the true motivation of the NRA is not to prevent crime and violence but to protect the self interest of gun dealers and manufacturers.

Will measures such as these inconvenience law abiding gun owners in Thief River Falls and elsewhere? Clearly they would. As a physician I feel that if the life of even one innocent teenager can be saved by these measures they should all be implemented. I would hope that law abiding gun owners would be willing to endure some inconvenience if it can save lives, reduce injuries and reduce health care costs. The "reality" of the NRA position opposing any and all attempt to accomplish this is both irrational and irresponsible.

Former TRF resident looks back on football at UND

from the University of North Dakota

A little grin crept up on Gordon Caldis' face when asked how the sport of football has changed since he played.

"They are specialists now. I am not saying that players back in my days couldn't play today. It's just that the current football players are bigger, stronger and faster," said Caldis during an interview at the "Kickoff Cookout" honoring 100 years of Sioux football.

Caldis, formerly from Thief River Falls, was recruited to play football for the University of North Dakota in 1938. Under the direction of coach C.A. West, the Sioux football team won the North Central Conference in 1939 and took second place in both 1940 and 1941.

"In the three years I played for the Sioux we were beaten by only one team in the Conference, Northern Iowa," said Caldis. "NDSU still was our rivalry, and it was always a good game to win, but we had more trouble with Iowa and South Dakota State."

Caldis came to UND during the Depression. There were no football scholarships available during this time. A player was recruited with the incentive of a "room and board" job. These people were given jobs on campus in order to pay for room and board.

The current football stadium was where he lived.

"The stadium as you know it was a dormitory when I went to school," said Caldis. "The main floor and the North tower were used for dorm rooms. The South tower was where we ate. We had around 35 to 40 athletes and two full-time cooks living in the Stadium during the school year."

After graduating with a bachelor's degree in merchandising, (business these days), Caldis enlisted in the Navy. He was sent to Columbia University to learn how to handle boats. Caldis was held in the States for a time as an instructor and then was sent to the South Pacific to be a PT boat commander.

He returned to North Dakota after his time in the Navy and went back to school. In 1948 he graduated again from UND with a degree in law.

Caldis currently resides in Grand Forks, where he is the attorney/president of his own law firm, Caldis, Tingun Ltd.

His wife, LeNore, is a Grand Forks native. They have five children, three girls and two boys.

Caldis maintains his involvement with Sioux sports. He is part of the UND Hall of Fame and a 30-year member of the UND's Athletic Board of Control.

"I was active in all three sports while I was here at the University," said Caldis. "I played football, basketball and ran track. So, my wife and I enjoy watching Sioux sports. We have season tickets for all Sioux sports."

In looking back at 100 years of Sioux football, Caldis treasures the success of the football teams of the past.

"Sioux football has remained strong over the past 100 years, with one of the better records in Division II football."

Public Notices

CARD OF THANKS
I would like to thank all the people that came to my aid at the time of my car accident a few weeks ago. The quick response of the ambulance and the police, they were so efficient, and the attention the doctors and nurses, with their care in the emergency room. There were many people at the scene that offered me kindness in helping to get the other person's license number off the pickup, your concern was sure appreciated. It's a very traumatic experience to go through, but I felt very comfortable knowing of your helpfulness. May God bless every one of you.

Sincerely,
Ameida Mathieu
